WATCHES HUGE SHELLS BATTER ALBANIAN PORT

Story of British Sea Raid on Valona.

BY LARRY ALLEN.

WITH THE BRITISH BATTLE-FLEET THAT ATTACKED VALONA, ALBANIA, Dec. 20 (AP).—From the deck of one of Britain's floating fortresses early Thursday morning I watched one ton shells rocket into the heart of Valona, Italy's main Albanian naval base, to cause fires that battled mountain peaks, 2,000 feet high, with their light.

The warship on which I rode and others swept up the mine-laden Adriatic sea between Italy and Albania in a raid in which 100 shells were loosed against Valona.

[In London the admiralty announced that British warships swept the lower Adriatic without being challenged by a single Italian fighting ship. The admiralty said a cruiser and destroyer force, whose primary purpose was to harass Italian sea communications with Albania, steamed up the Adriatic as far north as Bari, Italy, and Durazzo, Albania, while to the south a battleship formation shelled Valona.]

Italians Caught by Surprise.

The Italians apparently were completely surprised and the warships moved in close enough to shore to see a lone light shining in Valona's harbor. Then bedlam broke.

Shells that rumbled thru the night with a noise like a roaring subway express train exploded with tremendous force against docks, ships, warehouses, supply bases, and military encampments.

The heavy bombardment was designed to give support to Greek land armies increasing their pressure on Premier Mussolini's battered Albanian legions.

A reddish glow crept over the tops of mountains 2,000 feet high showing the caliber of the raging fires started by the naval guns.

Thru Otranto Straits.

The British ships moved thru the strait of Otranto between Italy's "heel" and the Albanian coastline like huge shadows. Keeping the Albanian coast in sight the ships swept into broadside firing positions off Valona.

It was at that time, shivering with cold, I clambered up the steel ladders from the battleship's wardroom to the control tower.

Thru narrow slits in the steel tower, I saw the long, massive gray barrels of the 15 inch guns slowly rear their muzzles skyward from the giant turrets.

The commander, thru a speaking tube, said the guns were to open fire in 10 minutes. Those minutes ticked off like hours.

Signal "Open Fire."

White and red lights flashed on the fire control indicator, designating the turrets that were to open the bombardment.

Then came the signal: "Open fire!" A bell sounded lightly.

I grasped a rung of a steel ladder, took a deep breath, and ducked below the level of the vision slits.

A second later there was a terrific burst of fire. Sheets of yellow flame licked back from the muzzles of the guns.

Again the bell sounded. Again I ducked, and two guns fired almost simultaneously. The blinding glare and the clouds of yellowish smoke swept into my face. Then came a rapid succession of blasts.

Italian Batteries Silent.

Guns of other battle fleet units roared with great flashes of fire, wiping everything else from my vision. Even the Albanian coast disappeared in the burst of fire.

Swiftly, scores of shells hurtled thru the air.

The Italian shore batteries of 12 inch guns remained silent during the bombardment.

For 12 minutes the battle fleet pumped out shells.

Then, over the speaking tube, came the signal "cease firing."

The big guns were lowered but the crews of the 6 inch guns stood by.

The British ships moved slowly southward.

Then the Italian shore batteries fired a few starshells, vainly trying to locate their attackers. The starshells drifted to the surface of the sea hundreds of yards away from the ships. The Italians fired several more rounds which came closer, but all were too distant to illuminate the battlefleet.

BUILD DEFENSES AND STAY HOME, URGES SENATOR

2,500 Cheer Stand at Citizen Rally.

Wheeler Rips Aid Plan

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP).—Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] said today adoption of President Roosevelt's plan for lending war materials to Great Britain would be the first step toward making the United States "the greatest military oligarchy the world has ever known." He added: "If we are to start loaning guns, boats, aircraft, and munitions to every nation that gets into war with another nation, we'll be entering every war that starts."

BY THOMAS MORROW.

A determined audience of more than 2,500 persons, who prolonged the meeting with bursts of applause, heard United States Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia lash war mongers last night and plead for the United States to build an adequate defense and stay out of foreign squabbles. Holt spoke in the Auditorium theater under auspices of the Citizens' Keep America Out of War committee.

"What groups are behind this war drive?" he asked. "Let me tell you:

"First, the Anglophiles who felt we made a mistake when we declared our independence from Great Britain and who feel that we should look to the British empire for guidance.

War Traffickers Arraigned.

"Second, the war traffickers—those who are seeking blood money and want to continue to rake in their profits.

"Third, sycophants and snobs, those who love to bow to a king or who hear the big shots are for the war drive and therefore they can be associated with them by working in the pro-war groups.

"Fourth, and by far the least, the sincere individuals who have been fooled into believing this is an idealistic war and that our country's whole existence is at stake."

Holt scoffed at groups who depict Winston Churchill, England's prime minister, as a champion of democracy.

Quotes Churchill on World War.

"He loved America?" the speaker asked. "Here's Churchill's comment on our participation in the world war: 'America's entrance into the war was disastrous not only for your country but for the allies as well, because had you stayed at home and minded your own business we would have made peace with the central powers in the spring of 1917, and then there would have been no collapse in Russia, followed by communism; no breakdown in Italy, followed by Fascism; and Nazlism would not at present be enthroned in Germany. If America had stayed out of the war and minded her own business none of these isms would be sweeping the continent and breaking down parliamentary government'."

Senator Holt asked the mothers and fathers in the audience to consider the immediate consequences of war.

Advice: Save Democracy Here.

"Do you want your boy tangled in barbed wire or struggling for a last gasp of breath in stinking trenches somewhere abroad?" he asked. "Keep out of foreign wars. Save democracy here. That is America's mission today!"

Representative James E. Van Zandt of Pennsylvania, past national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, preceded Senator Holt on the stage. He was greeted by a demonstration when he announced: "I am one of the loyal opposition."

Warns of 6th Column.

Van Zandt told his listeners that there is a sixth column in the United States headed by William Allen White and the war mongers. He called on the audience to remember that democracy is facing its greatest fight—to stay out of foreign wars.

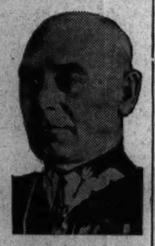
"If we send another expeditionary force abroad," Van Zandt continued, "keep in mind it is your flesh and blood who will make up this force."

Capt. William J. Grace, chairman of the sponsoring committee, was the first speaker of the evening. He mentioned what he described as "the William Allen White-Benedict Arnold meeting in the Coliseum," and said that only "fools or dupes" speak of aid to foreign countries short of war.

HITLER ISN'T THE ONLY ONE WHO CAN CHANGE A MAP

Smigly-Rydz Flees Prison Camp, Report

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 20 (AP).—Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz of Poland, who fled to Rumania 18 days after the German army invaded his homeland in September, 1939, was reported in flight again tonight, this time after a daring escape from the Dragoslav prison camp.



Marshal Smigly-Rydz.

An undetermined number of high-ranking Polish officers who were imprisoned with him were reported to have fled at the same time, but no details were available.

[Diplomatic reports reaching Budapest, Hungary, said Smigly-Rydz had been smuggled aboard a Black sea steamer bound for Turkey.]

Seized 2 Months Ago.

The 54 year old marshal, once proud commander in chief of all the forces of Poland and hailed as Pilsudski's heir, was imprisoned two months ago by Rumanian authorities investigating charges of espionage and sabotage, allegedly directed against the Rumanian oil fields by British agents.

Former Polish Foreign Minister Joseph Beck and a number of refugee Polish officers were reported seized at the same time. The Dragoslav prison is north of the oil fields in the heart of the country.

Interned on Estate.

Smigly-Rydz was reported on Sept. 18, 1939, to have quarreled with Beck and raced across the border to Rumania while the Germans were crushing the resistance of his army in the field.

Rumania promptly interned him, but gave him the freedom of a large estate.

Following a reported attack on him by an enraged Polish officer, who felt he had left his troops and country in time of need, Smigly-Rydz was described as a saddened, "broken man," old before his time. He was said to have made several previous attempts to leave Rumania.

Bermuda, Short of ½ Penny Stamps, Creates a New One

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Dec. 20.—A shortage of half-penny stamps gave philatelists a new item for their Bermuda collections today. Penny stamps with the penny denomination struck out and a subcharge of a half-penny substituted were put on sale. Collectors caused a run on the postoffice. Bermuda's stamps are printed in England and it may be some time before half-penny stocks are replenished.

ARMY SPEEDS WORK TO PERFECT SHELLS FOR AIRPLANE CANNON

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The army was reported today to be making progress in efforts to perfect shells for small warplane cannon sensitive enough to explode on striking the wing of an enemy plane but safe to handle.

Experiments to perfect 20 millimeter and 37 millimeter shells have been intensified, ordnance experts said, since German fighting planes showed the superiority of such weapons in the European war.

Both the United States and Great Britain have followed the Nazi's lead in reinforcing the armament of newer fighting planes. Older models were equipped only with machine guns.

Shells so sensitive they explode on striking paper already have been developed but they have the disadvantage of being dangerous to handle. Great difficulties, experts said, complicated perfection of aircraft ammunition which could be exploded by fuses at set distances.

$10,000 STREWN FROM TRAIN AT 80 M. P. H. SAVED

Mount Gilead, O., Dec. 20 (AP).—Only a couple hundred dollars were missing today out of $10,000 scattered along the railroad tracks near Edison when a pouch overloaded with Christmas mail burst as it was thrown from a train moving at 80 miles an hour.

Most of the money was recovered by railroad men and volunteers who gathered the scattered mail, and Postal Inspector Robert W. Newlon said at Columbus that "as far as we can determine only a couple of hundred dollars are missing." The $10,000 had been consigned to a bank here.

3 Joy Riding Pupils Die in Crash; 3 Hurt

Six young men, all pupils at Tilden High school, played hookey yesterday—the last day of classes before the Christmas vacation—and went joy riding in the country. Last night three of them were dead and the other three were injured—victims of a collision that resulted because they were racing with another car.

The tragedy occurred in Ogden avenue between Clarendon Hills and Westmont, west of Hinsdale in Du Page county.

Injured Taken to Sanitarium.

The dead were Albert Goodman, 18 years old, 7402 Vincennes avenue; Theodore Ancateu, 17, of 7447 Princeton avenue, and Clifford Noel, 18, of 7314 Stewart avenue. Those injured are the driver, Peter Ancateu, 18, a brother of Theodore; Richard Walker, 18, of 7226 Harvard avenue, and Thomas Payton, 18, of 7432 Normal avenue. They were taken to Hinsdale sanitarium.

Sheriff Arthur Bennett of Du Page county heard the story of the accident from young Walker, who was the least seriously hurt. He said the car belonged to the father of the Ancateu boys, who allowed them to drive it to school. By prearrangement, all six decided to skip classes yesterday and go riding, he said.

Car Going 70 Miles an Hour.

Walker said that while speeding west in Ogden avenue Peter Ancateu began racing with another motorist. In passing the other car for the third time, at a speed estimated at 70 miles an hour, Ancateu suddenly saw an approaching car and jammed on the brakes. The brakes locked, throwing the car sideways. The oncoming car struck it opposite the rear seat, smashing in the side.

All of those killed were riding in the rear. W. C. Cavins, 42, of Aurora, driver of the other car, was injured, but not critically. He also was taken to Hinsdale sanitarium. Cavins is a supervisor for the Kresge department stores.

TOKIO, Dec. 21, Saturday (AP).—The newspaper Asahi reported today that the navy budget for the 1941 fiscal year totals about $300,000,000, an increase of $50,000,000 over the current year. The paper said new activities listed included a torpedo school, an engineering school, and hospitals.

Reveals 'I Am' Chief Had His Head Adjusted

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 20 [Special].—Testimony that the late Guy W. Ballard, founder of the Great I Am cult, once had his brain adjusted by a chiropractor was only one of the things that enlivened the trial in federal court here today of 10 members of the order charged with mail fraud. Among the defendants are Mrs. Edna Ballard, widow of the founder, and her son Donald.

Among other stirring features of the hearing were:

1. The distress of the defense lawyer, Charles H. Carr, when the brain adjuster described him as "lopsided, droopy eyed, and short in one leg" and asked permission to straighten out his skull.

2. Assertions that Guy Ballard's average receipts from love gifts when he conducted classes in big cities exceeded $1,000 a day, which he negligently stuffed into a trunk.

3. A statement that Donald Ballard engaged in a knockdown fight with a man whom he found praying at night beside the bed of his blonde young wife, Marjorie—and fought second best.

"A Bit Out of Line."

The chiropractor, who was the star witness of the day, is Dr. Nephi Cottan, who once wrote a book called "Craniopathy." He said that the late Ballard was at times, so far as his skeleton was concerned, "a bit out of line," in fact even more so than Carr. He added that he had taken care of this for the leader; had relieved his "shallow complexion and his purple cast of skin."

"I made adjustments," the chiropractor said, and continued modestly: "And I also adjusted Mrs. Ballard and Donald."

Interested in Cult.

He said that he became interested in the I Am movement and asked to be allowed to visit the cult headquarters in the Teton mountains some time when St. Germaine and other Ascended Masters were present. [It was claimed by Ballard that St. Germaine, long dead, communicated regularly with him.]

Cottan testified that Ballard stuttered over this and said he'd have to ask St. Germaine first. If there was any answer the chiropractor never got it—he never visited the mountain retreat.

When Carr had a chance to cross-examine he asked the doctor if his [Carr's] head was on straight. The answer was an emphatic no.

Submits His Bumps.

"But you say Ballard's was worse. You say he had bumps on his spine," the lawyer declared. "Here, feel my spine. It has bumps like a figure 8."

Taking off his coat he presented his shirted back to the doctor, right in front of the jury.

You've got bumps," said Cottan, "and you're out of line, but not as far out as Ballard."

"Didn't you tell an I Am class you had adjusted Ballard's brain?"

"Yes. Shall I adjust yours?"

A Droopy Eye.

For the moment Carr was willing. Dr. Cottan took off his coat and flexed his muscles.

"You see," he told the jury, "this man's left eye droops, which means he has pressure on the left side of the cerebellum."

Presiding Judge Leon Yankwich observed mournfully: "Into each life some rain must fall."

"As soon as I release his frontal bone——" resumed the doctor, moving his hands in what looked a little like a jujitsu hold.

"O me, O my," said Carr, moving away. "The examination is ended. The witness is excused."

The serious burden of Cottan's testimony was that he had lectured Ballard on nerves and electricity and

STATE WORKERS TELL POLITICS IN CIVIL SERVICE

Accuse Democrats of Forcing Aid.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 20.—State civil service employés testified under oath today that, contrary to the law, they were ordered to perform political work in behalf of Democratic candidates prior to the November election.

The employés testified before the civil service commission at a hearing precipitated by E. W. Busch, a senior auditor in the division of highways, who charged that the division was being reduced to a campaign agency for the Democratic party.

Busch was first suspended, and then fired, by Gov. John Stelle, it being alleged that he was arrogant and insubordinate—charges not previously made openly in the 20 years in which Busch had been a state employé.

Boomerang for Accusers.

Today efforts to prove Busch arrogant and insubordinate boomeranged in the faces of those who made them, as a succession of civil service employés followed one another in the witness chair before the commission, and refuted the testimony given earlier by Robert R. MacLeod, chief auditor, and his assistant, Sam R. Johnson.

At the morning session MacLeod admitted that often his bureau had been called upon from the outside to address stacks of letters and other literature which had nothing to do with highway division business, but he denied that he knew the nature of the printed matter.

Busch's attorney, Roger E. Chapin, sought to show that it was always Democratic campaign material.

MacLeod also denied that he had dictated a memorandum calling upon every employé to address 20 letters to friends prior to the November election, urging them to vote the Democratic ticket, altho he admitted ordering it circulated in the office where employés had to initial it and turn their letters over to him.

Stenographer Refutes Story.

MacLeod said his "recollection" was that the memorandum had been dictated over the telephone by some one to Miss Fannie Matschman, a stenographer.

This afternoon Miss Matschman took the stand and testified that MacLeod had dictated the memorandum. She was asked to produce her stenographic notes of this dictation and did so, reading it into the commission's record.

The memorandum was dated last Oct. 26, and directed employés to write the 20 letters, but did contain the reservation that "civil service employés may do so, if they so desire." It was stated, however, that a list of those complying would be handed over to Warren E. Brockhouse, former Democratic legislator and now "personnel director" in the highway division, altho carried on the pay roll as an engineer's assistant.

Tells of 1938 Activity.

Miss Matschman also testified that during the 1938 campaign, when the Democrats were seeking to elect Senator Scott W. Lucas, MacLeod told her that "there is a little annoyance upstairs" over Busch's refusal to join the Illinoisans, which solicited campaign funds from state pay rollers, and that Busch "wouldn't be there very long."

The nature of the "annoyance upstairs" was not explained, but it was assumed to mean an officer high in the division and perhaps the late F. Lynden Smith, director of public works and head of the Illinoisans.

At one point in Chapin's cross-examination of MacLeod, Chairman W. Emery Lancaster of the commission remarked to Chapin, "After all, we're not investigating MacLeod."

"Not yet," said the Republican member of the commission, Maj. Gen. John V. Clinnin.

Johnson "Doesn't Recall."

Johnson, MacLeod's assistant who was the co-target of Busch's charge that the highway division was being pushed into the status of a Democratic campaign agency, testified that Busch wouldn't coöperate with him and on one occasion had said, "to hell with you!"

Johnson said, "I don't remember," when asked whether he had ordered any highway employés to work in the Democratic headquarters at a Springfield hotel, but a little later the employés themselves said that he had ordered them to the hotel or

GOVERNMENT TO POUR $2,679,725 MORE IN CRAB ORCHARD LAKE

In the next 12 months $2,679,725 will be spent on continued development of the Crab Orchard lake project in Williamson county, Charles E. Miner, state WPA administrator, announced yesterday. Approximately 2,657 men will be employed on the new work, he said.

The WPA will finance $2,000,271 of the cost and the soil conservation service will provide the remainder, Miner said. Two new dams and additional recreation areas are included in the plans.

"This will correlate and complete previous work for flood control, soil and water conservation, and recreational facilities on 31,000 acres of federally owned property," Miner said.

to do political work in the office—both during working hours and at night.

Those who so testified included Mrs. Hazel Constant, Mrs. Helen Turner, Miss Laura Churchill, and Gilbert G. Zollinger.

Lancaster Is Indignant.

Chairman Lancaster conducted an indignant cross-examination of Zollinger when the latter testified he saw civil service commission examination questions once before he was to take an auditing examination.

"Just a minute," Lancaster said, "if any examination questions have been made available, we'll have a real investigation here."

Zollinger said he had seen the questions three years ago in MacLeod's office. MacLeod admitted he had obtained questions asked at a previous examination to show auditors who had never taken one, but said he had obtained them from the commission offices and did not know that this was not permitted.

It developed that prior to eight years ago, any person could look at previous civil service examination questions since they were compiled in the state library. The Lancaster commission discontinued this practice, however, and the chairman said he wanted it clearly understood that no person may examine back questions today.

GREEN TO SET UP INDUSTRY-LABOR DEFENSE COUNCIL

Governor-Elect Dwight H. Green announced yesterday that his plan to effect coöperation between his administration and the representatives of labor, industry, and agriculture has become a definite proposal to create the Illinois Council of Industry and Labor for Defense.

Mutual exchange of information and suggestions, he said, would constitute the general purpose of the council, but as an example of the definite tasks he would propose for it he named the possibility of coöperation for the training of skilled workers in the fields in which they are needed and the resumption of the apprenticeship system, which, he said, almost disappeared during the depression.

"Illinois' geographical position makes it the strategic location for permanent defense manufacturies," he said. "I believe that the strong influence of such a council would bring a greater share of industry to the state."

SIMPSON QUITS HIS G. O. P. POST IN N. Y. COUNTY

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Congressman Elect Kenneth F. Simpson resigned tonight as chairman of the New York county Republican committee in a move that political leaders interpreted as an intraparty victory for the forces of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

Previously Simpson had lost his Republican national committee post and state chairmanship to the Dewey bloc. He bolted the district attorney during the preprimary Presidential campaign and came out for the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie.

Simpson was elected to the congressional seat vacated by Representative Bruce Barton, who ran unsuccessfully for senator in November. His term as county chairman would have expired next September.

Prior to the recent Presidential campaign Simpson, a leader of the progressive wing of the Republican party in New York state, long had been a Dewey supporter in Dewey's campaigns for district attorney and for governor.

NATION TO GUARD IDEALS, STELLE SAYS AT ARMORY

"American citizens do not fear to protect, to fight, and to die for, if necessary, those principles we are determined to preserve," Gov. John Stelle said last night in an address dedicating the new Northwest armory at North and Kedzie avenues.

Several thousand persons attended the ceremonies. Among them were Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, who as head of the state armory board initiated the project; Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commander of the 6th Corps area, and Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, adjutant general of Illinois. Gov. Stelle described the armory as part of the united effort to build an adequate national defense.

The armory cost $1,300,000. It will be the home of three regiments, totaling 1,100 men. These are the 108th medical, the 108th quartermaster, and special 33d division troops.

ALDERMAN TAKES UP THE PROBLEM OF STRAPHANGER

Ald. Richard M. Walsh [36th] told the city council yesterday that he is concerned about relieving the "hustle and bustle and strained nerves of people who ride elevated trains, street cars, and buses during the rush hours."

He said a survey showed that from 4 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. on a normal work day 385,349 persons left the loop on those facilities. Of that number 247,991 left between 5:30 and 6:30. He showed similar figures for the morning rush.

Walsh recommended the aldermen confer with representatives of employers to see if working hours could not be staggered to reduce the rush hour traffic. His suggestion was referred to the transportation committee.

Mayor Proclaims Tuesday a Holiday at City Hall

Mayor Kelly yesterday proclaimed that Tuesday, the day before Christmas, would be a holiday for city workers. "They should have time to do their Christmas shopping," he told the city council.

STELLE CANCELS AGREEMENT FOR LIQUOR STAMPS

Avers Competitive Bidding Is Eliminated.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 20 [Special].—Gov. John Stelle today canceled the state liquor stamp contract held by the American Decalcomania company and directed the state finance department to advertise for new bids immediately.

The governor's action recalled charges made in the primary campaign last April that the state was paying too much for the 100 million liquor stamps it uses annually and that a savings of at least $35,000 a year could be made.

Stelle echoed these charges today in his statement, saying that the state is now paying 75 cents per thousand for the American company's stamps whereas several other companies had offered to produce equally good stamps at a greatly reduced price.

Headed by Eisenberg.

The American Decalcomania company is headed by George Eisenberg, friend of the late Governor Henry Horner and a cousin of Ald. J. M. Arvey of Chicago's 24th ward.

In view of the contract cancellation, observers in the statehouse got a smile out of another of today's executive orders in which the governor promoted Arvey from captain to the rank of major in the judge advocate's section of the 33d division staff, Illinois National Guard.

The promotion, the governor said, was recommended by Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, division commander, and by Brig. Gen. Lawrence V. Regan before the latter retired from the office of adjutant general.

Stelle directed the finance department to draw specifications for the new liquor stamp bids to encourage competition and said that the contract being cancelled eliminated competitive bidding. The contract was awarded under former Finance Director S. L. Nudleman, and would have expired normally next July 1.

Statement by Governor.

The governor's statement follows:

"After a detailed study of the liquor stamp contract held by the American Decalcomania company and the facts of liquor stamp contracts several years back, I today have ordered cancelation of the contract.

"Prior to 1936 specifications for liquor stamps eliminated competitive bidding by requiring that a safety tint appear between the layers of paper, a requirement which only one company could meet because of a patent on such a stamp. This requirement, however, added no safety factor to the stamp, altho the prices were about $1.35 a thousand.

In 1936 the same specifications, requiring the safety tint between layers of paper were stated in the proposal for bids, altho it was pointed out at the time that this requirement eliminated competitive bidding and raised the price. In other words, such a proposal was illegal. Due to complaints of prospective bidders, the specifications were amended to allow stamps of equal usefulness but without the patented feature.

"The price did come down as predicted and the contract went to the American Decalcomania company at 70 cents per thousand, even tho there were other lower responsible bids for similar stamps having equal safety factors.

"Specifications on which bids were taken for the liquor stamp contract for 1939-'41 biennium were amended again to require a special patented stamp, even tho reliable stamp companies continued to offer proposals for stamps with equal safety features at remarkable reductions. The American Decalcomania company was awarded the contract on a price of 75 cents per thousand.

"In my opinion the contract now in force causes a needless waste of the state's money and the specifications were illegal because they eliminated competitive bidding. The contract has accordingly been canceled and I have advised the director of finance to advertise immediately as required by law for bids for the printing on specifications which will promote competitive bidding and bring the lowest price possible for stamps having quality and safety factors equal to those now in use."

CARTER, STATE FINANCE CHIEF, ILL IN HOSPITAL

Murphysboro, Ill., Dec. 20 [Special].—A. M. Carter, director of the state department of finance and president of the First National Bank of Murphysboro, suffered an acute heart attack today. At St. Andrew's hospital it was said he was in no imminent danger.

Carter had returned to his home here from Springfield to spend the week-end as had been his custom. He reportedly had been in his usual good health.

Mrs. William P. Buckner with her baby son.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—William P. Buckner, one time playboy financier, returned home late today to join his wife and their 10 weeks old son after being paroled from the Lewisburg federal penitentiary where he had served nine months of a two year sentence for mail fraud.

William P. Buckner. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Mrs. Buckner, the former Adelaide Moffett, a night club singer, said she had arranged her professional engagements so that she and her husband could have a belated honeymoon over Christmas.

They were married shortly before his conviction with two others March 26 in connection with the manipulation of defaulted Philippine railway bonds. Mrs. Buckner is the daughter of former Federal Housing Administrator James A. Moffett.

Buckner will be able to drive his wife to her night club engagements, but must stay outside. One of the specifications of his parole forbids him to enter such places.

STELLE DEMANDS QUIZ ON 'EFFORT' TO PAROLE KILLER

Charges Newspaper Plot to 'Smear' Him.

Gov. John Stelle in Springfield yesterday directed Attorney General John E. Cassidy to make a complete investigation of efforts to obtain a parole for William Madden, a convicted murderer. The governor said he was convinced there was a connection between the parole efforts and attacks made against his administration by a Chicago afternoon newspaper. The newspaper denied the charge.

William Madden.

Madden, sentenced to life in prison Oct. 30, 1933, for the murder in Chicago July 18 of Emil Onesta, is not eligible for parole until 1953. He was sent to Joliet penitentiary by Judge Benjamin P. Epstein in Cook county Criminal court.

Falsehoods Are Charged.

Stelle, in his letter to Cassidy, said that since he took office "a deliberate campaign of misrepresentation, misinformation, and falsehoods has been conducted against me by the Chicago Herald-American." Several days ago, the letter said, Stelle was approached by a Herald-American reporter and told the matter could be "straightened out" if the governor would confer with the newspaper's "front office."

Stelle's letter stated further that during a conference with a Herald-American representative he was asked about a parole for Madden and told that the latter was a brother-in-law of an official in that newspaper's circulation department.

The Herald-American, in denying the governor's charge, said it had not campaigned against Stelle, had not asked him for a parole for Madden, and that Madden was "not known to any official of the Herald-American, and certainly is not related to any officials on the paper in the circulation department, or any other department."

Denies "Smear" Charges.

The Herald-American also denied that Reporter Charles Finston had been sent to Springfield to conduct a "smear" campaign against Stelle, as the latter charged.

Madden, now 34 years old, was a member of the old "42" gang of west side hoodlums. According to court testimony, Madden and Michael de Stefano, a fugitive, shot and killed Onesta while trying to shoot Frank Laino, chauffeur for "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, gang leader and public enemy. Onesta was an innocent bystander. Madden denied the charges.

LABOR REPORTED URGING GREEN TO RETAIN DURKIN

G.O.P. Chiefs Roused; Protests Planned.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Among the many callers yesterday at the office of Dwight H. Green, governor elect, were Reuben G. Soderstrom and Victor Olander, president and secretary, respectively, of the Illinois State Federation of Labor. It was reported that they were there to urge Green to reappoint Martin P. Durkin as director of labor.

Word of their visit raised a storm among Republicans and particularly among Republican labor leaders who supported Green in both the primary and the election. They declared their intention of presenting their views to Green.

Green Silent on Reports.

"Soderstrom and Olander did call on me, but that is all I can say on that subject," said the governor elect, strictly adhering to his policy of silence concerning what occurs in his job conferences.

But his visitors themselves, it was said, had told others that they were seeking the reappointment of Durkin, a member of the Horner-Stelle cabinet for the last seven years.

The feeling caused among Green's own labor supporters was aroused by reflection of Democratic activity of Soderstrom, Olander, and Durkin during all recent state campaigns.

"It was Soderstrom and Olander who engineered the minority indorsement of Roosevelt at the state convention at Rockford last September," said one of them.

Several Resolutions Tabled.

"The committee on resolutions tabled several Roosevelt resolutions, and the convention as a whole stood by the committee. But at a late hour when nearly all those present were their own followers, Soderstrom, in the chair, gaveled thru a motion following the same course it did in 1936—and that was an indorsement of Roosevelt on his record during his first term.

"The same leaders also tried to put thru the joint legislative committee, representing the federation and other labor organizations, an indorsement of Harry B. Hershey, Green's Democratic opponent. They were stopped only because they were outnumbered by Green supporters. Soderstrom used to be a Republican, but he has been a Democrat for several years."

The Green for Governor Labor organization was headed by Thomas J. Murray and Michael J. Kennedy of the electrical workers. It is understood they favor the appointment of Edward F. Moore, former chairman of the Cook county Republican committee, as labor director, but have not yet talked with Green. Moore has been identified with labor for many years and at one time was president of the Chicago Building Trades council.

U-BOATS ATTACK 2 MORE SHIPS IN SEA GRAVEYARD

Strike at Vessels West of Irish Coast.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Two ships were attacked by submarines about 450 miles west of the Irish coast today in what appeared to be the second attack on a convoy in three days. The distress calls, heard here by Mackay radio, came from the British steamship Carlton and the Norwegian freighter Varangberg.

Both gave positions in the same area—the area that in recent months has become the graveyard of British ships carrying war materials to the beleaguered island.

The first report today came from the Carlton, which at 6:30 a. m. [Chicago time] radioed that a submarine crossed her bow and then launched a torpedo.

Second Report Received

Just 36 minutes later came a second report, this time from the Varangberg, which did not immediately identify herself. Later the vessel was identified by Mackay as the 2,842 ton Varangberg, out of Oslo, a former Great Lakes craft built in 1915 at Ashtabula, O. The Varangberg had been trading recently between Tampa, Fla., and Hull, England

"Being attacked by submarine, 55:31 north latitude, 19:25 west longitude," said her message.

The 5,162 ton Carlton, which was built in 1924, is owned by R. Chapman & Sons and operated out of Newcastle.

The last previous U-boat assault against a convoy was reported Wednesday when two tankers and a freighter reported within four hours that they had been torpedoed.

Two Tankers Attacked.

These ships, the 12,196 ton British Napier Star, the 9,860 ton Norwegian Dolfonn, and the 10,746 ton Dutch Pendrecht, the latter two tankers, placed themselves somewhat north of the scene of today's attacks.

Meanwhile the German radio said in a broadcast heard here that the 11,337 ton French steamship Cuba was intercepted by the British while en route from Martinique to Casablanca, Morocco, and taken to Tristan, British island in the South Atlantic ocean.

Greek Ship Cancels S O S.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Dec. 20 (AP).—The American freighter Flying Fish reported today she had picked up a signal canceling an S O S from the Greek freighter Potaro. The cancelation apparently was flashed within an hour after the distress call was sent. In the meantime, the Potaro had not been heard from. Her S O S was unexplained.

Sinks 208,975 Tons of Ships.

BERLIN, Dec. 20 (AP).—A German submarine commanded by Lieutenant Commander Schepke today was credited officially with sinking its fortieth merchant ship, bringing its total tonnage sunk to 208,975 tons.

EXPECT HALIFAX TO BE BRITAIN'S NEW U. S. ENVOY

Eden Again May Be Foreign Minister.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 2, Saturday.—Information obtained by The Tribune correspondent from a well informed source last evening that Viscount Halifax will be the next British ambassador to Washington, D. C., and Anthony Eden, war minister, will succeed him as head of the foreign office seemingly is corroborated by reports in this morning's London papers. Altho the foreign office told THE TRIBUNE the reports so far were speculative and no official announcement was likely to be forthcoming for the next 24 hours, the Daily Mail declared Lord Halifax's name already has been submitted to President Roosevelt for approval.

Viscount Halifax.
[Acme Photo.]

Lord Halifax's appointment to Washington after David Lloyd George, world war prime minister, turned down the job, and Eden's return to his old position at the foreign office, which he held from 1935 to 1938, may pave the way, it is suggested, for a general shakeup in the government.

Important Job for Lloyd George.

Lloyd George, it is indicated, will be invited to join in an important capacity, possibly as minister of agriculture. His knowledge of munitions production is also profound and, it is stated, he may be given the responsibility of coördinating the entire war effort on the home front while Prime Minister Winston Churchill concentrates on prosecution of the war and direction of strategy.

The three men most prominently mentioned to succeed Eden in the war ministry are L. M. Amery, now secretary for India; Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, president of the board of trade, and former War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha.

Sir Walter Layton, famous economist, who has just returned from a mission to the United States on behalf of the supply ministry, is suggested for the post of British minister to Washington to assist Halifax or for an important job here.

Much Criticism of Halifax.

Altho newspapers stress Lord Halifax's diplomatic capabilities and the fact that his appointment underlines the "immense importance" the British government attachés to representation in Washington, his handling of foreign affairs has aroused several political storms.

Lord Halifax has been much criticized since the outbreak of the war for his failure to make a real agreement with Russia before the late Neville Chamberlain guaranteed the integrity of Poland. Left wingers particularly objected to him as having been one of the key men in the peace of Munich.

MYSTERY RAIDER DROPS BOMBS ON DUBLIN SUBURB

Capital Excited; Country Area Struck, Too.

DUBLIN, Dec. 20 (AP).—Two bombs from a single unidentified raiding plane fell near neutral, brilliantly lighted Dublin tonight, injuring three persons and damaging several houses in the suburb of Dun Laoghaire [formerly Kingstown]. The town is in Dublin county, seven miles from the city itself, and is a mail packet station for communication with Liverpool and Holyhead.

Bombs also fell in Monaghan county, which is near the frontier of belligerent Northern Ireland.

The bombs—the first of the war anywhere near neutral Ireland's capital—sent a wave of excitement thru gayly decorated Dublin, where a round of holiday parties was about to begin. The suburban incident occurred about 7:30 p. m., and about half an hour later the same plane or another loosed two bombs in the rural district of Monaghan county, injuring a farmer and damaging two farmhouses.

Plane Drops Flare.

The Dun Laoghaire plane flew in low from the harbor and dropped a flare. Then the first bomb crashed into a busy street and blasted out a crater 15 feet deep and 30 feet wide. A smaller bomb fell in the back garden of a home about 40 yards away from the road.

There were remarkable escapes among pedestrians. One man standing 20 yards away from the point of impact of the first bomb was flung across the street and covered with debris, but was not hurt.

[Altho this was the first report of bombs landing near Dublin, both explosive and incendiary missiles have landed at other points in Ireland during the battle of Britain. For each previous bombing, one of which proved fatal to three girls, the German government has apologized.]

Blast Liverpool District.

LONDON, Dec. 21, Saturday (AP).—Germany's air force gave the Merseyside area around Liverpool its worst pounding of the war last night and early today. A record number of bombers were blasting the district.

One town was reported by the British Press association to be suffering indiscriminate bombing, while at Liverpool a hotel and other commercial buildings were struck. Early estimates of casualties were low, however.

Earlier last night bombs fell over wide areas of Britain, including the east coast, inland, north Wales, and western Scotland. In London the all clear signal came shortly before 3:30 a. m. after a period of intermittent raids.

These night assaults followed a day of light attacks in which an unoccupied air raid shelter was bombed in London.

The air ministry reported a violent bombing campaign in the British counteroffensive. In Thursday night raids, it declared, British bombers hit the Bergen-Oslo railroad in Norway, often used by the Germans for military purposes, and a series of oil plants, storage facilities, and power stations in the Ruhr.

Germans Bomb Factory.

BERLIN, Dec. 20 (AP).—DNB, official German news agency, reported tonight that German planes had dive bombed a factory district on the north side of Chelmsford, seat of Essex county, northeast of London.

Syria Dissolves World War Veterans', Orphans' Groups

DAMASCUS, Syria, Dec. 20 (AP).—The French high commissioner for Syria today decreed the dissolution of all organizations of ex-service men, world war veterans, war mutilated and war orphans thruout the mandated territory.

Air Base Started

Where the navy has started preliminary work.

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 20 (AP).—Preliminary work on construction of a naval air base in the American Samoan islands has started, it was learned unofficially today. Rose island, a 25 acre coral atoll, was believed to be the location of the base.

COST OF LIVING IN BRITAIN RISES ANOTHER 1.5 PCT.

Coal, Clothes, Fish Prices Increase.

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP).—The cost of living in England went up another 1½ per cent in November, the ministry of labor and national service announced today. The cost of certain kinds of fish raised the food figure by 1 per cent, while the cost of clothing went up 5 per cent. There also were increases in the price of coal in some districts.

TRAP PRICE CHEATERS

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 20.—The food ministry denies the girls were chosen especially for their glamor, but the 15 who are having the greatest success in obtaining convictions against shopkeepers for violating the food laws are pretty, an Evening Standard reporter insisted tonight. The girls visit 25 to 35 shops daily in the Hendon district and so far have bagged 59 tradesmen who have been fined more than $1,200.

The girls are not permitted to coax the shopkeepers to violate laws, but the tradesmen seem more willing to stretch the restrictions in their favor than for men.

Overcharging and refusing to sell certain scarce goods unless other things are bought are the principal offenses, altho there have been some ration violations.

A more serious complaint voiced by the Evening Standard was against the daily wastage of "carloads of valuable food" which, the paper said, is carted away from the London vegetable markets "and thrown onto farm fields for cattle or to rot down for manure."

ITALIANS IN TRAP; SHELL ADVANCING TANKS AT BARDIA

Port in Libya Completely Surrounded.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 20 (AP).—The British army of the Nile had completely surrounded Bardia tonight and was moving up reinforcements for a final assault on the Libyan port.

Trapped within the Italian base, 30 miles inside the Libyan border, were an estimated 20,000 Italians. They stood behind 17 miles of concrete pill boxes, artillery batteries, machinegun nests, and tank pits.

British advance forces were reported to be engaged in a fierce struggle with the Italians, who were pouring heavy artillery shells on the enemy's slowly advancing tank and motorized units.

Attack Resembles Siege.

The encirclement of Bardia resembled a siege, with British batteries firmly established at all points around the town shelling its defenses almost continuously, while flyers bombed the garrison repeatedly and warships pounded away at the waterfront.

British warships were said to have run in very close—into Bardia's inner harbor under heavy fire—and to have sunk three Italian supply ships in a single day. A single prowling British submarine was credited with sinking a heavily laden supply ship and a big Italian ship south of Italy during the last week.

British forces mopping up in the desert area fought to oust an Italian garrison from the oasis of Giarabub, 130 miles south of the coast and about 20 miles west of the Egyptian frontier.

Colonial cavalrymen from Australia engaged the Italians near the oasis for three days, taking some prisoners and equipment.

The rest of the Italians escaped, holed up and tonight were reported still holding out against heavy British pressure.

Predict Line of Retreat Cut.

Only a small force was holding the oasis but there were indications of reinforcements coming from outlying posts. Nevertheless, the garrison's line of retreat will be cut off, military sources said, if the British continue their advance along the coast.

West of Bardia to Derna, 175 miles inside Libya, British air and naval units pounded the Italian line of retreat.

Derna, a British air force communique said, was left practically in flames by bombers which made direct hits on barracks, motor transport parks, and police headquarters last night.

Point to Size of British Force.

ROME, Dec. 20 (AP).—A semiofficial bulletin issued here today by Stefania, Italian news agency, said Italian troops are "gallantly facing" 1,500 airplanes, 425,000 troops, and 500,000 tons of warships. It described Britain's forces as crack troops, recruited in England, Australia, New Zealand, and elsewhere in the British empire.

[British sources have indicated that British army strength in Africa is between 250,000 and 300,000 men, altho British leaders have referred recently to considerable reinforcements. Britain's naval and air strength are military secrets.]

DIRKSEN BLASTS LAG IN DEFENSE; CALLS FOR QUIZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—In a statement demanding a congressional investigation of the lag in the nation's defense program, Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] blamed "politics" and President Roosevelt's insistence on passing on all defense matters personally for the bogging down of the armament program.

"The bogging down and utter confusion which presently besets our national defense effort needs strong language and stronger action," Dirksen said. "If there be any doubt about the confusion, bewilderment, chaos, misdirection, discordance, inefficiency, and mysticism which now beset this program one need only visit the defense establishments in Washington and get an indelible picture of rampant confusion.

"Thousands of people have been added to the rolls. Many twiddle their thumbs. Business men come to Washington and drift aimlessly around trying to get pointed information on their problems. And all the while, we are told of the terrible urgency with which this preparation must go forward."

Navy Defense Blueprints Stolen from an Engineer

Duanesburg, N. Y., Dec. 20 (AP).—State police said today their criminal investigation bureau is investigating theft of navy defense blueprints from Russell Keefer, production engineer of the New York Shipbuilding corporation, Camden, N. J. They stated the prints were stolen from Keefer's car while he was dining Thursday night at an inn near Schenectady, N. Y.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20 [Special].—Capt. Joseph A. Gainard, who sailed the steamship City of Flint safely home after it had been taken to Murmansk, Russia, by a German prize crew, was awarded the navy cross here today. President Roosevelt's citation paid tribute to the "skill, fine judgment and devotion to duty" of the captain.

In the navy department offices Gainard was met by Gene Tunney, former pugilistic champion, who added his congratulations. Tunney today was commissioned a naval lieutenant commander and informed he was to be called at once to active duty as physical director of the naval aviation stations at Pensacola and Jacksonville, Fla., and Corpus Christi, Tex.

N. AFRICAN CHIEF GOES TO VICHY TO CONSULT PETAIN

Cabinet Seeks Better German Relations.

VICHY, France, Dec. 20 (AP).—Gen. Auguste Nogues, governor of France's North African colonies, and Georges Scapini, blind deputy who has been negotiating for the release of French war prisoners, arrived here tonight for conferences with Chief of State Philippe Petain.

Nogues flew here from Morocco after the marshal spent the day in long and earnest talks with members of his cabinet in an effort to put German-French relations back on their feet. [Most of this dispatch was stopped by censor.]

[Nogues has had recent conferences with Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander of the French African forces, whose continued stay in Africa has led to speculation that he is opposed to the German-French collaboration sponsored by the ousted Vice Premier Pierre Laval.]

Nazi Coöperation Cools.

French officials frankly admitted that the Nazi attitude toward collaboration had cooled since Laval's departure from the cabinet. Important decisions by the Vichy government were expected tomorrow in an effort to regain German cordiality.

[Men in the know in Berlin, where Laval's ouster is known as the "putsch of Vichy," said Germany had learned one great lesson from the dismissal of the vice premier and foreign minister of Petain's régime: That there exists an influential group at wor kwithin the French government to scuttle, if possible, attempts at French-German rapprochement.]

Doubt Petain Wants Laval.

Altho the return of Laval to the Petain government was considered by some observers as a means of restoring the stalemated German-French negotiations, it was believed unlikely that Petain would favor this.

A government spokesman, asked for comment on border warfare between French Indo-China and Thailand [Siam], remarked that except for "dissidence" in certain parts of Africa the entire government is grouped behind the Petain régime.

He pointed to the refusal of Indo-China's governor general, Admiral Jean Decoux, to discuss peace with Thailand so long as the population was bombed by Thai planes.

CROWN PRINCESS JULIANA VISITS NEW YORK CITY

New York, Dec. 20 [Special].—Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands arrived here this afternoon for a three day visit.

There was a minimum of fanfare as the heiress to the Dutch throne arrived from Washington, where she has been the guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Netherlands authorities had requested there be no demonstration.

In her party were Dr. Alexander Loudon, Netherlands minister to the United States, and Mrs. Loudon.

GREEK BAYONETS ROUT ITALIANS IN MOUNTAIN FORTS

Fascists Yield Positions in Klisura Sector.

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 20 (AP).—Italian positions in the mountains behind Tepeleni and Klisura were reported falling "one after another" to bayonet-charging Greeks today. A general Fascist retreat from the entire sector was said to be imminent.

The Greeks said their troops were proceeding methodically in cleaning up Italian resistance in these remaining outposts before making any attempt to occupy the two towns, which guard an important highway leading into eastern Albania. Artillery hauled into mountain emplacements thru snow waist deep was said to be continually pounding the Fascists.

Bombers Blast Valona.

With another Greek force battling up the Adriatic coast toward Chimara, the British air force command announced its bombers again blasted Valona, Italian port of entry farther up the coast. Military barracks, a gasoline dump and a transport park were declared reduced to flaming ruins.

Coupled with this raid, carried out yesterday, the British reported another squadron raided the Krionero area, scoring direct hits and starting fires among numerous buildings.

[The British admiralty announced in London that British warships stole up to the Albanian coast Wednesday night and pumped nearly 100 tons of shells into Valona, second only to the Italians' chief port of debarkation at Durazzo.]

Italian Attacks Repulsed.

On the northern front, where six days of raging snowstorms have put a crimp in operations, the Greeks said the Italians attempted counter-attacks, only to be repulsed with the loss of more of Premier Mussolini's men and war materials, including two batteries of artillery. The Greek high command said a lieutenant colonel was among the Italian prisoners.

Advices from the front said the Greeks made considerable progress beyond the Ostravitza mountain range where the Italians were said to be making a determined stand with a number of mortars.

Confirm Nazi Planes Aid Italy.

ROME, Dec. 20 (AP).—German transport planes and German Stuka [dive bombers]—the latter with Italian flyers—are serving Italy's forces in Albania, an informed source said today.

The transports, such as those the Nazis used to convey troops and equipment to Norway, now are ferrying Italian reinforcements across the Adriatic, this source said. [This is confirmation of a report on Thursday from Struga, Jugo-Slavia, at the Albanian frontier.]

The presence of German flyers, he said, is believed to have caused reports abroad that German troops are in Italy but they apparently are unfounded. Italian flown Stukas were said to be participating in attacks against the Greeks.

Area of Quake

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Shaded area is where yesterday's earthquake was felt in the east.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 20 (AP).—The origin of earth tremors that shook the northeast early today from Pennsylvania to southeastern Canada was placed tonight 25 to 50 miles underground in the Lake Ossipee, N. H., region by Prof. L. Don Leet, chief Harvard seismologist.

The shock, recorded by the Harvard observatory at 2:27.29 a. m., and lasting about 30 seconds, was felt in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and southeastern Canada.

Thousands were thrown into panic, but there were no reports of personal injury and damage outside the Ossipee area was slight.

While the temblor was estimated by some as New England's worst since 1755, Dr. Leet would say only that today's was the strongest in 10 years and had it centered in such a populous city as Boston there might have been greater damage.

JUST 'COWBOYS' OF AIR, SAYS LAD OF WAR FLYERS

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 20 (AP).—Axel Gorm Andersen, 5 years old, of New York, homeward bound from the war, thinks of British and German airmen as "air cowboys." Traveling on his own all the way from Trondheim, Norway, to New York City, where his family lives, Axel arrived here today by plane from Germany. The Red Cross will put him aboard the S. S. Siboney.

Axel himself wants to be a cowboy, and "ride and shoot." Speaking of the air battles over Trondheim last April, he says he "isn't afraid of planes" and that he can tell British planes from German planes by the sound of their motors. On the flight to Lisbon Axel sat with the German pilots most of the time. They gave him a present for his help.

REPORT ENGLAND AND MEXICO MAY RENEW RELATIONS

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Dec. 20 (AP).—The newspaper Ultimas Noticias today said it understood the foreign office is conducting preliminary conversations with two British government representatives regarding renewal of diplomatic relations between Mexico and Britain.

Resumption of relations, suspended at the time of the oil expropriation act here in 1938, long has been predicted by informed sources.

AXIS TIGHTENS MILITARY PACT AS CURB ON U. S.

Sets Up War Groups for Berlin, Rome, Tokio.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 20.—For the first time since this war began "the terrific risk entailed in a two front war for America at the present stage of world rearmament" appears in German discussions of the world situation. The Hamburger Fremdenblatt brought up the subject in an evidently inspired editorial which emphasized the significance of the three power military collaboration pact between Germany, Japan, and Italy in relation to America.

Simultaneously, authorities announced that the work of strengthening the pact as planned by the three authoritarian powers was being taken up in Berlin, Rome, and Tokio by special military and economic commissions composed of representatives of all three countries.

This action was regarded in some quarters as a reminder to the United States of the hazards of giving limitless aid to Britain. It was said that establishment of the commissions made a "living organism" of the pact, which pledges collaboration against any new enemy in Europe or Asia.

Calls for Nazi Leadership.

The Fremdenblatt editorial elaborated the German theory that in the future the European continent must be under absolute German leadership.

"In the future the continent must remain free from the interference of a power that does not think along European lines," it said. "In the last analysis, friends or enemies will be recognized by the manner in which they react to the demand that Anglo-Saxons should not be the only ones to have the right to move freely thruout the world.

"This has led to a conflict in the question of Europe's own existence, the same as there is disagreement in the Pacific between the big Japanese empire and the United States."

The German public is told that Japan is trying to come to terms with America "the same as Germany tried to bring England to reason in the years before the war." Japan finds itself "hampered in its natural aspirations in the Pacific thru the imperialistic claims of the United States," the editorial said.

Concerned Over Italy.

BERLIN, Dec. 20 (AP).—Enough evidence of concern over stumbling Italian military operations in Greece and Africa appeared here tonight to give some support to widely heard reports that Germany has decided to crutch up her ailing ally.

Any news of actual military plans could not be reported even if known. But occasional chuckles once heard over Italian reverses in Greece were reported in strictly private quarters to have disappeared since the British naval air force launched its smashing attack on the Italian navy at Taranto and British forces compelled a somewhat precipitous withdrawal of Fascist forces from Egypt.

[An informed Rome source confirmed today a report that German transport planes are carrying Italian troops to Albania and said Italian flown Stuka dive bombers are in Italian service.]

Semiofficial German news agencies assert that, contrary to foreign reports, there isn't the slightest change in the German-Italian decision to carry the war to uncompromising victory.

With the possible view to drawing attention away from Italian reverses, Adolf Hitler's own Voelkischer Beobachter declared that, after all, the war was going to be won in the zone of the British isles and not elsewhere.

From time to time before previous campaigns were launched just such "leads" were put out by Berlin papers.

The growing Italian difficulties in Albania and Africa the last week have prompted some neutral observers to look for some startling development even before the new year in order to make American aid less difficult to overcome.

ROOSEVELT PUTS DEFENSE POWER IN SUPERCOUNCIL

Adds Sidney Hillman to His New Council.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—President Roosevelt today announced his plan for the creation of a new superagency with full responsibility for national defense production. He stated emphatically, however, that William S. Knudsen, who will be director of the new supercouncil, will not be a czar, a poohbah, or a second President of the United States.

W. S. Knudsen [top] and Sidney Hillman. [Acme Photos.]

Apparently as a last minute concession to the New Deal radicals, who have vigorously resisted the influence of industrialists on the existing national defense advisory commission, Mr. Roosevelt designated Sidney Hillman, former vice president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, as associate director of the new superagency. Hillman is the labor member of the advisory defense commission.

Stimson and Knox Included.

Other members of the superagency will be Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox. As outlined in official quarters only yesterday, the proposed new agency originally was intended to include only Knudsen, Stimson, and Knox.

Mr. Roosevelt explained his new defense production plan to reporters after a conference with the advisory defense commission. He said it would function above and independently of the seven member advisory commission and would exercise all the powers that he could constitutionally delegate. He said the new agency would have broad powers and that its decisions would not require his approval. He added, however, that he would take up with the board any decisions which he deemed contrary to the best interests of the national defense.

Knudsen's Status in Doubt.

Asked whether Knudsen, the director, and Hillman, the associate director, would have equal authority, the President said he expected all decisions of the agency to be unanimous.

This statement resulted in much speculation and left Knudsen's status in doubt. Stimson indicated yesterday Knudsen would be the real boss of the supercouncil, but if unanimous decisions are to be required he would have no more authority than Hillman, Stimson, and Knox.

Knudsen, the production coördinator, and Hillman, the labor representative, have disagreed frequently on the advisory defense commission. Hillman has sought to deny defense contracts to all establishments held guilty by the C. I. O. or the National Labor Relations board by violating the Wagner act. Knudsen, as well as the army and navy department, has been concerned with production for defense, not with labor policies. They feel labor laws should be enforced by the agencies designated by law, and not by the defense commission.

Three Principles Enumerated.

Mr. Roosevelt said he was guided by three principles in setting up the new agency: [1] that under the constitution there cannot be a second president, [2] that the government of the United States is a government of laws, not of men, [3] that every process of production consists of three elements, which in practically no case are embraced in any one man's experience.

These elements he described as [1] the combination of buyer and user, [2] management, and [3] labor. It was impossible, he said, to find any one "czar" or "poohbah" who combined all three elements in his person.

This observation apparently was a slap at demands that Mr. Knudsen be given a free hand to manage defense production.

"Poohbah" Recalls Criticism.

Mr. Roosevelt's use of the term "Poohbah" recalled one of the most frequent criticisms of the defense program under his direction. Poohbah, a character in Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "The Mikado," holds a ludicrous number of incongrubous jobs, and it has been charged that the same is true of Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would create the new agency by executive order, within the next 10 days, under authority vested in him by the government reorganization act of 1939. It authorizes him to create an office of "emergency management," and the new superagency will be known officially as the "office for production management."

Three Main Subdivisions.

The agency will have three main subdivisions as follows:

1. The production of munitions, the personnel of which has not been determined.
2. Office for defense purchasing, headed by Donald M. Nelson, purchasing coördinator for the advisory commission.
3. The defense priority board, which will have authority to give army and navy orders precedence over private orders.

Mr. Roosevelt said the personnel of the priority board might vary, but that it would consist at first of Knudsen for production, Hillman for labor, Leon Henderson for prices, Edward R. Stettinius Jr. for raw materials, and Nelson for purchasing. The same functions are exercised by these men on the existing advisory commission.

Refuses to Concede Lag.

When asked whether the new agency would be expected to speed up armament production, Mr. Roosevelt refused to concede that the defense program has bogged down. He replied tartly that production has been speeding up every day.

This statement contradicted Knudsen's lament on Dec. 13 that aircraft production has lagged 30 per cent behind schedule, that the whole defense effort is "not satisfactory enough to warrant hopes that everything is all well."

There are increasing indications that the administration will move to head off a congressional investigation of the defense muddle at the forthcoming session, a subject which Mr. Roosevelt was believed to have discussed at a conference with his house leaders today. The house leaders said they talked about the whole defense program, but refused to give any details.

Congress Demands Increase.

Demands are increasing in congress for an investigation not only of the defense production program but of Great Britain's financial resources in the United States. Senator Alva B. Adams [D., Col.], a member of the appropriations and banking committees, said today that Britain's resources should be investigated before approving Mr. Roosevelt's proposal for this government to buy unlimited quantities of armament and other war supplies and lend them to the British.

Many members of congress also want to ascertain whether the three billion dollars of orders which the British have been authorized to place in anticipation of Mr. Roosevelt's lending scheme will interfere unduly with the American armament program.

Co-Ed Engineer

MARY LEE WILKERSON.

Columbus, O., Dec. 20 (AP).—Mary Lee Wilkerson, 22, of Middletown, O., steps out of the ranks of Ohio State university's winter graduates today to design airplane superchargers. The co-ed is the first woman in 40 years to get a mechanical engineering degree.

But for a keen interest in mathematics and a boundless curiosity to see what made machines operate, Mary Lee might have been a nurse or home economics teacher. Now, she knows how to test a big boiler and do 100 and one other things usually performed by begrimed men.

She's engaged to D. H. Marquis, son of Prof. Franklin W. Marquis of Ohio State's department of mechanical engineering. Young Marquis is also a mechanical engineer.

ENGLAND URGES AMERICA TO SEIZE 'ENEMY SHIPPING'

Warns It Needs More Than 100 Destroyers.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Not even 100 more destroyers from America can solve Britain's shipping problem, Minister of Shipping Ronald Cross told American newspaper men today. Only a large scale construction of new merchant ships can prevent a serious decline in the British war effort if the present rate of sinkings is maintained, he said. He added that since Britain already is producing as many ships as possible the only other country capable of carrying out a vast building program is the United States.

Ronald Cross. [A. P. photo.]

Expressing gratitude for the 50 destroyers and other help already furnished by America he suggested that at present the greatest aid America could give to meet "the crucial spring of 1942" would be immediately to expand its shipbuilding facilities, which would require at least a year before the output would counterbalance the enemy's intensified submarine, airplane, and naval action against British shipping.

Suggests U. S. Seize "Enemy" Ships.

He suggested that to tide over 1941 the United States seize "enemy shipping" in American ports. He also foresaw the possibility that other ships might be released from certain American services. "Wherever we see a ship," he said, "we cast a covetous eye."

At present the so-called enemy shipping, including boats belonging to territory now occupied by Germany, particularly Denmark, in American ports totals 470,000 gross tons.

[In Washington officials yesterday were said to be considering the question of 37 Danish and more than 100 other foreign ships tied up in American ports with a view to determining whether they might be acquired for addition to Britain's merchant fleet. Among the foreign ships other than Danish in America are 2 German vessels and 27 Italian ships.]

Recalls U. S. Work in 1918.

Cross recalled that in 1918 the United States built more than half of the total world output of ships, or nearly 4,000,000 tons. He recommended a similar large scale program now.

He said that since June the losses of British controled shipping have trebled and now average nearly 70,000 tons weekly.

He compared these sinkings with those of the last war to show that no matter how great the naval protection, submarines always were a dangerous weapon against shipping.

'Tightened Belts' Help.

The British war effort depends upon a continual flow of imports, he said, adding that so far this has been adequate to meet the needs, altho it meant all the Britons had been forced to "tighten their belts." In the last war the nation tightened its belts to end the war, but it is impossible to speculate just how far this process can be carried out, he explained.

Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, speaking in London, said the British navy was "now doing the work of five navies in the last war at this stage."

Pope to Send Christmas Gifts to War Prisoners

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 20 (AP).—Pope Pius XII. expects to extend Christmas greetings to war prisoners in various countries by mailing his photograph, sacred images, and special apostolic benedictions, informed sources said today. The pope also has decided to send money to his representatives to purchase small gifts of clothing and other necessities for the prisoners, they said.

LEAHY TO CARRY ROOSEVELT NOTE TO HENRI PETAIN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—In an apparent effort to encourage an independent policy by the Vichy government in its relations with the axis, President Roosevelt disclosed today he was sending another personal message to Marshal Henri Petain by Admiral William D. Leahy, new American ambassador to France.

Admiral W. D. Leahy.

The President said this message, the second from him to the aged chief of the French state in recent months, commended Leahy as an old friend of the chief executive and who, in navy parlance, spoke the same language as Petain.

The blunt, plain-speaking admiral, who once created a diplomatic incident by calling the Russian people "virtually slaves," was expected to use his characteristic frankness in interpreting American policy to Petain.

Admiral Leahy, with his wife, will sail for his new post next Monday from Norfolk, Va., on the United States cruiser Tuscaloosa, which will take them as far as Lisbon, Portugal.

INTERVENTIONIST GROUP BECOMES A BIG BUSINESS

Propaganda Plant Run at Full Blast.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 20.—The Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, leading propaganda organization for intervention of the United States in the European war, has grown up into a big business.

The headquarters of the committee here in New York City, where most of the propaganda moves are hatched, are now sprawling over two floors of a big office building just off swanky Fifth avenue. Even so, the visitor to this feverish establishment gets the impression the committee is cramped for space.

$265,000 Already Spent.

It is this national nucleus of the committee which admits spending $265,000 so far on its propaganda drive. A few of its leaders have confessed their goal is the entry of his country into the war on the side of Britain. Others profess their purpose is "short of war" measures to aid Britain. William Allen White is the committee's head.

In addition to the national headquarters in New York, the committee boasts of having branches in 700 cities and towns from one end of the country to the other. The committee has made public no figures bearing on the contributions and expenditures from its numerous offshoots.

Money for the committee is collected by John Price Jones, Inc., a professional fund raising organization which cuts off a healthy slice of whatever comes in.

Stacks of Propaganda.

A visitor to the White committee's general staff headquarters must pick his way gingerly from office to office between solid lines of "Stop Hitler" posters, around and thru toppling piles of "Battle of America" pamphlets, and stacks of speeches, letters, and statements calling for more and more aid to Britain.

On the 21st floor of the building in 40th street are the offices of Chairman White, Director Clark Eichelberger, and other national officials. They have taken over and swallowed up the somnolent quarters formerly occupied by the League of Nations association, the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, and the Woodrow Wilson Memorial library. The luxurious offices afford an excellent view of Bryant park and the public library.

A Buzzing Beehive.

The real beehive is on the 20th floor, where the national publicity office, New York chapter, and New York youth division headquarters are located. Offices are full of employés, dashing about from one pile of literature to another, stuffing publicity blurbs into envelopes, and licking stamps.

Here also are the offices of the college division, which is busily engaged sending out "We the Students" creeds to institutions of higher learning thruout the nation. Students are urged to carry on for the White committee by utilizing the college newspaper, putting aid to Britain on the debating teams' agenda, and arranging for committee speakers before student groups. Other suggestions are massmeetings, forum discussions, polls of opinion, distribution of publications, and sending of petitions, letters, and telegrams to Washington, D. C.

Women's Division Busy.

There also are quarters on the floor for the woman's division, which is sending out propaganda on "Great Britain as our first line of defense." Women are being asked to "mobilize your community," set up publicity, finance, and citizens committees, hold meetings, form a "telephone canvass" squad, distribute literature, and use the local newspaper and radio.

Labor and Negro organizations are being bombarded with material emanating from these headquarters.

Many of the White committee employés are paid, some are volunteers.

At meetings around New York City and the eastern seaboard it has become customary for the White committee to decorate the halls with intertwined American and British flags. Now that the Presidential election battle is over, White committee speakers are starting to exhort crowds for an immediate declaration of war on Germany, Italy, and Japan.

DEFENSE WORKS CROWD FARMERS OFF THEIR LAND

2,500 Families Must Go to New Homes.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 20 (AP).—The midwest has a problem—what to do with people crowded off their land by booming defense work. President Roosevelt directed that new munitions factories be located inland, away from the coasts that would bear the first shock of attack.

So government engineers, planning to build up the defenses of the United States, came to the corn belt. They have set aside nine big pieces of farmland scattered thru this section to be bought for powder, shell loading and TNT factories, and artillery proving grounds.

The government took over the first land in October. The whole thing—totaling some 250,000 acres—must be vacated by March 1.

11,000 Persons Must Move.

This means that in little more than four months more than 11,000 persons—in about 2,500 farm families—must move, many of them in the dead of winter and some on short notice. This estimate is from the Farm Security administration.

They must find new places to live—farms, or houses in city or town or village where they can stay until they can get farms. They must remove farm implements and live stock.

Houses, barns, and churches must be torn down. In some places family graveyards over a century old must be wiped out.

The Farm Security administration has been given the job of seeing that these crowded out families have some place to go. This work centers in the agency's region 3 office here, headquarters for Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri.

In the farming sections which industry is taking over, the FSA questions the uprooted families to see whether they want to keep on farming, to take employment in the factories, or to retire. It opens offices to keep these families posted on their rights and to relocate them.

Arrange Live Stock Sales.

If a farmer wants to hold on to his live stock, it arranges for him to board it out until he is settled again. If he wants to sell it, the FSA encourages him to pool it with the live stock of other farmers for a big sale that will draw buyers from far away and bring good prices.

"We anticipate that people who go out from the areas will buy and lease other farms, forcing other farmers off their land, who may force still others off their farms," Regional Director P. G. Beck said.

The biggest piece of midwestern farmland being turned over to industry is 65,000 acres in the Ozark mountains near Rolla, Mo., to be used for a cantonment and artillery range. This area takes in nearly all of the southeast quarter of Pulaski county, a large corner of southeastern La Clede county, a strip of Texas county and the southeastern corner of Phelps county. Here 400 to 500 families must move.

Three Indiana Counties Affected.

In Ripley, Jefferson, and Jennings counties in Indiana, near Madison on the Ohio river, 60,000 acres are being converted into an army ordnance proving ground and 500 families must find new homes.

A tract of 41,000 acres of Illinois farmland in Will county, near Joliet, where 300 families live, is to become the site of powder and shell loading factories.

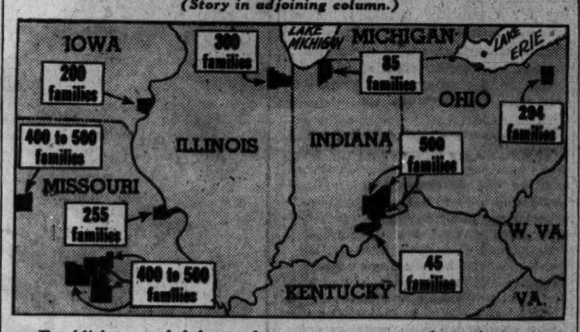
Other locations and the number of acres and families involved:

Portage county, Ohio, munitions factory, 21,000 acres, 294 families; St. Charles county, Missouri, TNT factory, 20,000 acres, 255 families; Jackson county, Missouri, numerous small plants, 5,000 to 6,000 acres, 400 to 500 families.

Des Moines county, Iowa, shell loading factory, 20,000 acres, 200 families; La Porte county, Indiana, shell loading factory, 13,000 acres, 85 families, and Clark county, Indiana, powder factory, 5,000 to 6,000 acres, 45 families.

Defense Projects Rout Farm Families

(Story in adjoining column.)



Establishment of defense plants, cantonments, and proving grounds in five central states is depriving hundreds of farm families of their homes and their means of earning a living. The counties in which the projects will be situated are shown in black and the number of families who will have to move in each is shown.

HULL REAFFIRMS ASIATIC STAND; NAVY GETS BUSY

Adds to Its Forces in Far East.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—As the navy moved to strengthen its Asiatic squadron, Secretary of State Cordell Hull today reaffirmed maintenance of the status quo in the far east as this country's policy in the Pacific.

The light cruiser Cincinnati is en route to Manila to join the heavy cruiser Houston, the light cruiser Marblehead, and smaller vessels in the Asiatic squadron, which has already been augmented since the conclusion of the Rome-Berlin-Tokio alliance. The Cincinnati is expected at Manila within 48 hours.

Planes and Submarines.

Within the month a number of planes and submarines have been added to the American far eastern forces. High ranking naval officials have expressed themselves as favoring the sending of American warships to Australia, New Zealand, and other British possessions in the Pacific in view of the situation which has arisen since the conclusion of the dictators' pact.

This country is also keeping an anxious eye on French and Dutch Asiatic possessions.

Answer to Questions.

The United States has increased its Asiatic squadron since the British have reduced their Pacific fleet in order to bring every available man o' war into the struggle against Germany and Italy. To this end the American Pacific fleet has been based at Hawaii rather than San Diego and has engaged in secret maneuvers on occasions when Japanese-American relations became strained.

Hull made his expression on this government's far eastern position in response to questions regarding the recent exchange of views between Joseph C. Grew, United States ambassador to Japan, and Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka.

BUILDING ESTIMATE AT CAMP GRANT IS RAISED TO 7 MILLION

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 20 Special].—Estimated cost of construction at Camp Grant has been increased to $7,000,000 by improvements in the quality of buildings being erected, extra compensation insurance charges, delays due to winter weather and plans for erection of 25 more buildings than originally planned, Maj. Howard Graham, construction quartermaster, announced today. The project was originally expected to cost $4,250,000.

Peak employment is expected to be about 7,000 men.

Tickets were issued to approximately 50 car owners at the camp last night for state license violations. The men are using cars with licenses from Texas, Colorado, California, Kansas, and other distant states. No tickets were issued to cars from nearby states.

Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, former premier and minister without portfolio, was named home minister to succeed Eija Yasui. Lieut. Gen. Heisuke Yanagawa was appointed minister of justice.

Report Nazis Ask Carol to Belgium or Holland

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 20 (AP).—Former King Carol II. of Rumania was reported today to have been invited by Germany to live in Holland or Belgium until his situation is clarified.

[Carol went to Spain after his abdication last Sept. 6, accompanied by his friend, Mme. Magda Lupescu, and his former minister of the palace, Gen. Ernest Urdureanu. He has since sought unsuccessfully for permission to leave and now is in Seville, where his freedom is limited.]

PASTORS ASKED TO SEEK REPEAL OF DRAFT LAW

The Methodist World Peace commission, 740 Rush street, yesterday began circularizing the 22,000 Methodist pastors of the country with a demand for repeal of the selective service and training act.

It acted under enabling legislation adopted by the supreme legislative agency of the Methodist church—the quadrennial general conference held last April in Atlantic City, N. J.

Under the preamble to the enabling act of the general conference, which defined war as a "diabolical outrage against human personality," the peace commission's action Tuesday in Evanston asked repeal of the draft on the ground that "peace time conscription is at once a serious menace to our democratic way of life and an affront to Christian reverence for personality."

BUNDSMEN BARED IN RAID MAY FACE CITIZENSHIP LOSS

Immigration Officials to Study Lists.

Reports from Washington, D. C., yesterday indicated some members of the German-American bund may lose their American citizenship as an aftermath of a raid Thursday in which state's attorney's police seized membership lists in the organization's Chicago headquarters.

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson ordered immigration officials to study the lists to determine whether they included any persons recently naturalized. The bund admits only American citizens to membership. It was explained unofficially that the department of justice might take the position that naturalization as a preliminary step toward joining the bund is invalid.

Informed of the seizures, President Roosevelt said he was much interested but that the investigation had not been formally brought to his notice.

F. B. I. Studies Records.

In Chicago agents of the federal bureau of investigation continued their inspection of the records, which were turned over to them by the state's attorney. Paul Flunkett, an assistant United States attorney, was assigned by United States Attorney J. Albert Woll to coöperate with the agents.

From reliable sources it was learned the G-men were convinced the importance of the lists had been exaggerated. Reports that they showed hundreds of names of men now in the armed forces of the United States were said to be unfounded.

Some names were followed by notations of military service, but these apparently referred to middle aged German born members who had served in the German army years ago.

The more sinister possibilities of present day complications were not overlooked, however, and the F. B. I. agents were known to have compared the lists with names on army and navy rosters.

Results Kept Secret.

The results were not disclosed. William S. Devereaux, agent in charge here, refused to discuss the matter before leaving yesterday on a vacation. His assistant, Albert Johnson, likewise was silent.

The raid on the bund offices was made after the issuance of a court order in connection with a suit in which the county sought to collect $380 in 1938 personal property taxes from the bund and an affiliated corporation, the Teutonia Publishing company.

A safe in the bund offices at 3855 North Western avenue was found to be locked and an office employé told the raiders it belonged to the Haus Vaterland tavern, on the first floor of the building.

When a policeman was stationed in the place after the raid it was believed the state's attorney or the F. B. I. planned to take legal action to get the contents of the safe. The police guard remained on duty yesterday and barred the office to all comers, but no effort was made to obtain more documents.

13 ALIMONY ROW PRISONERS FREED FOR CHRISTMAS

Thirteen prisoners in alimony row at the county jail received their freedom yesterday as Christmas presents from the three divorce court judges. Five other prisoners were returned to alimony row when they could not promise to try and keep up their alimony payments.

Six prisoners were freed by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington; three by Judge Rudolph Desort and four by Judge Joseph Sabath. In one case Judge Desort with the aid of Attorney Norman Becker succeeded in bringing about a reconciliation between Leroy Peterson and his estranged wife, Ethel, of 3958 Drexel boulevard.

Peterson had been jailed a week ago for owing $500 for the support of his wife and a son, Edward, 14 years old. Mrs. Peterson agreed to drop her suit for divorce.

2 Sought After $2,500 Gem Holdup in Lincoln Park

Park police yesterday were seeking two robbers who held up Joseph Hirtenstein, 6200 Kenmore avenue, a loop jeweler, and his wife, Bertha, when their automobile stalled in Lincoln park near Wisconsin street Thursday night. One of the robbers snatched a ring valued at $2,500 from Mrs. Hirtenstein. Her husband jumped out of the car, shouted for help, and the bandits fled.

SANTA'S HELPER ARRESTED.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The postoffice today gave a man a job as a helper during the Christmas rush. An hour and a half later he was arrested on a charge of theft from the mails.

REVEALS 'I AM' LEADER HAD HIS HEAD EXAMINED

Witness Says Lawyer Ought To, Too.

was surprised a little later when the cult leader informed his followers that he had been taught the secrets of electrical energy by St. Germaine.

P. B. [Pat] Crouse, a former member of the cult, was another witness. He testified that Mrs. Ballard once reported that Jesus had put His arms about her, and that this report was skeptically received by Donald Ballard.

"Donald told me that he and Marjorie called her [Mrs. Ballard] on the story and that she was forced to admit Jesus was not in His tangible body when it happened."

Postal Inspector's Visit.

Crouse said he still believed in many of the tenets of I Am, but quit "making decrees" after a postal inspector called on him and suggested this might be illegal. He said the Ballards received over 1,000 letters a year thanking them for curing disease, some supposedly incurable.

He asserted that in addition to the $1,000 a day of donations, Ballard often received thru the mail checks for as much as $2,000 after a three weeks class. Crouse said he would cash these and give the money to Ballard, who in turn cached it in a trunk.

"This was objected to by Betty Mundy, who said it interfered with her bookkeeping," he continued. Betty Mundy is Mrs. Ballard's secretary and one of the defendants.

The Bedroom Incident.

Attorney Carr asked Crouse what happened last March 27, when Donald Ballard found him in Mrs. Marjorie Ballard's bedroom.

"I was in her room beside her bed," the witness replied. "I was on one knee and the lights were out."

He said he was somewhat embarrassed when Donald unexpectedly appeared about midnight, but denied that he had beaten the husband—then—or that the young Mrs. Ballard had helped him. He said that some hours later he did knock down Donald, but this was after he had separated the husband and wife in the middle of a fight.

Just Looking Ahead.

"I put him down and told him not to be a fool," Crouse said, "or he would be in no condition for the next day's classes."

Judge Yankwich said the testimony about this incident went into the record merely as showing a possible bias on the part of Crouse, and that it didn't matter whether he was, or was not, saying his prayers in the dark bedroom.

SURPRISE UPSETS JOSLYN CASE AND BRINGS DILEMMA

Witnesses Balk and Face Contempt Charge.

The celebrated Joslyn case lost itself yesterday in a forest of legal surprises, emerging only to find itself at a sudden impasse.

At the height of a hectic session Master in Chancery John J. Kelly held in technical contempt two witnesses who allegedly had been prepared to tell of the personal relationship between Attorney Thomas Hart Fisher and Mrs. Charlotte Joslyn, whom Fisher represented in her recent divorce case. Fisher's petition for $24,000 in fees is being contested before Kelly by George R. Joslyn, son of a wealthy manufacturer of electrical supplies, on the ground that Fisher's relations with Mrs. Joslyn were more than those of attorney and client.

Warned of Possible Prosecution.

The contempt citation resulted from the witnesses' refusal to make any statement on the stand after Master Kelly warned them of possible criminal prosecution if they named Fisher as co-respondent. All further testimony was suspended until Judge John C. Lewe, who heard the original divorce litigation, rules on the contempt order.

Events leading to this development began within five minutes after yesterday's hearing was begun in Kelly's offices at 135 South La Salle street.

Mrs. Catherine Richards, formerly a maid in the Joslyn Lake Bluff residence, was summoned to the stand by Attorney Alvin Hubbard. Before she could even state her name, Attorney Harold M. Keele, Fisher's representative, flicked the pages of the 1939 edition of the Illinois statutes, pointed to a paragraph on page 1,151, then said:

"Before this witness testifies, I would like to call attention to a specific Illinois law which provides that in such cases where a witness actually identifies an alleged co-respondent, the witness is liable to criminal indictment."

Reads from Statute Book.

He then read the statute and added, "I would like therefore that the master warn the witness of this possibility or else appoint a competent and disinterested attorney, somebody like the president of the bar association, to advise the witness."

While Mrs. Richards fidgeted in her chair, Master Kelly began to study the statute.

Hubbard then shouted: "This is nothing but an attempt to intimidate this witness. He [Keele] wants you to threaten her. He knows if you warn her she won't testify."

Both Mrs. Richards and her husband, Edward, the other prospective witness, then were ordered from the hearing room and the legal tussle grew hotter and hotter.

KEELE—"I don't care how much so-called evidence Hubbard has. All I ask is that the witnesses be made aware of their jeopardy. I might say now that Hubbard already has violated the law by bringing Mr. Fisher's name into this—and I might add we already have seen the state's attorney about that!"

Not a Simple Case.

KELLY—"This is not a simple divorce case. Serious charges have been made. I'm inclined to think that the petition for fees opened up the door for these charges. Yet—"

HUBBARD—"O, judge, they know long ago that when we spoke of No. 2 man in Mrs. Joslyn's life we meant Fisher. They knew we contended he was one of her paramours!"

KEELE—"That's not been proved! That's strictly one of Hubbard's wild statements. What ought to be filed here is a petition for a psychopathic examination."

HUBBARD—"All he wants to do is to intimidate the witnesses.

KEELE—"Thousands of Chicago lawyers have an interest in this case because of the serious charge. Such a statute was devised just for such cases. Here is a man trying to smear a lawyer's—"

Wants to See Justice Done.

KELLY—"There'll be no smearing in this room. You know that if I warn these people of the possibility of going to jail, the ends of justice may be defeated, don't you, Mr. Keele?"

KEELE—"We want to see justice done. Let Hubbard present the evidence. All I want is that the witnesses know where they stand if they do testify."

After a series of such exchanges Master Kelly consulted law books for several hours while all other parties lunched. Then, in the afternoon, he ruled that in his opinion Fisher was a plaintiff in the fees case and not a third party and that therefore the statute did not apply.

"However," he added, "inasmuch as I have no legal precedent for such a ruling, it may be that the state Supreme court may overrule me. Then the witnesses would be liable for criminal prosecution."

Want to Tell Truth.

In turn both the Richardses then stated they wanted to tell the truth about what happened but would stand on their constitutional rights. "I won't testify until I'm satisfied there's no danger in telling the truth," muttered Richards.

The master then imposed his technical charge of contempt and ordered Attorney Hubbard to present the matter for further decision to Judge Lewe. If the latter holds with Kelly the couple is in danger of a jail sentence for contempt; if he reverses the master's ruling, and the Richardses testify, they face possible prosecution under the statute dug up by Attorney Keele.

QUARRY ELUDES A TRAP; POLICE DENOUNCE G-MEN

Charge They Bungled New De Tristan Case.

Santa Rosa, Cal., Dec. 20 [Special].—Police Chief C. M. Herschey today accused the federal bureau of investigation of bungling in failing to prevent the escape of an extortionist who was led into a trap while attempting to victimize the wealthy De Tristan family.

The extortionist was a little man in a black overcoat, who snatched a faked payment from the hands of a federal agent and then eluded 22 officers who had surrounded him in a cabbage patch. Daring them to go ahead and shoot, the man dropped to the ground and crawled away thru the mud.

Three Week Hunt.

For more than three weeks G-men had been working on a mailed extortion threat against the Count and Countess Marc de Tristan, wealthy Hillsborough family whose 3 year old son was kidnaped only three months ago in an unsuccessful $100,000 ransom plot.

Yesterday federal agents and police were posted around the Santa Rosa postoffice where the extortionist had instructed that an emissary of the De Tristan family stand with a cigar box containing the money he had demanded. The emissary was R. J. Bobbitt, assistant chief of the federal bureau of investigation in the San Francisco area.

However, as Bobbitt waited with a cigar box filled with worthless paper, a 12 year old boy came up and gave him a note. It instructed him to proceed to a cabbage patch near Santa Rosa and make contact.

A Shadowy Figure.

The federal officer drove to the patch with the posse trailing behind. The men barely had time to hide themselves when a shadowy figure approached Bobbitt in the middle of the field.

"We could have arrested him then," a police officer said, "but we wanted to make sure we had evidence against him, so we waited for him to take the cigar box."

The suspect grabbed the box from Bobbitt's hand and started running.

"Stop or I'll shoot," the federal agent shouted.

"Go ahead and shoot," the little man yelled back.

Then—the Escape.

Then he dropped to his knees and crawled down the vegetable rows. In his flight he threw away the cigar box, apparently having discovered it didn't contain money. His tracks led into a rugged creek bottom into which the cabbage patch dropped away unexpectedly.

"I saw a man in a black overcoat suddenly appear out of the darkness," one officer related. "I started to grab him but he said: 'I'm on the force,' and vanished.

"We all took up the chase after the man grabbed the box but he was crawling fast and it was hard to keep track of him in the darkness. Several times we could have shot him but we thought we had him too well surrounded to get away. Then he suddenly disappeared altogether. We never saw him again."

Explosive Trap Suggested.

In accusing the FBI of bungling, Police Chief Hirschey said the agents should have loaded the cigar box with black powder, set to explode after he received it.

"The man's face then would have been blackened," he explained. "He might have been blinded, he'd have needed medical aid quickly, and he wouldn't have got away."

Little Marc de Tristan, heir to two great fortunes, was kidnaped from his nurse near his home on Sept. 20 by Wilhelm Jacob Muhlenbroich, a German alien. The child was returned unharmed after two lumbermen overpowered Muhlenbroich in the mountains east of San Francisco. The kidnaper is now in San Quentin prison serving a life sentence.

EX-BANK TELLER WINS PROBATION IN $1,058 THEFT

Bernard L. Kloese, a former teller at the Clearing State bank, was placed on probation for two years yesterday by Judge Michael L. Igoe in the federal District court on his plea of guilty to a charge of embezzling $1,058 from the bank.

Kloese, who is 28 years old, concealed his shortage for six months by substituting pieces of pipe, loaded with buckshot, for rolls of coin in the bank vault. He used the money for his home and a vacation.

He was granted probation on a showing that the embezzlement was his first offense and that he had made full restitution.

Ousted Liquor Commission Supervisor Sues for Job

Irwin R. Powers of 511 Melrose street filed suit in Circuit court yesterday asking that he be restored to his $4,800 a year job as a supervisor for the Illinois liquor control commission. Powers charged he was ousted on Nov. 30 on the orders of Edward Rosenberg, Cook county patronage dispenser for Gov. Stelle, altho he was a civil service employé. Merwin Hart, secretary of the commission, said Powers was fired after he had been advised that Powers was not a civil service employé.

Idle Miners Win and Lose

Following are two court rulings on unemployment compensation claims of coal miners in Ohio and Kentucky who were idle during contract negotiations:

Ohio Claims Upheld.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 20 (AP).—A state Appeals court upheld today the payment of unemployment compensation totaling $286,000 to 6,675 Ohio miners who were idle during the negotiations for a wage contract in the Appalachian bituminous coal fields last year.

The court affirmed a decision that held the work stoppage was not a strike. Unemployment compensation may not be paid to strikers.

Suit against payment of the compensation was brought by the United States Coal company. H. C. Atkinson, state unemployment compensation director, expressed belief today's decision cleared the way for making the payments. No comment was available from United States Coal company counsel as to whether further appeal was planned.

Kentucky Pay Refused.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Kentucky Court of Appeals denied today the unemployment compensation claims of 25,000 to 30,000 eastern Kentucky coal miners idle during protracted union contract negotiations in 1939.

The court held the miners' idleness was due to a bona fide labor dispute and that the claims therefore were barred by state law. The ruling was on appeal from Letcher Circuit court, where claims of miners had been upheld.

Similar suits are on file in five other Circuit courts, but Vego E. Barnes, Kentucky unemployment compensation commissioner, said today's decision would govern the commission's action on remaining claims. He estimated their claims totaled about $1,000,000.

INDICT 16 UNIONISTS FOR STRIKE VIOLENCE AT NEW YORK PLANT

New York, Dec. 20 [Special].—A superseding indictment, naming 16 defendants, seven of whom had been previously indicted, and listing 38 persons as alleged conspirators without indicting them, has been handed up by the Queens county September grand jury. The indictments followed an investigation of strike disorders and rioting at the plant of the Triangle Conduit and Cable company.

Those indicted include five officials of Local 3, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which has been conducting the strike, and 11 striking employés.

The indictment is an outgrowth of incidents at the plant between Aug. 1 and Oct. 7, and particularly Sept. 24, when strikers and sympathizers battled with the police and strikebreakers. It charges conspiracy to commit the crimes of coercion and malicious mischief, both as felonies and misdemeanors; felonious assault, resisting policemen in the discharge of their duty, unlawful assembly, and riot.

A number of policemen were injured in the September battle. Some of them blamed Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's strict order against nightsticks or guns for their plight.

STORM CUTS OFF CALIFORNIA TOWN AND WIDE AREA

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP).—Northwestern California, including the coastal city of Eureka with its 16,000 inhabitants, was cut off from communication with the rest of the state tonight as storms broke telephone and telegraph connections.

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company cables went out early tonight and a few minutes later Postal Telegraph and Western Union connections also were broken. No information was available as to the extent of the storm.

Heavy rains halted all work on Shasta dam. The Sacramento river rose five feet between noon and 8 p. m. at Shasta dam and sent river waters flooding over the power house building at the dam for the second time this week.

Dairy Employes' Union Elects Three Trustees

The Dairy Employes' union, local 754, last night elected trustees in the union hall at 220 South Ashland avenue. They are Otto Debs, Fritz Neiding, and Charles Flanagan. August Burnier, president; Jack Cameron, vice president, and Frank J. Gillespie, secretary-treasurer, were named at a previous meeting. Another election will be held next Friday to choose a recording secretary. Olaf Jacobsen and Laverne Wheeler led a field of eight candidates with totals of 195 each. More than 1,000 votes were cast.

CASSIDY MOVES AGAINST SALES TAX EXEMPTION

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP).—Attorney General John E. Cassidy took a new step today to block Gov. John Stelle's administration from applying the recent sales tax rule revision exempting building materials dealers from payment of the tax.

The attorney general served a request on State Finance Director A. M. Carter for a list of dealers failing to file sales tax returns on Dec. 15. Cassidy said it was a move in his announced intention to prosecute dealers who failed to pay taxes for November.

Cassidy attacked the revision as illegal and the Cook County Circuit court refused to recognize the revision in a case in which several Chicago materials firms are testing the legality of the sales tax as it applies to them.

6 FRIDAY NIGHT GANG ROBBERS TAKEN TO PRISON

Handcuffed together and under heavy guard, six members of the Friday night gang of tavern robbers were taken to Joliet penitentiary yesterday to begin sentences imposed Wednesday in the Criminal court. They were transported in the sheriff's van which was convoyed by two automobiles of armed deputies. The gang was held responsible for 250 robberies in two years. Stanley Kaval, "gun crazy" leader of the gang, was sentenced to life imprisonment. Joseph Nadvorak, Paul Bellinger, and Joseph Kodakek All were given three sentences of one year to life to be served consecutively.

COUNCIL GIVEN BUDGET DRAFT; SLASHES STAND

Working Fund Is Reduced More than 2 Million.

The council received from its finance committee yesterday the recommended 1941 city budget which, including all funds, totals $163,081,462.00. The corporate budget, which is the part for the city's working operations, totaled $54,391,785.29, or $2,190,057 less than for 1940.

The budget was brought to the council in the face of a strike threat earlier in the week and information that at a Thursday night meeting city union employés voted to strike if the budget is approved.

Object to 10 Per Cent Cut.

The strike sentiment arose because the finance committee had recommended that all salaried union employés receiving wages above outside scale be cut 10 per cent next year. The cut reduced the budget $344,000.

As is customary the council deferred action and ordered the proposed budget published. A public hearing was scheduled for Jan. 6 and the budget is expected to come before the council for passage Jan. 7.

Proposed appropriations for 1941 and 1940 appropriations follow:

Fund—	1941.	1940.
Corporate	$54,391,785	$56,581,843
Water	14,989,790	14,097,544
Water certificates	11,200,000	14,648,250
Vehicle tax	5,546,056	5,480,111
Bond funds	5,024,863	5,314,396
Motor fuel tax fund	12,760,000	19,568,870
Traction	24,975,975	31,170,880
Bond redemption and interest	13,040,435	14,018,785

The council repealed sections of the city code which had established the department of public service and the bureau of compensation. Those departments are eliminated in the proposed budget.

Seeks to Fund Bills.

When the budget was presented Ald. Paul Douglas [5th] asked why the city could not increase its funded debt and sell bonds in order to pay approximately $10,000,000 in unpaid bills.

Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the finance committee, replied that if the unpaid bills were included as part of the city's debt when computing the debt limitation, the city would be slightly beyond the limit of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation. He added that that question is now before the state Supreme court as part of a tax objection case.

"If the unpaid bills are to be considered along with the funded debt, we could not sell any more bonds," Arvey said.

Douglas then asked why the $3,250,000 windfall the city received last summer by the sale of Cook county judgments had not reduced the unpaid bills. He was told the windfall just "kept the total even." Arvey said the unpaid bills would have increased during the year, due to poor tax collections, if the judgments had not been sold.

FIGHT FEE CLAIM OF KANE COUNTY SPECIAL COUNSEL

State's Attorney Charles Seidel of Kane county asked Judge C. D. Page of the Kane county Ciricuit court in Geneva yesterday to set aside a judgment for $1,665.33 obtained by Attorney Maurice Lord of Aurora for services as a special prosecutor. The judgment was against all 38 members of the Kane county board of commissioners.

Attorney Lord, who had asked for a writ of mandamus against the board, returnable yesterday, served as prosecutor against former officials of the W. W. Armstrong Investment company of Aurora, which collapsed in 1936. The officials were indicted for embezzlement but were acquitted at the trial. Lord then was paid $4,000, asked $1,665.33 more, and was refused. He obtained the judgment in 1939.

Judge Page intimated he would hear arguments on the judgment after the holidays.

SEEKS TEST CASE OF COURT RULING IN BOOKIE DRIVE

J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, announced yesterday that he had recommended that the attorney general make a test case before the United States Supreme court of the ruling by Federal Judge William H. Holly which knocked the props out from under the government's campaign to suppress handbook gambling.

On Thursday Judge Holly dismissed an indictment against the Western Union Telegraph company and 11 individuals, most of them former associates of M. L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher, which accused them of conspiracy to violate the federal lottery law by the interstate transmission of parimutuel prices and closing odds on horse races. Judge Holly held that such action did not constitute a lottery.

United States Attorney Woll declared that after a study of the court's opinion he was convinced the Supreme court should be asked for a final decision, the case being considered extremely important by the government. He also warned gamblers that they would continue to operate handbooks "at their own peril."

BY TRAIN, PLANE BUS, AUTO THEY SPEED TO DIXIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 20.—All transportation facilities are straining under the load of an influx of Christmas vacationists this week-end. The schools in the north in closing for the holidays today contributed to this load.

The Florida East Coast railroad has 10 extra trains plus seven regular runs from the north this week-end. The Seaboard Airline railroad has two specials arriving later today from New York plus its regular four.

The bus lines reported they are running in double and triple sections.

The Eastern Air Lines have five extra planes in addition to eight regular planes from the north today and reports that this day has broken all previous records in the number of passengers flown from New York.

The highways are running with automobiles bearing license plates of northern states. The private automobile carries the bulk of Florida's winter resort trade.

SCHOOL BUDGET PUBLIC HEARING SET FOR JAN. 10

A public hearing on the 1941 school budget will be held Jan. 10 in the city council chambers, James B. McCahey, school board president, announced yesterday. The tentative budget will be presented to the board next Friday.

Public hearings previously were held in the board rooms at 228 North La Salle street, but last year there were protests that the rooms did not accommodate all those interested in attending.

"There should be just about enough room in the city hall to seat those who protested last year," said Bernard Majewski, a board member. "Maybe we should hold it in the Stadium and serve sandwiches."

The hearing will be the last step before the budget is sent to the city council for approval.

A nattily dressed bandit held up a dress shop at 1632 Howard street yesterday and took $150 after intimidating three girl clerks.

A HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER TURNS A BLEAK YULE INTO ONE STILL DARKER

This is the story of the first Christmas for two out of town girls in Chicago. The two, both secretaries, became acquainted last spring in a boarding house. A friendship sprang up between the two—Elna Johnson of Sioux City, Ia., and Edith Goeltz of Aurora—and they shared an apartment at 900 Lakeside place.

Edith underwent an operation in Martha Washington hospital last Tuesday. Elna canceled a holiday trip home to be at her bedside.

Thursday evening, as Elna left the hospital after visiting Edith, she was struck by a hit and run driver at Oakley avenue and Irving Park road. Last night she was in the same hospital, critically ill with a possible skull fracture.

CRUSHED UNDER TRUCK IN STREET SOUTH OF LOOP

John Lesec, 44 years old, 440 South Clark street, was killed yesterday when he was crushed under a truck at Harrison and Clark streets. The driver was Peter De Michele, 624 North May street.

Sam Siegel, 59 years old, of 1813 Millard avenue, a junk dealer, was killed when he stepped off a safety island at 51st and State streets and walked against the side of a truck driven by Alfred Jolly Jr., 23, of 5619 South Spaulding avenue.

A year ago Thursday at 5:45 p. m. the truck of Tony Karras, 44, of Broadview, a scissors grinder, was struck by an elevated train at the Harrison street crossing in Broadview. Tony's truck was the only casualty, and the railroad replaced it. On Thursday afternoon at 5:45 p. m. Tony and his truck were again struck by an elevated train at the same crossing. Again the truck was wrecked. Tony is recovering in the West Lake hospital.

Matt J. Smith, 63, of Richmond, Ill., died in Woodstock hospital of injuries suffered Wednesday night when his automobile struck a tree in route 47 at Hebron, in McHenry county. Smith was a farm laborer.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 859 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 630 were killed in Chicago where 23,108 were injured in the same period.

Walter V. Schaefer, 155 West Burton place, a former assistant corporation counsel and now professor of law at Northwestern university, was appointed yesterday by Mayor Kelly to the Chicago Housing authority. The city council concurred in the appointment.

COUNTY CLERK OFFERS TO CUT SPENDING 10 PCT.

County Clerk Michael J. Flynn notified the county board finance committee yesterday that he would take a voluntary 10 per cent reduction in the estimated appropriation of $745,187 for his department for 1941. County Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh, chairman of the finance committee, said similar reductions in other departments must be made to balance the county's budget. Proposed expenditures now total $21,176,416 with income for the year estimated at only $17,500,000.

HOW LONG A WAR?

Sigrid Schultz reports from Berlin that German yards have reached a large scale production of submarines and that the Germans say their "undersea flotillas will grow automatically on a large scale from month to month." The Germans also are striving to increase the element of surprise in attacks by small, speedy surface crafts and in bombing planes by new methods of muffling the sounds of motors.

In London, Mr. Churchill tells parliament that ship sinkings "continue at a very disquieting level." He is, nevertheless, not unduly an alarmist and says that the danger is not as great as it was in the critical period of 1917. Still they must recognize the return of that danger which "a year ago we seemed to have mastered." Having mastered it once, the British will undertake to master it again. Mr. Churchill also says there could be no relaxing in the defense against invasion because even winter, with all its disadvantages, may offer some special opportunities.

The obviously best time for an invasion of England was when the withdrawal from Dunkirk took place or immediately after. That was the high spot in the German push to the coast and the peak of the German morale. It conceivably was also the lowest ebb in British fortunes. Hitler didn't attack then, probably because he couldn't. Since then the prospects of a successful invasion have steadily decreased.

In spite of sea and air attacks, the two belligerents are making no progress whatever toward a decision. If the war isn't at a stalemate, it at least is far removed from anything promising success to either side. Apparently both can continue to withstand anything the other can throw at it for an indefinite period. There is great loss and suffering, but there is nothing promising a victory in any of the operations. British ingenuity is at work on methods to meet the attacks on its shipping. There has been success at that before and it may be expected that each new development in attack will be followed by a counteracting development in defense.

Italy is suffering reverses. Before these reverses go too far the Nazis probably will give their Fascist allies some effective aid. Reports say it is already on the way. It is humiliating for Mussolini to have to take it, but humiliation can be glossed over and defeat can't be. With the Germans helping out, the tide may be turned, at least in Albania. If Italy could be knocked out, and if the Germans could be kept out, the British problem of supply would be much simplified. Warships needed elsewhere could be diverted from the Mediterranean, and the Mediterranean route could be used, which, by decreasing distances, would increase available merchant tonnage. But these ifs are ifs.

Germany's inability to get at Great Britain for a fight to a finish is matched by Great Britain's inability to get at Germany. Even when Great Britain, now half armed, as Mr. Churchill says, is fully armed and with its army at a maximum, what prospect is there that its forces could be put in action on the continent against a larger army, just as well equipped? If France were still holding the Maginot line and if the British were still in Flanders, 1917 might, in a way, repeat itself. It cannot, because Germany now has everything, and more, than it hoped to gain by the sweep thru Belgium in 1914.

People who, like Sir Robert Vansittart of the foreign office, reject all idea of a negotiated peace and talk of destroying the enemy must reject the facts. Unless something unforeseen or unforeseeable happens, the war remains one in which neither side can see an outcome favoring the continuance of unavailing but destructive efforts. Payment is deferred, but all this will be paid for. The longer it is deferred the more punishing the costs will be. Europe nearly cracked up in 1918.

THE VICTIMS OF WAR.

The letter in the Voice of the People this morning, in which Mr. Winthrop Aldrich lists some of the achievements of the British War Relief society, makes heartening Christmas reading. Here is an evidence that American sympathies have been aroused by the sufferings of the noncombatants in the European war, and more especially an evidence that the duty to relieve distress is widely felt. Christian charity is an active force in the world, a force which has survived innumerable assaults and, we may hope, will not be lost to the world.

The record which Mr. Aldrich has cited with respect to Britain alone gives ground for the expectation that Americans will yet prevail upon their government and upon the rulers of the warring powers to permit our people to succor other victims of war in the countries which have been invaded: Poland, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, and France. Particularly at this season, no one who has been touched by Christian teaching can feel that his duty has been done while whole populations are suffering hunger and the cold of a northern winter. The command to love one another excepts no one, not even an avowed enemy; surely, then, it includes the innocent whose misfortune it was to find themselves in the path of war.

MR. FLYNN DOESN'T NEED A DANIEL.

County Clerk Michael J. Flynn has written the Cook county board asking that the 1941 appropriation for his office be cut 10 per cent. If his brother office holders faint with astonishment, they shouldn't. Mike has been around for quite a time and when he sees a wall with some handwriting on it he doesn't need a Daniel to interpret it for him.

The handwriting in this case appeared some days ago, when President Clayton Smith told the board members that they have only $17,513,309 in expected revenue for 1941 with which to cover between $21,000,000 and $24,000,000 in obligations. Since then the commissioners must have been keeping their eyes straight ahead as they pass thru the County building corridors, otherwise they would have seen the answer to their problem in office after office stuffed to the bursting point with useless pay rollers.

This year's budget brings the answer to a question that has long intrigued visitors to the building. The question was whether the Democratic machine, in loading up the county pay rolls, would run out of money or desk room first. The money has finally given out, but not before the county had quartered several departments in nearby office buildings.

Commissioner Frank Bobrytzke, one of the few members of the board with experience in meeting pay rolls out of his own instead of the public pocket, did take at least a peek as he was going down a corridor the other day. He suggested that the county save $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 by going on a five day week and cutting pay in proportion.

With all respect for the commissioner's good intentions, this is not a good suggestion. Blanket pay cuts, striking the industrious and the loafing employés impartially, naturally produce a disgruntled working force.

The county needs a more radical remedy, one such as Mr. Flynn has offered to apply in his office. It has far too many pay rollers, both in the downtown offices and the charitable institutions that it operates. The Circuit judges have not yet approved the report of their help committee, which fixes the number of jobs in the county fee offices. They should not approve it in its present swollen form. The help committee should reopen its hearings and require every fee office to make a radical reduction in the number of its employés. Mr. Flynn's 10 per cent should be a minimum, not a maximum, requirement.

The commissioners themselves should do the same with the public offices over which they have direct power and with the charitable institutions as well. The fact that the institutions are engaged in invaluable works of public mercy must not obscure the fact that a job at Oak Forest or the county hospital is, in the eyes of the Democratic machine, just as much patronage as one in the county clerk's or recorder's office and is filled in the same manner.

An attempt is being made to sabotage the proposed delinquent tax collection bureau by compelling County Treasurer Toman to finance it within his present appropriation for help. Mr. Toman's office may be overstaffed. It probably is, since he is subject to the same patronage demands that the machine makes on all other county office holders. If he has too many employés the deadwood should be fired. But that question should be decided on its own merits and the question of the tax collection bureau on its own, which are considerable. The two issues should not be confused.

OUR WAY OF LIFE.

What is described as a brilliant dinner was given at the White House Thursday night in honor of Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands who is paying the United States a visit from her temporary home in Canada and to Crown Princess Martha of Norway whose temporary home is in Maryland. The other guests invited to break bread, as the reporter quaintly wrote, were citizens who are working here to make the world safe for democracy.

The exigencies confronting democracy in Europe have caused a number of democratic royal families to remove the line of succession to these shores to tide over the danger to our system of society and government. The crowned heads will return when the democrats have repelled the threat to our way of life. Meanwhile we are finding this way of life glorified in our own capitol and many of our best people are enjoying the effulgence of more democracy than they ever saw before.

Mr. Roosevelt has had more opportunities to act as mayor of the palace than ever before fell to the lot of an American President. There are still a few to come, including King Zog and King Carol, both homeless democrats but not insolvent. Either would be willing to be a nonpaying guest in any large American country house with a self-effacing host.

Our democracy is coming into its own, what with the third term and other things, including Jimmie, the heir apparent. This is a way of life and some of our democrats think its dinners are worth the price of a war.

Editorial of the Day

MR. JACKSON ON THE SABOTAGE MENACE.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

The FBI will remain on the alert against sabotage, the public may be sure, but Attorney General Jackson has presented facts and figures that ought to calm down some of the excitement over this alleged menace.

Mr. Jackson does not rule out the possibility of sabotage. He does, however, point out that industry is engaged in a great and sudden speed-up program which results in accidents, that many inexperienced workers or men long unemployed have gone to work, that numerous experiments are being undertaken. These facts must be considered before leaping at the conclusion that every fire, explosion or other mishap in a factory is the work of subversive agents.

Even more reassuring than this comment are the figures offered by the FBI. In 1939, before the preparedness drive got under way, American factories suffered 23,700 fires, of which 10,500 were caused by explosions, with damage totaling $62,900,000. These statistics should soothe some of the perturbed citizens who wonder why the FBI doesn't arrest a foreign spy whenever a blaze occurs at a local factory.

It looks as if, in addition to the current alertness against possible sabotage, a campaign against fire and safety hazards in industrial plants is badly needed. It's easier, however, to get excited over spies than over plain carelessness.

We are offered the choice between a higher debt and higher taxes and probably will have to compromise by taking both.—Kansas City Times.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

THE PHILOSOPHY OF GIN.

Did you ever, as you crook the elbow for the first, second or third cocktail, reflect upon the history and philosophy of its principal ingredient? What is gin and how did it happen to descend upon civilization as a blight or a blessing?

Well, it was the first liquor to be entirely manufactured by Man. Its predecessors, wines, beers, and whiskies, were aided by Nature's own chemistry of fermentation. The chemistry of gin was altogether supplied by Man. It is merely a pure form of alcohol which has been flavored.

Gin was the answer to a demand for cheap spirits; the poor were ready to buy something within their means to help them forget their poverty—and gin helped to keep them poor. It came into England in the reign of Queen Anne, when the war of the Spanish succession [1701-'14] took British armies into Flanders. There the soldiers acquired a taste for Holland gin, and when they returned they thirsted for it. Incidentally, an ancestor of the present Winston Churchill may be held responsible in part; he was John Churchill, later the duke of Marlborough, the glorious leader of those armies.

The market for gin was widened when Queen Anne raised the duties on French wines and brandies and lowered the taxes on British spirits. Gin then became so cheap that a certain innkeeper in London advertised these advantages for his customers:

"Drunk for a penny—dead drunk for twopence—clean straw for nothing!"

The juniper berry was found, by trial and error, to be the most acceptable flavoring agent. Minute quantities of other flavoring products, however, are also used. Among these are: Coriander seed, cardamon seed, angelica root, anise seed, bitter almonds, caraway seed, calamus, cassia bark, fennel, orris root, licorice, and orange peel.

Holland gin differs from English gin because the juniper berries are ground up with the barley malt used in distillation. It has a sweet aroma and a curious flavor, as of musty bread. Its strong taste prevents its use in a mixture for cocktails.

SHINING GREEN TREES.

Green trees, shining at Christmas time
In raiment of silver and gold,
Are you happier here than you were
In your woods wrapped in the snow and cold?
Do you miss at all the lonely hills,
The quiet and peace of the night,
Or do you prefer the crowd's applause
When you're decked in streamers of light?
Would you rather be courted, king
For a day, gay as a gypsy tune,
Than to live unknown except for stars
And a slip of a silver moon?
You should be content in either place,
On a far lake shore or in town,
For you're dear to our hearts whether clad
In green or a shimmering Christmas gown.

Mary V. Farnum.

Christmas in Maxwell Street.

There are many sides to Chicago at Christmas time but for variety the Maxwell street district deserves a visit. There one will find a synagog next door to a Baptist church and a Chinese hand laundry over the basement where a group of gypsies make their home. An antique shop displays wrought copper ware, and alongside you can buy anything from uniforms to union suits and from overshoes to overcoats. Somewhere along the curb you will find a station wagon parked next to a junk wagon, and the Kosher Star restaurant is across from the Red Light Chili parlor.

This is the district where dowagers take their out-of-town guests and boast of the welfare work they do there. Where a Pomeranian on a leash interviews an alley cur while its mistress pauses to chat with a colored woman. Near by an old man in tattered clothes stands looking at a window full of pear brandy. Just above is the Streamlined Beauty salon filled with bronze skinned girls.

On both sides of the street there are fish stores and bakeries and here and there you buy freshly grated horseradish, collard greens, and kosher dill pickles. For those who want to make real aspic the butcher shops feature beef hoofs. Around the corner on Halsted is the office of the Jewish Courier and around another corner the church of St. Francis holds novenas in honor of Our Lady.

THE WRECK OF THE DOLL HOUSE.

It was the cellar workshop
Near Christmas jubilee,
And the Daddy was making his little daughter
Something she should not see.

O, father, I hear the sound of saws;
O say, what may it mean?
'Tis some good neighbor snoring loud;
So stay upstairs with Jean.

O, father, I hear a hammer ring;
O say, what may it be?
'Tis some woodpecker not gone south,
At work upon a tree.

O, father, I smell the smell of paint;
O say, what may it be?
But the Daddy answered never a word,
For a nervous wreck was he!

The Line Book Does Get Around.

From "Read 'Em Or Not," a book reviewing column by Edith K. Dunton in the Rutland [Vt.] Daily Herald:

"Each December Mr. Collins makes a compilation of the best prose and verse that have appeared in his column during the last year, and THE TRIBUNE issues it as a Christmas booklet. If you want to be delightfully entertained for a few hours, send to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for the Line Book, '40—or borrow mine."

Miami Beach advertises [Tribune, Dec. 8]:

"No other place exists with quite the same continental gayety and langurous South sea island charm."

They must have charm by the tail, for Webster says that a langur is a long tailed monkey with bushy eyebrows and a chin tuft. Delavan Al.

It's our idea that broadcasting and loudspeakering of the song, "Holy Night," should not begin until twilight on Christmas eve. When it starts five days before, it sounds Rooseveltian.

DOES THIS HAPPEN FREQUENTLY?

HERE is a letter from a most estimable lady, which should carry a lesson: "About two weeks ago I made up my mind to consult the family physician, as I had been feeling a bit run down. I had known Dr. B. for many years. In fact, we were among his first patients when he began practicing in our neighborhood about 20 years ago. But he had come up in the world, with an office downtown, staffed with nurses and secretaries and equipped with dictaphones and examining rooms.

"When I telephoned I was told that he could not give me an appointment for three days. What a contrast with the old days! Then he was not too rushed to sit down and hear my complaints patiently. Promptly on the hour I arrived and was greeted by a receptionist who said, 'Yes, Mrs. S., you are next. We mustn't keep the doctor waiting—he is expecting you.'

"I was ushered into a little cubbyhole, where a nurse took my pulse, thrust a thermometer into my mouth, and began asking me a lot of questions. Where did I live? Did I have any children, etc.? As soon as the glass tube was removed I answered as best I could, remarking that I had known Dr. B. for many years and that he was thoroly acquainted with my history. Nevertheless, she insisted on putting it all down, concluding with the query—'Are you happy with your husband?'

"Rather brusquely I retorted that I came to interview Dr. B. and if he were ready I would go in. I saw her record a rather large 'No' to her last question.

"The physician greeted me affably enough and, after a rather hurried inquiry into my symptoms, handed me a number of multicolored slips of paper.

"'Now, Mrs. S.' he said, 'you will report to the hospital tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock without breakfast. You are to have a basal. When you are thru with that they will take you on for an electrocardiogram, a two meter plate, and some blood chemistry. Of course, I shall want rather accurate determinations made of uric acid, as well as an n. p. n. Good-by, Mrs. S. Stop at the desk for an appointment and I well let you know the results.'

"I reported for the tests, wondering what it was all about. Had I shown signs of some incurable malady? I am worried and in a quandary. In fact, I have been so disturbed by the whole matter that I have not returned to his office.

"What is a basal? I am frank to say I haven't had the courage to learn the verdict. Can you tell me something about these procedures and why they were required?"

In replying to this correspondent I assured her that the "checks" were harmless and that they were requested merely as aids in making a diagnosis.

But was her brusk handling really necessary? Most of us journey to the medical consultant's office filled with apprehension. No matter how well trained Dr. B. may be I venture the opinion that he is practicing with but a fraction of his efficiency when he does not take time to explain every important move fully to his clients. Apparently, in this instance, he failed to make Mrs. S. feel that he desired to be as helpful as he had been in the past. Able doctors decline to surround themselves with so much "underbrush" that the personal touch with the patient is lost.

Clearly, Mrs. S. was received in a manner so abrupt, so matter of fact, that she has lost confidence in her aforetime medical friend. Perhaps it would be just as well for her to consult one who is not quite so busy. I wonder if Dr. B. realizes fully that he and his organization are in the business of selling health?

DEPRESSION.

J. A. G. writes: What is meant by "nerve exhaustion?"

REPLY.

The old term "neurasthenia" has been replaced by "nerve exhaustion," as it explains the profound weakness that may ensue. There are many causes, including overwork, worry, an insufficient or poorly balanced diet, inadequate elimination, bad hygiene, etc.

CYSTITIS.

K. K. writes: What causes periodic recurrences of cystitis?

REPLY.

Infection somewhere along the urinary tract. Occasionally chemical changes in the urine may be responsible. Altering the reaction from alkaline to acid may relieve distress.

WAR RELIEF FOR BRITAIN.

New York, Dec. 18.—The British War Relief society, whose directors, sponsors, and supporters include thousands of Americans in all parts of the country, is in constant contact with 34 officially approved relief agencies in Great Britain, and distributes essential relief thru these agencies.

Here is a brief statement concerning this work:

"The British War Relief Society, Inc., 730 5th avenue, New York, whose organization now includes that of the former Allied Relief Fund with which it is consolidated, has been responsible for relief to Great Britain to a value in excess of $4,500,000.

"The society today is concentrating all its energies on the raising of funds for the purchase of warm winter clothing, equipment for hospital beds, and 'rolling kitchens.' Relief goods are being shipped by the society thru the ports of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, and New Orleans.

"The need for warm winter clothing grows greater every day that the air raids continue to destroy British homes and possessions. Women and children particularly need overcoats, warm underclothing, shoes, and overshoes.

"Many hospitals have been destroyed by bombs. The number of wounded and sick is steadily mounting. Not only must ruined hospitals be replaced but new units must be built in addition. Hospital equipment is a major need.

"Kitchens on wheels, with a capacity for feeding 250 people, must be obtained in large numbers to be moved into bombed areas, with hot meals for the dispossessed, for the fire fighters, the rescue crews, demolition crews, and other emergency workers. Those are the major objectives today.

"Here is a concise summary of the British War Relief society's major accomplishments. We have furnished to Great Britain:

"Eight hundred forty-three thousand dollars in cash to relief agencies, including agencies caring for refugee children.

"One hundred ambulances [our own].

"One hundred sixty ambulances [for other organizations].

"Two hundred fifty-two feeding kitchens on wheels.

"Twenty-one portable X-ray units for hospitals and one $25,000 mobile X-ray unit for field hospital use.

"Equipment and supplies for 9,000 hospital beds, costing $360,000.

"Over 90,000 yards of bandages and 210,000 special handmade surgical dressings.

"One hundred ten thousand yards of wool and cotton textiles to be made into clothing by British women.

"Five thousand one hundred cots with bedding, for air raid shelters.

"Forty thousand pairs of new rubber boots.

"Seven thousand five hundred pairs of new shoes.

"Ten thousand two hundred and sixty-five cases of warm clothing, new and used, and woolen knitted goods weighing 1,184 tons and valued at $1,221,520.

"In addition to these relief activities we have:

"Furnished 260 ambulances, mobile surgical units, first aid vans, and personnel wagons, operated by the society's affiliate, American Ambulance, Great Britain, which is maintained by us;

"Furnished $155,300 for the maintenance of the American Hospital in Britain, Ltd., whose medical director, Dr. Philip D. Wilson, noted orthopedic surgeon, is in charge of a hospital outside of London with staff of 20 American surgeons and nurses."

WINTHROP W. ALDRICH,
President, British War Relief Society.

WITH PETRILLO'S CONSENT.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—So James Petrillo has told the United States army where to head in and what it can and cannot do!

Now as a future soldier, as my number has been called, and as a son of a veteran who served in the trenches in the last war, I would like to know if I must ask this man, please may I go?

Also in case this country ever becomes involved in a war and I am in the front when the zero hour for an attack has come, must I have his permission to go over the top to help my country?

I also would like to know where he will be in case such a thing should ever happen? I hope not too far back in safety and comfort for me to reach him.

Let no one talk of the tyranny of a Stalin or Hitler as long as we permit one man to tell the United States army what it can or cannot do.

A FUTURE SOLDIER.

FOOD FOR EUROPE.

Park Ridge, Ill., Dec. 12.—I stand for any plan to feed Europe's starving millions, providing this feeding does not prolong the war. It must be realized that Germany will not let any nation actually starve to death, as people who are in the last stages of starvation will riot regardless of guns, threats, or torture, and the Germans will feed them just enough to keep them above this stage. I hope that food can be gotten to these helpless people so that they will be several stages above this last low depth of desperation which comes with starvation.

TED DAY.

WHICH ONE? EDWARD?

Wilmette, Ill., Dec. 20.—It is thrilling and delightful for President Roosevelt to meet all these foreign royalties and, of course, he is grateful, but I don't think his gratitude should extend to sending an American army to put them back on their thrones. Do you? EMMA C.

IT WAS A MASTERPIECE.

A PATRON OF THE COACHES.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—With amazement I've been reading the attacks by aldermen concerning their experiences in our Chicago motor coaches.

Talk to people like me and my girl friends who go to work every day and who have used the coaches thru the years. We have every type of transportation in my neighborhood, but we ride the coaches and like it.

Last year during the great snowstorm I got to work on a coach and on time.

The coach company keeps the boulevards clear so automobiles are able to get thru. In all the years I have taken the coaches I have always been treated as tho it was my private car.

On our side of town women put their children on the coach and the driver takes care of them until they reach their destination. Each day I see my driver take care of a crippled girl who goes to school; he will ask a passenger to hold her books and see that she gets off safely.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—Why don't you publish the address of the Chicago headquarters of America First, and keep on publishing it day after day so the people can write for membership?

Better yet, why don't you or somebody start an America Only movement, whereby we fight to keep our money and men and resources in this country?

FARM RENT.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I have a small farm in southern Illinois that has been rented at a monthly rental for three years without written contract.

2. Can I obtain possession of it before March 1?

3. If so what is the procedure?

4. Do notices served have to conform to the month or merely 30 days from date of its reception? H. A.

1. We doubt if you could sustain the contention that because the rent is paid by the month the tenancy is by the month. A tenant would hardly put in annual crops on a monthly tenancy basis. We cannot advise without knowing what has been said as to the nature of the tenancy, on what calendar date the tenancy started, etc.

2. It seems probable that you can.

3. Try serving a notice of termination. If the tenant refuses then take the matter up with an attorney.

YOU STILL HAVE TIME TO BECOME A GOOD FELLOW

Here's How to Help Yule Basket Campaign.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Christmas is only a few days away, but there is still plenty of time for Chicagoans to join the work of the Good Fellows—the work which spreads Christmas cheer by bringing baskets of food, toys, and candy to unfortunate families who otherwise might not be remembered. Thousands of boys and girls are waiting for Santa Claus, and it's up to the Good Fellows to see that they're not forgotten.

Jeffrey R. Short.

The Good Fellow coupon will be published for the last time in tomorrow's TRIBUNE, but that doesn't mean that the Good Fellow campaign is closed. It may be a little late to organize a Good Fellow club in your social or business group, but it's not too late to send a money order or check to the Good Fellow fund or phone Superior 0200 for the name and address of a needy family whom you can help.

Here's Address of Bureau.

The Good Fellow bureau is located in The Tribune's Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street.

Jeffrey R. Short, chairman of the board of managers of the Chicago Y. M. C. A., will speak in behalf of the Good Fellow campaign on W-G-N at 2:30 p. m. today.

Rabbi Louis Binstock of Temple Sholom gave his annual Good Fellow address on W-G-N yesterday afternoon.

The Good Fellow bureau is in receipt of a check for $150 from the Chicago Association of Life Underwriters. President William M. Houze reported that the association will make an annual contribution to the Good Fellow fund.

Help of Two Acknowledged.

This is an acknowledgment of two kindly activities in behalf of Good Fellows. The Good Fellow bureau wishes to thank Mrs. Ora Snyder for the gift of 100 boxes of candy to be placed in Good Fellow baskets, and Hal Halperin of Theater Authority, Inc., for his assistance in the preparation of programs enjoyed at Good Fellow parties.

Members of the Hotel Sherman American Legion post, No. 668, will be Good Fellows to more than 50 boys and girls this Christmas. Basket deliveries will be made by the members Monday afternoon.

ADVENTURERS' CLUB PROVIDES YULE FEAST FOR LONDON CHILDREN

Members of the Adventurers club, 14 North Michigan avenue, learned last night that they will be hosts on Christmas day to 200 underprivileged children in London, England.

Each year the club members entertain 100 poor children for Thanksgiving dinner, giving them warm clothing and presents. After the dinner last month they decided to pass the hat and send the proceeds to the Savage club, of London, an affiliate, to make some British children happy on Christmas.

Last night the Adventurers received a cable from the Savages, thanking the Chicago men for their $250, and assuring them that even if the dinner is held in a bomb shelter, 200 London children were going to have a Christmas feast with all the trimmings.

TEAMSTER UNION NOMINATES WHILE POLICE STAND BY

A heavy police guard was on duty last night as members of local 705 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters met in Electricians' hall at Ogden avenue and Washington boulevard to nominate union officers. The election is to be held Dec. 29 in the union hall at 220 South Ashland avenue.

The guard was requested by a rank and file group which is seeking to oust the present officers. The meeting proceeded without violence after Sergt. George Barnes of the detective bureau warned the unionists that ample reserves were prepared to clear the hall at the first sign of disorder.

The incumbent president of the organization is Fred Tiedt. His slate is opposed by one headed by Ray Nelson, 2140 Wellington avenue, on whose doorstep a package of bullets was left Thursday. The union has 8,000 members, of whom 3,300 are gasoline filling station attendants. Tiedt assured the meeting that every member would have a chance to vote.

INQUIRY ORDERED INTO TROUBLE AT CUBAN NAVY BASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—The navy department tonight acknowledged it has ordered an investigation of the strike of some 5,000 Cuban workers employed by this government on the construction of new fortifications at the American naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba.

The strike was reported to have been called as a protest against the slaying of a Cuban workman. An American officer and two sailors as well as 18 Cuban workmen are said to be under arrest.

The navy department would not discuss any phase of the incident other than to say that naval officers in charge are investigating and will make a report.

Schools Give Pageants; Close for the Holidays

Chicago and suburban schools closed yesterday for the Christmas holiday vacation. At most of them pageants, plays, and musical entertainments were presented in honor of the holiday. Lane Technical High school pupils and teachers delivered 300 baskets of food, clothing, and toys to needy families of Lane pupils. Each room planned its own baskets with careful thought for the families who received them.

Chorus of Insurance Men Sings Noon Carol Concerts

'Tis the week before Christmas, and all thru the Insurance Exchange building ring the carols of the season. The singers are the 40 members of the Chorus of Chicago Insurance Men, directed by Wayne Howorth. Noonday concerts have been given in the lobby of the building during the week before Christmas ever since the chorus was organized four years ago.

U. S. FAMILIES HIT A NEW LOW OF 3.8 PERSONS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—For the first time in history the average American family now numbers less than four persons. The census bureau, analyzing the results of the 1940 census, reported today that the contemporary household has an average of 3.8 persons.

These statistics mean a continuation of the steady decline which has been in progress since the first family computation was made 50 years ago, and corresponded with annual figures of a declining birth rate. In 1890, the bureau pointed out, the average family consisted of 4.9 persons. Here's the way the decline has been recorded: 1890, 4.9; 1900, 4.7; 1910, 4.5; 1920, 4.3; 1930, 4.1; 1940 3.8.

The smallest families were found on the Pacific Coast, with an average of 3.2 persons a family in California, Oregon, and Washington. The largest were in the south Atlantic states, which averaged 4.2 for the region. North Carolina was the banner state with 4.5.

3 Brothers to Stand Trial on False Pay Roll Charge

Three brothers—Clarence, Russell, and Lloyd Erickson—were ordered yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker to go to Springfield to stand trial on a charge of making out false pay roll claims. They are stonesetters who held one of the contracts for construction of a courthouse in Decatur, a $1,000,000 Public Works administration project. It is charged that they forced employés to kickback part of their pay. The brothers, who are at liberty on $1,000 bonds each, live at 5429 North Campbell avenue.

Henry County Prosecutor Heads State Association

Martin E. O'Connor of Cambridge, state's attorney of Henry county, was elected president of the Illinois State's Attorney's association yesterday at the Morrison hotel. He succeeded Ward P. Holt of Salem. Other officers elected are: first vice president, George W. Howard Jr., of Mt. Vernon, state's attorney of Jefferson county; secretary treasurer, Donald M. Eaton of Galena, state's attorney of Jo Daviess county.

4 WPA CANVASES FOUND UNWORTHY THE NAME OF ART

2 Dealers Describe Them as Typical of Project.

(This is the third and last of a series of stories on productions of the Illinois WPA art project. The series was the result of a reporter's investigation following criticism that "art" produced by the project is wasteful, ugly, and communistic in theme.)

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

A maxim among collectors of painting is that there is no such thing as "poor" art. If the portrayal is not good, it isn't art. By this standard, two Chicago art experts said yesterday, the bulk of the canvases produced by the Work Projects administration federal art project in Illinois are not art.

The experts selected four canvases which they called representative of much of the project's output, and described them as "formless," "inane," and "just daubs of paint." The WPA workers who did these pictures are members of the artists' union, and the pictures are hung in the union headquarters at 1118 South Michigan avenue.

Blame Radical Group.

Persons active in the city's art life have asserted that there are radical and subversive wings in the union, that these wings dominate the union, and that the union, in turn, controls the WPA project. Project officials and the union, which has more than 100 of its 250 members on WPA, deny these accusations.

Art experts have also asserted that panels of mural paintings executed by WPA workers in the public schools and libraries are un-American in theme and design and show communist influence. School and library officials replied that they do not allow paintings in bad taste or of an unpatriotic nature in their institutions.

The four canvases reproduced on the back page today were chosen for analysis by Harry Engle, director of the Chicago Galleries association, 215 North Michigan avenue, and William O'Brien Jr., head of the O'Brien galleries, 820 Tower court. The galleries association displays the work of 150 artists of importance and the O'Brien art house is one of the oldest in the country.

Call Painting Unsightly.

Here is the description and critical comment on the four canvases:

NO. 1—This is entitled "I'm Gonna Sit Here Till They Come and Get Me" and is by Berenice Berkman.

ENGLE—"This certainly can't be a human being. It might be a sack of flour; but, no, I'd recognize a sack of flour."

O'BRIEN—"Why doesn't this thing—whatever it is—sit down or stand up, or something? There's certainly no evidence here of any knowledge of anatomy or drawing. It's unsightly, to be mild about it."

NO. 2—"Sorrow," by Anton Rogalski.

ENGLE—"Which is up and which is down in this masterpiece? It's disgusting, heathenish, probably meant to be a nun. It looks like part of a banana—a decayed banana."

O'BRIEN—"This is a desperate attempt at sensationalism. Wouldn't you love to live with it on the wall? Charitably, I'd call it formless, inane, plain cockeyed."

Criticised as Daub.

NO. 3—"Man Selling Green Apples," by Adelaide Fogg.

ENGLE—"It hasn't even any value as a cartoon or a comic valentine. It's just a daub of paint."

O'BRIEN—"Is that a man and are those apples? This is just willful distortion. There is no feeling to it, no texture. Completely cockeyed."

NO. 4—"If You Ain't Got a Dollar Give Me a Lousy Dime," by Miss Fogg.

ENGLE—"It's just silly. I have no further printable words to describe it."

O'BRIEN—"Why the request for a dime—certainly it can't be worth that, tho a lot of material was wasted in producing it. It's just plain rotten."

Some other examples of work by members of the artists' union were taken from the salon at the project headquarters, 1021 South State street, before they could be photographed.

N. Y. FOOT POLICEMEN SOON EXPECTED TO CARRY 2 WAY RADIO

New York, Dec. 20 [Special].—Even New York's foot policemen soon may be wired for sound. A two way portable radio, forerunner of standard equipment for policemen, was demonstrated successfully for Mayor Fiorella La Guardia today in his office.

A patrolman, carrying the entire 11 pound equipment concealed on his person, communicated with another policeman in City Hall park, a radio patrol car nearly half a mile down Broadway, and police headquarters, half a mile or more uptown.

The device, developed largely thru the work of Gerald S. F. Morris, superintendent of police telegraph, consists of a brown canvas breastlet with a slide fastener in front and a corsetlike lace in back. The transmitter is on the chest and the microphone, connected by a wire running thru the sleeve, is attached to the wrist. Surefire direct communication is limited to 1,000 feet, but any distance may be obtained by relays.

Commission Orders Wires Removed at City Airport

The Illinois Commerce Commission yesterday directed the Chicago Surface Lines to remove trolley wires and poles and tracks in Cicero avenue alongside the Chicago airport and to substitute motor buses for the steet cars used there now. The action was taken after the city council decided the poles were a hazard to air traffic.

ONE MAN LONELY HEART AGENCY IS LONELY NO MORE

Fred J. Hubert, 4545 Woodlawn avenue, was arraigned before Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday on charges of using the mails to defraud spinsters and widows of their savings after promising to marry them. Lonely hearts advertisments gave him contacts with the would-be brides, and he wooed several at a time, according to Robert Eardley, assistant United States attorney.

Hubert, described as virtually a one man matrimonial agency, was oft' promised but never a bridegroom, Eardley said. A dozen women accepted his proposals, and he took $15,000 from them before postal inspectors caught up with him, the prosecutor said.

Mrs. Helen Von Der Lind, 7252 Yates avenue, a widow, complained she gave him $1,800 to buy an automobile in which she got only one ride before he slipped out of her life. Miss Clara Schmidt of Kalamazoo, Mich., said she gave him $200 and never saw him again. Hubert, youngish at 60 and jovial looking, pleaded not guilty. The case will be heard Jan. 20.

CHRISTMAS BONUSES ARE DISTRIBUTED TO TRIBUNE EMPLOYES

All employés of The Tribune company received their Christmas bonuses yesterday. The amount of the bonus was determined by the same percentage of annual salaries and wages that has been in effect since 1915, except for the years 1930, 1931, and 1932. The distribution was made to members of the editorial, advertising, circulation, and auditing departments and to employés in the organized trades. The Tribune building staff, W-G-N staff employés, and workers of the Ontario Paper company also shared in the bonus. About 2,800 employés in Chicago participated.

Fisherman Is Drowned When Lake Ice Breaks

Coldwater, Mich., Dec. 20 [Special]. Ernest Smith, 23 years old, was drowned in South Lake here today when the ice gave way while he was fishing.

COUNCIL O. K.'S PLAN FOR BOARD ON U. S. DEFENSE

The city council authorized Mayor Kelly yesterday to name a Chicago commission on national defense to be composed of civic, business, and labor leaders. The mayor said the commission, which will act on its own initiative, is to analyze Chicago's production to determine how it may aid the national defense program and, to see that the city receives its share of defense contracts. The commission will develop community morale and help curb hysteria, the mayor said.

Debutante Party Rush Is On and Buds Hope They Survive

BY JUDITH CASS.

TODAY it starts, the social blitzkrieg that will last for just two weeks and that will leave debutantes and their mothers almost total wrecks. It all comes under the head of pleasure, however, and only once in a life time is a girl a bud. Some few are bored with the whole procedure but they are the ones who are going thru the motions of "coming out" just to please old fashioned, or socially ambitious parents. They find the gesture of being introduced formally into adult society an artificial one, even in normal times, so imagine how much less they care for such a thing in these unsettled days.

Jeanne Stenson's Dance First of the Festivities.

There aren't many of these serious minded youngsters, tho, and all the others subscribe to the theory that there will be time for weightier matters later and that this holiday season of 1940-'41 is a time for gayety and for mirth.

The first of the debutante festivities is the supper dance that the William J. Stensons are giving tonight at the Woman's Athletic club for their daughter, Jeanne. The ballroom will be decorated with frosty silver and blue Christmas trees to harmonize with the debutante's gown, which will be a French blue faille sprayed in gold threads and rhinestones. The vivacious bud will carry deep red roses.

Before the dance Miss Stenson will dine as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Wallace Johnson who will entertain at their home in East Schiller street for Miss Barbara Laubengayer of Kansas City. She is visiting her Pine Manor classmate, Miss Angeline Johnson, over the week-end. Miss Johnson is a debutante, also.

Another young group will have dinner preceding Miss Stenson's party as the guests of Miss Betty Gillespie, daughter of the Fred Gillespies.

Miss Muriel MacChesney Makes Her Bow Tomorrow.

The spacious old home on Hawthorne place of the Nathan William MacChesneys will be the scene of a debut tea tomorrow when their niece, Miss Muriel MacChesney, makes her bow. Between 4 and 7 o'clock the MacChesneys will be receiving with the debutante and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. MacChesney of Astor street.

Later the Chester MacChesneys will take their daughter's assistants and their escorts on to the Empire room of the Palmer House for dinner and dancing.

A trip to the Stadium via motor bus is on the calendar for the young dinner guests of the James B. Forgans tomorrow night. After a buffet supper at the house on the roof of the Hotel Sherman the group will go to the hockey game. Mr. and Mrs. Forgan are entertaining for two debutantes, Miss Joan Gray, daughter of the Horace Grays, and Miss Frances Amberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Amberg, and the Forgan's post-debutante niece, Miss Sidney Meeker.

Numerous Parties Are on Calendar for Tomorrow.

The debut calendar is studded tomorrow with several parties. Mrs. Lon C. Hill and her daughter, Georgette, are entertaining at supper and bowling for Miss Peggy Gratiot and Miss Ruth Burrows. The junior James D. Norrises' dinner and hockey party is for Miss Eleanor Norris, his sister. At the Indian Hill club, where the Howard R. Stones and Mr. and Mrs. A. Charles Goodrich are entertaining for Miss Betty Butler, a breakfast and winter sports party will be the order of the morning. At least winter sports were planned but according to the weather, indoor sports will be more in order.

During her Christmas vacation from Northwestern university, debutante Martha Stevens will be fêted at several parties. Postdeb Patricia Wilson will give a luncheon today in her home on Lake Shore drive.

Altho Miss Peggy Walls put "thumbs down" on an official debut, she'll be hostess to her friends at a hot grog party tomorrow from 3 o'clock to 5 o'clock at the North Michigan avenue home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ewart G. Walls. Miss Walls returned yesterday from Kemper hall.

J. Francis Dammann Jr. to Wed Kentucky Girl.

Announcement is being made today of the engagement of Miss Nancy McLaughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLaughlin of Covington, Ky., to J. Francis Dammann Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis Dammann of Winnetka. Miss McLaughlin was graduated from Smith college in 1939, the same year that Mr. Dammann finished at Harvard. He now is studying medicine at the University of Cincinnati. Mr. Dammann is coming home to spend Christmas with his family and his fiancée will come for the week-end between Christmas and New Year's.

Add the customary rush of Christmas parties to the crowded circle of prenuptial parties which are being given for Miss Helen Dick before her marriage to A. Werk Cook on Jan. 11 and you have a combination which would literally sweep a girl off her feet. Miss Sheila Cudahy arrives at home from Finch Junior college today and tomorrow she will give a luncheon for Miss Dick at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy Jr. of Lake Forest.

Spinster Dinner Being Given Next Monday.

Mrs. Albert B. Dick III. will give the spinster dinner on Monday and Miss Ethel Johnson will entertain at dinner for Miss Dick and Mr. Cook on Friday. The Edison Dicks will give a luncheon for the couple on Dec. 29 and Miss Edith Porter will entertain them at luncheon on Dec. 30.

On New Year's day Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cowles and their daughter, Edith, will take a group to dinner at the Tavern club and then to the hockey game.

Mrs. John Marshall will entertain for the young people at luncheon on Jan. 2 and on Jan. 5 Mr. and Mrs. Wyndham Hasler will give them a luncheon. Miss Anne Stuart has planned a kitchen shower for Miss Dick on Jan. 7.

Mrs. C. Frederick Childs will give a luncheon for the wedding attendants and the out-of-town guests on Jan. 11, the day of the wedding.

Mrs. Charles M. Kittle is giving a tea-dance and musical tomorrow afternoon from 3 until 6:30 o'clock at Camellia house, the Drake. Mrs. Kittle's son, Charles, is at home from the Asheville school to spend the holidays with his mother.

A Debutante of Today and Next Year

Miss Jeanne Stenson (left) will make her debut at a supper-dance at the Woman's Athletic club tonight, but Miss Althea Cunningham will not be making her formal bow to society until next season. Miss Stenson's party will start the round of festivities that will keep the debutantes and their beaux in a whirl for the remainder of the year. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William James Stenson of State parkway. Miss Cunningham's parents are the junior Secor Cunninghams.

By May Tinée.

Good Morning!

Noel Coward's "Bittersweet"—you saw a British screen version of it in 1933 featuring Anna Neagle and Fernand Graavey—now comes to the talking screen, vivid with color, tuneful, and, in a quietly dated way, actionful. . . . It will delight those with a yen for the team of MacDonald and Eddy.

Miss MacDonald is luscious to gaze upon. Technicolor becomes her marvelously. In one ensemble of a sort of grape jelly tone, she looks good enough to eat. Then there's a blue . . . yummy! She sings charmingly and often and performs with the genuine enthusiasm that makes both her and Grace Moore so heart warming.

Mr. Eddy ages a bit under the eye of the color camera but he also is in excellent voice. Those who love him will continue to love him.

The to-do is re the romance between a charming girl and her music teacher. . . . Sarah, engaged to a stuffed shirt of her parents' picking, falls in love with her voice teacher, Carl Linden, throws all plans to the winds for him, marries him, and departs from England with him for Vienna.

Here, gallantly and merrily she adopts his friends and adapts herself to a way of living, vastly different to that which she has known. . . . Under the sunshine of her presence Carl composes happily and his genius blossoms—genius that is not to be recognized till he is no more.

The final scenes are dramatic and touching.

The stars are blessed with adequate support, and a capable director manned the production. . . . Among the songs sung are "I'll See You Again," "What Is Love?" "Our Little Café" and "Serenade in Vienna."

"Bittersweet" SHOULD prove a most satisfactory holiday offering.

See you tomorrow.

Salvation Army Toy Shop Open and Doing a Rushing Business

The Salvation Army toy shop, where items are not sold, but given away, is once more doing a rushing business. This was announced yesterday by Mrs. Albert E. Ramsdale, manager of the shop and wife of Maj. Ramsdale, who originated the project four years ago.

The toy shop plan supplants the old method of including Army selected toys in the 4,000 baskets given away annually to poor families on Christmas eve. It provides an opportunity for poor parents to choose and plan gifts for their children. With few exceptions, the toys are new, having been purchased from the Army's current Christmas kettle fund.

The shop is part of the Army's Christmas activities, which include large parties for 8,000 boys and girls and distribution of gifts and sweets to 15,000 shut-ins in hospitals, orphanages, and homes for the aged.

Notes on the Miniature Rooms.

When visitors to Mrs. James Ward Thorne's American Rooms in Miniature at the Art Institute speak enthusiastically of their perfection, we think of the cherry pie on the table in the kitchen of the governor's palace at Williamsburg. Or of the iron kettle in which soft soap was boiled, visible thru the window. Or of the tiny hour glasses of different sizes that served as time pieces for southern Negro cooks—one of them actually works and the sand goes thru in 9½ seconds.

The same cherries are in the pie on the table that are on the cherry tree visible outside the door. They originally were little round beads in a bead basket Mrs. Thorne had picked up in an antique shop. The pie crust is real, and the cherries are cunningly cemented into the pan in such a fashion that they seem to be soaking in their own juice. The cherries are wired on to the tree and the little leaves were put on leaf by leaf.

In the parlor of the Samuel Wentworth house in Portsmouth, N. H.—date about 1710—the spectacles that lie on the table beside the knitting are square eye glasses with steel rims and the knitting is actually worked on celluloid needles the size of a pin. A half century later the spectacles on the table in the Cape Cod room are still rimmed, but are round in shape, and in the California house of our day the glasses are horn rimmed. In the drawing room of the Jeremiah Lee mansion at Marblehead, Mass., the clock opens and winds, every drawer of the secretary opens, and even the secret drawers are reproduced.

There are hundreds of similar enchanting, perfect details thruout the room, and the catalog helps you discover many of them. What you may want to observe yourself is how you can almost tell what time of day it is by the way the light comes thru the windows and how, looking thru the glass, the spectator actually has the feeling of being in an old house, with its occupants momentarily out of the room.

By Way of Report.

The song, Christmas Prayer, played by Griff Williams' orchestra from the Stevens, was written by Mrs. George Haskell of Chicago. . . . The title of the Sherwood play, There Shall Be No Night, has its origin in verses 4 and 5 of the last chapter of the Book of Revelation: And they shall see His face and His name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there; and they need use no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord giveth them light; and they shall reign forever and ever. . . . George A. Hughes, chairman of the board of the Edison General Electrical Appliance company, has just published a book, Salesmen Built America. . . . Alexander Woollcott's broadcast in honor of Ruth Gordon's 25th anniversary in the theater will be brought into the Selwyn, so the Here Today audience may hear it, too.

Outdoor Crib Is Erected at St. Peter's Church

"Glory to God and Peace to Men of Good Will," in modern neon lights, advertises the ancient scene of the Nativity above an outdoor crib which was completed at St. Peter church, Polk and Clark streets, yesterday. The crib, which faces Clark street, is a replica of the stable at Bethlehem. Supported by a six foot platform, it is 15 feet high, 20 feet long, and 10 feet deep. It is banked with evergreens. St. Peter's was the first church in the city to erect an outdoor crib four years ago, according to the Rev. Leander Conley, pastor.

Rockford College Party.

The Chicago Rockford College club will hold its annual holiday luncheon and card party at 1 o'clock Saturday, Jan. 4, at the new Abbott hall on Northwestern university's downtown campus.

Movie Closeup

Chicago's motion picture exhibitors who so genially play Santa Claus each year are again on the job, rarin' to go.

They announce that they will stage their Sixth Annual Christmas Basket party on the morning of December 23. . . . At this party—as most of you know—admission to the theaters is gained by the presentation of any quantity of nonperishable foods. This merchandise is made up into baskets and distributed to worthy and needy families.

Here's everybody's chance to do good and have fun at the same time. Rally round!

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

These have been hectic days and most of the people we know feel that there is worse to come in the way of excitement and frayed nerves. Holidays are fun, but the wear and tear is pretty fierce for all but the calm and competent who never leave chores to the last minute.

Those paragons of orderliness probably never feel the need of a pickup but the rest of us do. And our nomination for the best of all pickups is the luxurious bath. It's inexpensive and quick and it does good things for your weary spirits as well as your exhausted body.

A salt rub is wonderful when you're exhausted. Take a dip first, then rub the body briskly with plain ordinary table salt. You can dress this up a little by splashing a few drops of pine oil over the dry salt. Rub vigorously enough to make the skin tingle; then have a warm, followed by a cold, shower. You'll feel like a new, vigorous woman. Have a rubdown after this with your favorite cologne and you'll be ready for anything, fresh and fragrant.

If you're so tired you don't want to be refreshed, but would rather relax completely, have a different kind of a beauty bath. Have a tub bath, with the water warm. Toss in oil, or one of those bubble concoctions—anything you like in the way of a water softener and scenter. Lie in the tub for 10 or 15 minutes, with pads over your eyes and cream on your face. Your nerves will unkink slowly and thoroly. This is the kind of a bath to take when you're in the mood for a long, sound sleep. It will speed you on your way to slumber.

Draper-Adler Recital Year's Most Unusual

BY CECIL SMITH.

The year's most unusual recital will take place in the Civic theater tomorrow evening, when Paul Draper and Larry Adler pool their talents in a joint recital. The names of the two performers, up until now, have been much better known to night club devotees than to serious concert patrons. Mr. Draper has won a large nocturnal following by his highly individual dance style, which takes both ballet and tap dancing and weaves them together in novel fashion. Mr. Adler has demonstrated that the harmonica, played by a virtuoso, is not merely a toy, but a musical instrument of considerable resource.

Both of these young performers started upon their careers with no notion of offering their audiences anything more than diverting entertainment. But now both have developed so engrossing an interest in serious music that they hope to transfer the major part of their energies from the night club floor to the concert stage, where they will play and dance to classical music.

Mr. Adler and Mr. Draper had never met until 1933, when they both were engaged for a week at Radio City Music hall in New York. Vincente Minelli, a talented but somewhat rash young stage designer, had put together a stage setting with three flamboyant doors, and the management of the theater was determined to have somebody come thru each of the three doors. A soprano, as the act was finally staged, appeared thru the middle door; Mr. Draper tap-danced thru the left one; and Mr. Adler, with his harmonica, materialized thru the right one.

From this chance coalition of their talents the two artists quickly formed a mutual admiration society. As early as 1934 they began to talk about making a concert appearance together. But for six years their itineraries have been too different, as they moved from one booking to another. Except for a semiprivate recital in Santa Barbara, Cal., in 1939, this is the first time the long planned joint concert has been a geographical possibility.

Mr. Adler confesses that he is a bit bowed down by his new responsibilities as a serious concert artist. He arrived at a party last week just in time to hear two erudite gentlemen debating whether he is an "abstraction" or a "visualization." He says that his dearest hope is that he is "a darn good mouth organ player."

Hassocks make welcome gifts in big families, for young people like to use them in place of chairs. And they're so easy to carry about wherever they are most needed, in game room, living room, or study. Some we saw recently are most inexpensively priced, being less than five dollars, and come in cream or beige toned leatherette. More expensive are ones that imitate leopard skin.

Fur Muff, Hat Exciting Gifts at Low Price

BY REA SEEGER.

While a fur coat, cape or jacket in a Christmas box is sufficient cause for excitement on Christmas morning, fur muffs, tippets, scarfs, and hats will cause the same amount of glee. You've no idea how many beautiful fur pieces tagged with comparatively modest price marks are obtainable until you go shopping. One fur collection boasts some sensational muffs made of silver fox tails and blue fox tails [this shade is a particularly flattering smoke gray]. The prices are below $25 and they look like twice that amount.

Leopard skin's most telling rival is ocelet, spotted pelt considerably less expensive. You can find stunning round muffs, flat muffs, ascots or trim little hats of this fur. These make ideal gifts for the subdebs on your lists. Muffs of leopardskin with just the fur on one side look the luxury items they are but have reasonable price marks.

Dramatically marked black and white civet cat [skunk] is used for muffs, muff-handbags, hats and brief shoulder capes in sets, or separable units. These too have modest price marks.

For more money but still surprisingly low amounts, you can select short fur jackets, hip-length civet cat [skunk] with bracelet length sleeves, smart cinnamon brown mouton that looks so much like expensive beaver, fleecy white sheepskin lined with flame red or emerald green, caracul jackets, sable dyed squirrel, frosty silver fox beauties and the modestly priced guanaco jackets, hip-length or shorter.

The Odor of Violets

By Baynard Kendrick

[Copyright: 1940: By Baynard Kendrick.]

INSTALMENT XXX.

PERFUME AD.

A policeman halted them at the door, staring at the captain and his dog inquiringly. Maclain stood slightly to one side smiling inwardly at the volubility of Bunny's whispered explanation which the president of International Aircraft thought he was pouring into the officer's ear alone. Even Bunny Carter was stopped at the door of International to explain the presence of a friend.

A moment later they stepped inside, Maclain doubly guided by Schnucke on his left and the presure of Bunny's hand on his arm. They crossed a large lobby which the captain judged to be a reception room and were stopped at another door. Bunny's whispered explanation was repeated again. It admitted them into a smaller room where a girl's friendly voice said, "Good morning, Mr. Carter."

Bunny introduced his secretary, Miss Tavestock, to Duncan Maclain. They went thru another door.

"This is my private office, at least." Bunny conducted the captain to a chair.

Maclain's left hand lightly brushed the flat top walnut desk in passing. Once seated, he let his fingers rest on the leather arms of the chair and said, "Lie down, Schnucke." The dog stretched herself out close beside him.

"They certainly make you comfortable," he remarked, settling back at ease. "I suppose the importance of your office is indicated by the size of this room. A man could almost get lost in here."

A creak of a spring sounded as Bunny sat down in his swivel chair. "I'd be a sorry president if I couldn't pick the best office in the place for myself."

The springs creaked again as he leaned back a trifle too far and straightened up suddenly, bringing both his feet to the floor. "Damn it all, Maclain, you worry me! Who told you this office was big? You touched my desk as you passed by, but how do you know I didn't walk you across the room and set you close to the opposite wall?"

The captain's eyebrows wriggled delightedly. "None are so blind," he said, "as those who have ears and won't see."

"Don't be cryptic," Bunny pleaded. "I honestly mean it—you worry me."

"I can judge the size of a room by the sound of my voice," the captain explained. "It's a trick I learned by reading Bragg's book, 'The World of Sound.' The late blind Justice Fielding and Sir Arthur Pierson both developed it until they could give the dimensions of any room they entered with amazing accuracy. Try it yourself, Mr. Carter. If you practiced it consistently for about 20 years you'll find that it comes very easily."

"I don't know why Col. Gray doesn't hire you as a spy instead of sending you up here to worry me!" Bunny tapped his toes thoughtfully on the heavily carpeted floor. "Ribbentrop woud probably take you on a personally conducted tour of the Krupp works—heaven knows what you'd be able to see."

"You might be surprised." Maclain leaned forward earnestly. "I've already learned the approximate dimensions of the buildings you're putting up, and of the one we're in now by driving past them in your car. Would you like me to tell you?"

"No!" said Bunny emphatically. "You'll give me a headache if you're anywhere near right. I'm having enough trouble with espionage now."

"I noticed that as we came in," Maclain remarked dryly.

Bunny slapped the desk top with the flat of his hand. "It would do this country a lot of good if everybody in it had to spend some time around a business that was meat and drink for a spy. One of the directors was howling his head off just the other day about 'foolish precaution.' I wish he could have been here this morning to get a demonstration of what even you can see. Not that I mean to be discourteous," he added quickly.

"Skip it," said Maclain.

Bunny left his chair back of the desk and began to pace the floor. "Things are so stringent here now that visitors to the plant here on business aren't allowed to go to the restrooms alone for fear of what they may see. The public doesn't realize that a single glimpse of wings hung up in a drying room can be built up to give an accurate estimate of how many planes we're turning out a day."

"That's interesting," said Maclain.

"It's maddening," Bunny assured him, "when you're trying to keep information quiet that the whole world wants to know. Supposing a trained agent sees finished planes thru an open door. He can figure out how much space they're occupying on the floor. Photographs are taken of the plant as a whole from the outside and measured to scale. Watch is kept on how many hours the plant runs in a week. That information is compared with plants in the agent's own country and they know almost to a hair what will come out of this plant during the next few months."

"And what about your own employés?"

"They have to keep pretty much to their own departments," Bunny explained, "but of course information can leak out even there. Naturally we take every precaution we can—it's vital information such as Tredwill's bombing sight that worries me. That's why I had him do a lot of his work at home. And now——"

"You, now," Maclain put in, "information has leaked out even there. Tracings have been made of Tredwill's plans. When we find out who did that, Mr. Carter, we'll find out who kidnaped that girl."

The captain paused, crossed his legs, and smoothed his overcoat down. Bunny quit pacing the office and hoisted himself upon his desk.

For a time he kicked his heels against the side. Then he asked:

"Where do we go from there?"

"All over the United States." The captain's voice lowered to a note which was grippingly serious and grim. "Catch a spy, Mr. Carter, and you have nothing at all. To break up espionage you have to catch a skilfully organized band. We're up against one now. They have one weak link. If they make tracings, those tracings have to be delievered somewhere, somehow. Tracings aren't easy things to get out of a house like the Crags by mail. Equally weak is the fact that somehow instructions must be sent to an individual spy."

Bunny sucked his upper lip in thoughtfully. "I see."

"That's gratifying." Maclain put one hand into his inside coat pocket. "Mr. Carter, I want a girl."

"A girl?" Bunny repeated incredulously.

"One who can type," said Maclain. "She has to have certain qualifications. Foremost among them is that she can keep her mouth shut. She has to have an unbroken record as an American citizen—a record that's known to you. She must lack curiosity entirely and not be subject to temptation at the sight of a lot of money."

"Miss Tavestock will fill the bill," Bunny remarked without hesitation. "What do you want her to do?"

"I want her to copy a letter," said Maclain. "I want it copied exactly. Each line must be measured with a ruler and spaced to the fraction of an inch, and I want a stencil cut so that I can feel it all the way thru the paper."

"That's easy enough. What sort of a letter is it?"

"It's a letter from a perfume house," said Duncan Maclain, "and that's the hard part about it. If Miss Tavestock gets curious and happens to mention it to her boy friend some night, or to any one else, she's apt to wake up some bright morning and find that her head's been chopped off on the floor!"

When Duncan Maclain left the International Aircraft plant he was carrying a brief case loaned to him by Bunny Carter. Inside that pigskin bag was the stencil cut by Miss Tavestock and an ediphone record from Bunny's machine. On that record was a verbal copy of the advertising letter as read to Maclain in Bunny's most formal dictating tone. The contents of the letter were not only engraved on the cylinder, but were equally impressed on the sensitive receptiveness of Duncan Maclain's brain.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Our mail is full of Christmas questions these days, and the telephone rings almost constantly as women seek an answer to the many peculiar little problems of holiday cookery and meal planning. So today I'm turning over the column to the inquiring cook.

1. "Can you suggest some interesting vegetable to serve with turkey or duck for Christmas dinner?"

Any vegetable well prepared is "interesting." How about buttered or creamed brussels sprouts or broccoli, or frozen peas or lima beans with butter or butter and cream? Or green beans with lemon juice and butter. Or mashed turnips, rutabagas, or squash, frozen or canned corn with green pepper and pimiento. Plain, ordinary buttered carrots are a good choice. So are baked or scalloped onions, or Harvard beets.

Most women prefer buttered vegetables to those prepared with sauces, simply because in the last minute rush to get everything ready at once it is a joy to have a vegetable which needs very little attention.

And speaking of vegetables, don't serve both white and sweet potatoes. One is sufficient. And if you choose the sweets, don't serve squash as the other vegetable. They're too much alike.

2. "What could I serve at a buffet supper for 14 year olds during Christmas week?"

How about this menu: Baked ham decorated with pineapple and cherries, scalloped potatoes, waldorf salad, carrot sticks, celery and olives, strawberry sundaes with Christmas cookies, hot cocoa or sweet cider?

3. "Will you plan a Christmas morning breakfast for company?"

I assume that this is to be a late breakfast, and that the only other meal will be the Christmas dinner in the evening. If it isn't a late breakfast, I'd omit the eggs and possibly the Canadian bacon from the menu: Cranberry or loganberry juice [for the red color], or broiled grapefruit with a cherry in the center, fried slivers of Canadian bacon, eggs scrambled in a double boiler, cinnamon and raisin coffee cake, plenty of hot coffee.

4. "Do you have a recipe for a wassail bowl?"

In England the wassail bowl consisted of hot, spiced ale with baked apples in it. Yours can be that kind, mulled cider with apples, or hot spiced grape juice with the baked apples. Anyway, it should be hot, and there should be apples.

Yuletide Wassail.

[Serves Eight.]

6 baked apples
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¾ cup sugar
1½ quarts ale
Grated rind of 1 lemon
¾ cup sherry

Peel apples, core and fill centers with sugar. Bake at 350 degrees until tender, using a small amount of water in the bottom of the baking pan. Cool. Add spices and sugar in recipe to a pint of the ale. Heat, but do not boil. Stir occasionally. Add lemon rind, remaining ale and sherry. Stir occasionally until very hot. Pour over the baked apples in a punch bowl.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Saturday, Dec. 21.

With a reasonable amount of caution in relations with higher-ups, today can be made quite constructive and satisfactory. Note well earliest ideas and plans that drift in — they can be really good and profitable later. Be sociable in the evening.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead is significant year for ambitions, occupation, reputation and home, if this is your birthday. Think clearly, not wishfully, don't be gullible. Follow ideals, make good changes. Danger Feb. 4-17; June 23-July 2.

Tomorrow.

Beginnings of better things to come; but keep an eye on general environment.

Do you want an individual interpretation for your own personal date? Send 10c for your 1941 horoscope (or 5c for balance of 1940 horoscope—15c for both) to WYNN, Tribune Astrologer, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, date of birth, and address.

Frock for Street or Home

WOMEN'S AND MISSES' FROCKS.

This delightful design will make both a street frock and a home dress, depending upon the fabric you choose and the trimming you select. Striped cottons make up smartly in the zipper-closed house frock, with its large and unusual pockets and its collarless neckline. The street dress effectively uses small prints and plain shades and adds a spanking white or pastel collar for contrast.

Style No. 2747 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material for short sleeved dress; 3½ yards with ¼ yard of contrasting for long sleeved version.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the winter Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

Here is an ensemble which may be worn by the college girl, school youngster, and even the adult. A knitted beret and matching cravat done in an interesting "twill" stitch are grand for outdoor sports. The head size of the beret may be adjusted.

For instructions for knitting the beret and matching cravat, No. 864, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Most Parents Wish Generous Type of Child

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

I've decided that both heredity and home atmosphere figure in making a child grow up to be generous or stingy.

If we were asked I believe most of us would say that we want our children to be generous. Generosity is one of the qualities we most admire in people. It is a virtue with an open gesture, a free one. It gives the pleasant impression that material things are not of chief consequence in the world, for sharing at the cost of going without yourself, or giving because some one else will be pleased, means that you place the valuation of the material thing far below the pleasure or profit of another person.

In contrast, to what a degree stinginess is held in contempt! Sometimes I wonder if the reason we attach so much importance to these qualities may not be because they are significant of deeper things in a person's character. For example, isn't it hard to think of a really stingy person as spiritually large, as having a warm, sympathetic nature?

In any case, one quality we want our children to have is generosity. Some have it naturally. They are free with their possessions, their treats, their sweets.

But other children have not that quality. They are what we call "stingy." Now the question is, can generosity be cultivated, or if it seems entirely lacking, can it be instilled? I think it can by example, and by wise guidance on the part of mothers and fathers and nurses.

When the fault is recognized, it is well to create a kind of conspiracy to undermine it so that it will eventually disappear. Christmas certainly provides opportunity for the beginning of such a plan.

"You and Your Young Child" is the name of a booklet helpful to parents, and it may be obtained by sending a large, self-addressed stamped envelope to Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

The variety of stratagems possible at bridge is, perhaps, the game's greatest charm. Average players feel a distinct thrill in being able to apply a standard and remembered coup to an appropriate situation. Experts get an even greater thrill in concocting a remedy for an unknown ailment. The declarer's management of the hand shown below deserved applause.

Pass	Pass

When West opened the king of diamonds and the dummy appeared, declarer saw that there was distinct danger of losing four tricks and, hence, his contract. To win with dummy's ace of diamonds and return a diamond in the hope of ruffing a third round, would be merely naive. The defenders certainly would stop this ruff by taking out dummy's single trump. Then, if both the club ace and the spade king were "offside," declarer would be helpless.

A good player allows for bad breaks whenever he can do so without conceding vital tricks and, in this case, declarer saw a method by which he might make the contract even if the important honors in the black suits were badly placed for him. Winning the first trick with the diamond ace, he proceeded to lead dummy's spade queen. The shrewdness of this play is apparent on a study of declarer's combined resources, and the consequences were precisely what could be expected.

East won with the king, but now could do nothing to defeat the contract. A diamond return brought in a second defensive trick and a club shift a third. But now dummy's trump formed an impregnable bulwark against another diamond trick, and declarer, of course, could ruff a club continuation. Finally, a trump return would deliver control into the declarer's hand. The trumps would be drawn, and the embarrassing third diamond discarded on dummy's established spade trick.

Declarer's play was extremely simple but, as in most cases of this type, it required discovery.

Military Ball, Pageant.

A regimental review, a military pageant, and a farewell ball will be given for the friends and officers of the 108th quartermaster regiment, Illinois National Guard, in the new Northwest armory at Kedzie and North avenues on Saturday, Dec. 28.

Nights Filled with Carols and Parties

State street, with its Christmas music blasting forth from loud speakers, has nothing on Chicago suburban districts. The night shall be filled with music tomorrow, particularly on the north shore, for the carolers will be out full force. The beaver-hatted gentlemen who will sing their way up and down Astor and State streets are members of the Great Lakes Dredge and Philharmonic society and there'll be many heads pressed to window panes watching for them, for they're a much-feted organization.

Chimes of 6 o'clock will see the Indian Hill club, en masse, trilling its way thru what they hope will be snowy streets. Tea will be served at the club after the carolers return. The Dunham Woods, singers complete with hoods and capes à la Christmas cards, will group around the clubhouse in Wayne at 4 o'clock and afterwards will join in a party in the old coach-house. Mrs. William H. Noyes Jr. is in charge of the Dunham Woods songs.

There will be several parties for children today and tomorrow. The second of half of "I Married Adventure" [the first half was shown last week] will be shown at the Junior Esquire hour at the Esquire theater this morning, under the sponsorship of the Woman's exchange. The children will again answer a questionnaire on the movie and those submitting the best answers will sit with the "Quiz Kids" in a question and answer program at next Saturday's show.

Trained birds will perform at the Christmas party the Tavern club will give tomorrow afternoon from 12:30 o'clock to 3:30 o'clock for the children of members and their guests. Victor Charles and his marionettes will give their version of "Tom Sawyer."

The Lake Shore club will have a dance tonight for teen age young people and tomorrow the annual children's Christmas party will be given. It will be in the afternoon around a 20 foot Yule tree in the lounge.

A buffet supper will be served following tomorrow's second annual Christmas party at the Columbia Yacht club. William Whalen, owner of the yacht Audax of Columbia's fleet, will play Santa Claus to the youngsters who attend with their parents.

The Jackson Park Yacht club's annual Christmas party for members will be held tomorrow afternoon in the club house at the outer Jackson Park harbor.

If Yours Is a Short Neck, Here Are Tips

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We recall a woman of the theater bemoaning the shortness of her neck, reciting the difficulties attendant theron. She said: "I never saw a woman whom I would vote a beauty whose neck was not long and slim."

On another occasion we heard the long slender neck referred to as the possession of an aristocrat, as opposed to the peasant quality of the short, broad neck.

In any event, the long slender throat is a great asset. It allows for liberties of dress neckline, coiffure, and jewels, costume or otherwise. Throat length is one of the few characteristics that cannot be physically reshaped, so on artful subterfuge one must rely, and miraculous are the possibilities therein.

If one's neck is short, one would wisely choose the smaller pieces in necklace decor if not foregoing them entirely for pins set away from the throat. Or, if you choose baubles on a necklace chain, don't choose the choker type of thing. Let the baubles droop down a bit at the center front of the throat to give length. Even tho you are a petite little person, the clumpy necklace gives you a squashed down look.

Don't wear collar lines spread away from the sides of the neck, nor the square or heart shaped line currently popular. Get as long a V as you can for the neck front by letting the collar hug the neck sides before the long line begins, and put your pins down low where the V begins to end or where it ends.

Boy Makes Test Case of Girl, and Is Tested!

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I've known a girl for two years," writes Paul. "I've never taken her out until two months ago. Then it was just for a ride or a neighborhood show. She always did like me. I could tell that from the way she broke dates to go out with me. I was making a test case of her because I think when you get around to serious thoughts about marriage you should test the girl in the case.

"I had spent plenty of money on other girls, understand, and found they were ungrateful and always wanted more. I figured that if I tried a girl out for a year or more without spending any money on her, and see how she'd react to that, I'd get a good cue as to what kind of wife she'd make.

"What I found out was that she is becoming like the rest. She's hinting now to go to more expensive places of entertainment and shows discontent with the simpler and less expensive amusements."

Paul goes on relating incidents in which the girl's demands take on terrifying proportions to him, the marrying candidate. To us, it looks as if the girl were applying a test situation of her own. We suspect she's aiming to find out, in her own way, whether or not this suitor is a tightwad who'd feel he'd done enough for a girl by leading her to the altar.

Of course, we do advise couples to get to as clear an understanding of each other as possible before marriage, but we certainly hesitate to endorse Paul's system. The wonder to us is that love wasn't starved out completely in the process. During courtship starvation diet of entertainment is not recommended.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 20.—This is Hollywood: An outside unit headed by a youngster named Robert Sherwood has been making a film called "Legacy" at Columbia. It's from a Charles Bonner story called "Adam Had Five Sons." The picture is finished and Columbia finds it doesn't like the "Legacy" title. It can't go back to Bonner's original, because in the script one of the sons was eliminated. And they can't call it "Adam Had Four Sons" because it wouldn't be accurate, and besides it would sound like a Warner sequel to "Four Mothers."

Laraine Day is a lovely, demure young Mormon girl on the Metro lot. The nurse in the Kildare things, who went on loan to Walter Wanger as the heroine of "Foreign Correspondent." Well, Miss Day is pleased as anything because the Hays office has killed about half the stills she made for a new picture on the grounds that they were too sexy.

Speaking of stills, Ingrid Bergman has gone to work opposite Robert Montgomery in "Rage in Heaven," a 1932 model James Hilton story about an attractive madman. Miss Bergman is tall, modest and Scandinavian, and has probably the best complexion in Hollywood. The first day she reported she didn't go before the movie camera, but instead was asked to pose for some poster stills in the big scene in which Montgomery, crazy as a coot, bends eerily over her. "Get into a nightgown and get into bed," she was ordered. She produced the most beautiful blush since Billy Grady introduced Jimmy Stewart to Georgia Carroll and faltered, "But I haven't met Mr. Montgomery, and don't you think it would be a little—ah—odd for a first meeting?"

Grim prophecy: Two days ago a flying fortress from March field crashed into a mountain. Yesterday Mitchell Leisen, making the final shot in Paramount's "I Wanted Wings," staged a scene in which a news broadcaster bulletins, "A four engined bomber is reported to have crashed in the hills north of March field." The script was written last August.

The Warners have planted "Flight from Destiny" for an opening at the Radio City Music hall in New York. Report is that it's an offshoot of the deal by which the music hall will also get Frank Capra's "Meet John Doe," also a Warner release. . . . Capra, incidentally, was seen huddling the other night with Universal's Matty Fox. . . . Remarkable statistic from a publicity release: "Up and coming Virginia Gilmore has had exactly 32 magazine and syndicate interviews during the last two months, and her face still is practically unknown to the public." . . . Hollywood's gone air-daffy. Forthcoming plane pix include "I Wanted Wings," "Eagle Squadron," "Eagle Flies Again," "Dive Bomber," and "Flight Surgeon." However, Bob Montgomery's "Range in Heaven" and Gene Autry's "Ridin' On a Rainbow" involve no aviation. . . . After a three cornered fuss, Howard Hughes finally got Samuel Goldwyn's camera artist, Gregg Toland, to finish "The Outlaw."

In "Santa Fe Trail," a swell thriller which should have been titled "Bloody Kansas" or "Date at Harper's Ferry," Errol Flynn finds himself in a tight spot when he has to shoot his way out of a burning barn. You watch what happens. He fires eleven shots out of his own six shooter, then grabs a gun from the hand of a man he has shot—and who, presumably, has been taking pot shots at Flynn—and lets go with nine more bullets. That's the old Flynn, all right. . . . It is reported that Edward Small, whose latest was "Son of Monte Cristo," will stop producing as of Jan. 1.

James Cagney and Bette Davis, long time stars of the Warner lot, will finally appear together in "The Bride Came C. O. D." They've been campaigning for ten years for a chance to play opposite each other. The picture is a comedy, and an early shooting schedule has forced Miss Davis to abandon plans for a New England Christmas at her home in New Hampshire.

PITT BEATS ILLINOIS, 43 TO 41; DE PAUL WINS

LIGHTWEIGHT'S ATTACK JOLTS HEAVIER RIVAL

16,949 See Bout in Garden Ring.

New York, Dec. 20 [Special].—Fritzie Zivic, world welterweight champion, and Lew Jenkins, recognized in New York as the lightweight title holder, tonight fought 10 rounds to a draw in Madison Square Garden before 16,949 fans. It was the first draw decision rendered in a main bout in the garden since Al Roth and Paul Junior fought on even terms more than three years ago. No championship was at stake.

Referee George Walsh cast his ballot for Jenkins; Judge Steve Hamas voted a draw, and Charlie Draycott voted for Zivic. The referee's card gave Jenkins seven rounds to three for Zivic. Hamas made it four, four and two even. Draycott voted five and five, but gave Zivic the decision.

Zivic Has Weight Edge.

Zivic never seemed to untrack himself. Afterward Manager Luke Carney explained Zivic's showing with the statement the welterweight champion was weak at the weight, 142½ pounds. Jenkins, at 135¼, appeared stronger than usual. At the finish he had cuts over both eyes, the bridge of his nose was bruised, and his lips were battered.

Jenkins started off furiously. He fought thru the first three rounds as if intent on nothing short of a clean-cut knockout of his heavier rival.

Raking the welterweight champion with long-arm rights and lefts in a punishing fire to the head at long range, and to the ribs and mid section in the clinches, Jenkins looked especially strong in the opening rounds. He banged Zivic repeatedly under the heart, reached the head and grazed Zivic's jaw. A right in the third made Zivic hold frantically.

In the fourth and fifth, however, Zivic pressed Jenkins bout the ring, fighting to close quarters, battering Jenkins with volleys of short-arm lefts and rights. In the sixth Jenkins rallied, and in one flurry the gangling Texan rushed Zivic to the ropes under a right to the jaw.

Zivic Comes Back.

In the seventh and eighth rounds Zivic battered steadily to the head with such good effect that Lew sought the refuge of clinches when not in full flight. A left hook opened a cut over Jenkins' right eye in the seventh, and in the eighth clubbing rights opened a cut about the left eye. Then a left hook made Jenkins' knees sag and sent him into another clinch.

Thru the ninth, Zivic carried the fighting, walking in fearlessly, but in the 10th, Jenkins, throwing everything he had into a final assault, battered Zivic with vicious lefts and rights to the body. Near the end of the round Zivic's left cut Jenkins' nose, but Lew carried on to the final bell.

The gross receipts amounted to $51,019.

2 REASONS FOR TIGER SUCCESS: GREENBERG, YORK

Hank Leads Runs Batted In Parade with 150.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[RECORDS ON PAGE 19.]

Hank Greenberg and Rudy York contributed so many runs to the Detroit Tigers' cause last season that no further explanations for the team's pennant achievement are necessary.

The Tigers couldn't field—they were sixth—and their pitching staff as a whole was only the fourth best, but the bats swung by Hank and Rudy kept these defects concealed, according to data produced yesterday in the American league's official slugging records.

Greenberg drove in 150 runs, an average of better than one per game, and his mate Rudy got into the quantity productions to the tune of 134, a mark that put him in second place, one run above Joe DiMaggio of the Yanks. Greenberg's 150 total was an increase of 38 over his 1939 work.

Williams Is Still Good.

Ted Williams, the Boston's Red Sox unorthodox bat wielder, was one of ten potent enough to account for more than 100 runs, but was forced to concede the honor he picked up the season previous, when he was the pacemaker with 145 in 149 games. Last season he drove home 113 in 144 games, thus dropping to fifth among the slugging elite. Jim Foxx, mate of Williams, topped the latter by one run. This makes the twelfth season in succession that Foxx has been in the 100 ranks.

The season developed a few especially good waiters. The best of these was Charley Keller of the Yanks. He walked 106 times, a lot of these probably being gifts before the pitchers learned that he wasn't the same Keller who slugged the Reds' pitchers in the 1939 world series. Harlond Clift of the Browns picked up 104 passes. Charley Gehringer, the Tiger veteran, and Foxx each drew 101. Luke Appling, the White Sox's shortstopping expert, walked 105 times in 1939, but must have been tired in 1940. He took only 69 strolls.

Hank Is a Wild Swinger.

Some of the fellows who had fun driving in runs or walking, didn't fare so well in the matter of strikeouts. Greenberg went out 75 times on strikes, York 88 times, and Foxx 87. Joe DiMaggio had a big edge on these three. He fanned only 30 times. The setup in this department was Sam Chapman of the Athletics. He walked back to the bench on 96 occasions as the result of pitched balls getting past his bat.

Lou Boudreau, in his first full season at shortstop for the Indians, crowded into the select ten run producers but, nevertheless had more than one man's share of double play mishaps. He grounded into 23, a total unmatched by any other player.

Frankie Crosetti retained his title as the league's most willing target. He was hit ten times, the fifth consecutive year in which he has distinguished himself in this respect.

PANTHERS GAIN 2D TRIUMPH IN BIG 10 INVASION

Illini Lead at Half, 18-15; Beaten in Overtime.

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 20 [Special].—Pittsburgh defeated Illinois, 43 to 41, in an overtime basketball game here tonight after the regulation playing period ended 36 all. It was the Panthers' second two point triumph over a Big Ten quintet, Wisconsin having been defeated Wednesday night, 36 to 34.

The Panthers went into the lead in the overtime period on free throws by Claire Malarkey and George Kocheran when Capt. John Drish and Walter Evers of Illinois fouled out of the game.

Port Puts Pitt Ahead.

William Hocking, who replaced Drish, put Illinois back in the running when his basket tied the score at 38 all. Melvin Port's sleeper and Lawrence Paffrath's goal sent Pitt ahead four points. Art Mathisen, lanky Illini sophomore center, counted two points. Edward Ziolkowski's free throw on Vic Wukovits' fourth personal made it 43 to 40 for Pitt and Harold Shapiro scored Illinois' 41st point on Ziolkowski's foul.

Pitt fought an uphill battle. The Panthers held the lead for only a second in the first half. At half time the Illini were in front by 18 to 15.

With the score 29 to 22 for the Illini the Panthers began to whittle down the disadvantage. Two baskets by Samuel Milanovich and one each by Port, Ziolkowski, and Malarkey, while Illinois was making only two points on Evers' basket, gave Pitt a 32 to 31 lead with six minutes remaining.

Evers, Drish Tie Score.

Two baskets by Port and one by Milanovich put Pitt ahead, 36 to 31. Evers' basket and two free throws and Drish's free throw enabled Illinois to tie the score before the regular playing time ended.

Port, with six baskets, and Milanovich, with four goals and three free throws, paced the Panther scorers. High men for the Illini were Evers, with five baskets and three free throws, and Mathisen, with four and one. Pitt's Eddie Straloski, who got 19 points against Wisconsin, was limited to a free throw before he fouled out.

While the Illini lost three men in the overtime period on fouls, Pittsburgh had two foul out in the regular period—Straloski and Milanovich.

NEW TWINS GIVE BOSTON ELEVEN A NEW INCENTIVE

Bay St. Louis, Miss., Dec. 20 (AP).—Boston college's football team held a brisk practice today with a new incentive to score on Tennessee in the Sugar bowl game—a promise that the first man scoring two touchdowns could name a pair of twins.

The New Englanders had just sat down to a breakfast of wheatcakes after arriving here to wind up training for the Volunteers game when Back Field Coach Ed McKeever was handed a telegram announcing his wife had given birth to twin daughters in Boston. McKeever leaped to his feet and shouted to the cheering room of football players: "The first man making a touchdown against Tennessee can name one of the babies. The first man making two touchdowns can name both babies."

Hawk Owner Wins Duel with Manager on Judging Rookies

BY EDWARD BURNS.

In the Blackhawks' fall training this year Johnny Mariucci, former University of Minnesota football star and hockey player, was identified as "Maj. McLaughlin's boy" and Dave MacKay, former University of Alberta hockey star, was known as "Paul Thompson's boy" in the rivalry for a defense job on the Hawks.

It was explained that the Hawk owner fancied Mariucci because of his dash and color. Thompson favored MacKay, he said, because Canadian college hockey is the same type as played in the National league, whereas American college hockey as played by Mariucci at Minnesota is something else again.

Go to Minors.

Well, it was a great fight between the two pet rookies when one day in St. Paul, a week before the start of the current season, President Bill Tobin came up with a couple of airplane tickets, one for Mariucci and one for MacKay. Both were tagged for Providence as the destination and the Providence Reds are the Hawks' farm club. The two collegiate rivals soared together to the minor league club.

A month ago the Hawks sold Defense Man Jack Portland to the Canadiens. MacKay, or Thompson's boy, got the job. He was recalled and many nice things were said about him until he hurt his knee.

The injury to MacKay left the Hawks short a defense man so in came Mariucci. Because of his football reputation, perhaps, his play in two games with the Hawks was watched carefully by the large crowd of customers in the Stadium last Sunday night and the handful which set a new low record Thursday night.

Mariucci Does Well.

Mariucci, tho obviously playing under a handicap because he was put on the ice without opportunity to prepare for his first major league encounter, showed well in his first match. And he showed even better in the more or less private game Thursday night. It became evident that maybe Maj. McLaughlin knew what he was talking about when he said Mariucci was colorful and should be a crowd pleaser.

Anyhow, Thompson yesterday yielded to the judgment of the big boss as expressed way up in Hibbing during the training season. MacKay was shipped back to Providence and the former Gopher end is now Joe Cooper's regular defense partner. Thompson says he made the flop to Mariucci because he told the rugged man three things that he must not do in major league hockey and Johnny remembered them all. To retain three instructions was considered a high rating for an American college graduate and so John Mariucci, U. of M. '40 gets his chance. He really should make good in a big way and soon become a pet of the customers—he's that kind of an athlete.

Play Rangers Tomorrow.

Mariucci's first engagement as a regular will see him battling against the world champion New York Rangers in the Stadium tomorrow night. Despite their eminence as world champs the Rangers trail the Hawks by a half game in the National league standings. The Hawks, who are tied with Boston for third place have won six, lost seven and tied three. The Rangers have won six, lost seven and tied two. The teams have played each other only once this season. The Hawks were the winners, 2 to 1.

A PART IN YANKEE DEAL? STELLE'S ANSWER: THANKS

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP).—George E. Day, state purchasing agent, said today that Gov. John Stelle and a group of friends had been invited to raise $1,500,000 to participate in the purchase of the New York Yankees baseball club but added that there is no possibility the deal will go thru.

Day said that he, Gov. Stelle, and State Insurance Director C. Hayden Davis had been contacted by James A. Farley and asked to join in the purchase negotiations. Day added: "But what are we going to use for money? We all would like to own any part of a ball club, particularly the Yankees, but there's too much money involved in this deal.

"As far as we're concerned, there is no possibility the deal will go thru."

Gov. Stelle's office said the chief executive had been asked about negotiations and his only comment was: "Thanks for the compliment."

DEMONS DEFEAT PURDUE, 37-33, IN SECOND HALF

Boilermakers Meet Loyola Tonight.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Elmer Gainer, veteran center on the De Paul basketball team, who has been a foundation stone in the great record the Blue Demons have established in the last two seasons, added another chapter to his autobiography last night. Gainer crashed thru the Purdue defenses in the second half of a game in the Coliseum for four field goals and four free throws as De Paul whipped the Western conference champions, 37 to 33.

Gainer had been held to two free throws in three attempts in the first 20 minutes. Purdue finished the half leading, 18 to 16, which further emphasizes the importance of Gainer. De Paul had other heroes. The 5,000 spectators—most of whom cheered the Blue Demons—will not forget young Jimmy Cominsky, sophomore forward; Bob Wozny, a reserve forward last year, or Ed Sachs, co-captain of the team with Gainer.

Blanken Is Good, Too.

In the final analysis, however, it was Gainer who turned the tide. His height under the backboard, on defense and on attack, was the decisive margin. But Purdue also had a star whose light could not be dimmed in defeat.

The Boilermakers suffered their first defeat of the year but Don Blanken, at center, who is equally at home at guard or forward, scored seven field goals and two penalty shots in three attempts to lead all players of the two quintets.

Mickey Tierney, onetime star for St. George High school, Evanston, lost nothing by last night's exhibition. Mickey fed the ball for more than half of the under the backboard shots and his defensive work was beyond criticism. The final result might have been different if Forrest Sprowl, Purdue's regular convalescing center, had been in the game.

De Paul opened the scoring on Gainer's free throw and then led, 4 to 0, before the count finally was tied at 6-all when Bob Igney got into action. Johnny Galvin, a Chicagoan, shoved in the first field goal for the Boilermakers.

Gainer Ties It Up.

The first half was as close as flypaper, but Purdue established an 18 to 14 lead, only to have Cominsky drop in a long shot a few seconds before the gun to cut the margin to 18 to 16.

Gainer tied the score on an under the board shot at the start of the second half. He then matched Blanken's goal for a 20 to 20 tie. Blanken sent the Boilermakers ahead, 22 to 20, but here the attack stalled while De Paul scored 14 points.

This decided the result, altho Substitutes George Fields and Charles Caress sparked an attack that cut down the Demons' margin to four points with two minutes to play. Each team then scored a penalty shot and De Paul also took possession instead of shooting to make certain it would remain undefeated. Last night's victory was the second for De Paul in seven games.

The Boilermakers will face another severe test tonight when they battle Loyola in the latter's north side gymnasium.

GAMES TODAY.
Quarter Finals.
2 p. m.—St. Marys [Woodstock] vs. Joliet Catholic.
3 p. m.—St. Patrick vs. Loyola academy.
8 p. m.—De La Salle vs. Mount Carmel.
9 p. m.—Lewis Holy Name [Lockport] vs. Fenwick [Oak Park].

Fenwick, defending champion, and Lewis Holy Name of Lockport, which never before survived the first round, were victors along with Mount Carmel last night in the annual pre-season Catholic high school basketball tournament at St. George gymnasium in Evanston.

The three teams advanced to today's quarter-finals along with De La Salle, Loyola academy, and St. Patrick, winners of afternoon games, and St. Mary's of Woodstock and Joliet Catholic, which qualified in Wednesday night's play.

Loyola Swamps St. Mel.

St. Patrick defeated Holy Trinity, 32 to 27, with a spurt in the last half. Holy Trinity led, 17 to 16, at the half. The Shamrocks moved in front in the third period on baskets by Ed Ryan, Pete McElligott and John Jennings.

Loyola academy scored a decisive victory over St. Mel, 41 to 18. Jack Dee, guard, led the Ramblers with five baskets.

De La Salle eliminated Central Catholic of Hammond, Ind., 31 to 23. The contest never was in doubt. Pacing the winners was Bill Gehrke with five baskets and a free throw:

Mount Carmel, twice winner of the tournament during the past six years, ran over St. Philip, 30 to 16. John Kempfer and John McGowan, forwards, scored 20 points between them. St. Philip, a better team than the score indicates, trailed 19 to 6 at the half.

First Tourney Triumph.

Lewis Holy Name of Lockport, more or less a C. Y. O. project with Bishop Bernard Sheil as its sponsor, defeated St. Gregory, 27 to 12, for its first victory in five years of St. George tournament competition.

Fenwick's Friars outlasted a hard fighting St. Michael's team to win, 32 to 27, and complete the first round of play. Fenwick trailed, 10 to 9, at the end of the first quarter, but led at the half, 20 to 12.

Capt. Joe Stampf and his associates of Chicago's Maroons defeated the North Central basketball team, 45 to 36, in the Midway field house last night. Stampf collected 27 points, getting 10 of the Maroons' 14 field goals and seven of 17 free throws. Chicago led, 17 to 14, at the half.

After holding Chicago to a three point lead at the half, in which the lead changed seven times, North Central failed to score during the first eight minutes in the second half, while the Maroons gained a 14 point lead.

Stampf's 27 points gave him a 14 point edge over his closest competitor, Harry Smith of North Central. Early in the second half Stampf missed a free throw attempt, his first miss after 18 successive free throws in three games this season.

North Central took the opening tip off and Jim Bates and Tom Wedsworth counted four points before Chicago got started but Stampf, Jack Fons, and Fred Shaver then counted to put Chicago ahead. Lineups:

N. U. FACES PITT

Pittsburgh's barnstorming basketball team will play its third game of the week against Big Ten competition when it meets Northwestern in the Evanston High school gymnasium tonight. The Panthers will seek to even the series between the two teams, which now stands at six victories for the Wildcats to five for Pitt.

Northwestern's basketball hopes surged upward Wednesday night when it was beaten only 32 to 31 by Butler, regarded as one of the strongest teams in the middle west. Butler scored a field goal in the last five seconds of play to win.

Coach Dutch Lonborg still is experimenting with Northwestern's lineup in an effort to get a strong offensive combination together. The leading Wildcat scorer is Don Clawson, husky center, who has scored 17 points in the two games to date.

A block of 1,000 seats will be available to the public, it was announced last night.

Snead to Face Cuban Star in $10,000 Match

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 20 (AP).—Cuba's sports and betting circles were in uproar today with the announcement that Sam Snead, regarded as the best mechanical golfer since Bobby Jones of grand slam fame, will meet Rufino Gonzalez, Cuba's champion pro, in a 36 hole medal play match at the Havana Country club Sunday, with $10,000 at stake.

A gallery of more than 5,000 will watch the match which was brought about thru an argument between Torwald Sanchez, well known in Cuban sports affairs, and Thomas Shevlin of New York, over the merits of the two players. Sanchez backed Gonzalez, who never has been beaten over the country club course and is one of the club professionals. Shevlin, an amateur golfer and deep sea fishing enthusiast, accepted the wager and invited Snead to play the match.

Sam Takes a Hint.

The medal play event adds another chapter to the colorful career of Snead, a Virginian, born near Hot Springs on May 27, 1912. One of a family of four golfing brothers, Snead took up the game at an early age. He was first a cross-handed golfer, a method he dropped when his older brother, Homer, threatened to lick him, if he used the grip again.

Snead became proficient by practicing over the Goat course, a six hole climb up Warm Springs mountain in Virginia, when he wasn't drawing sodas. That was while he was going thru Hot Springs High school. In addition to golf he was an all-around prep athlete.

Guldahl Outshoots Him.

A red hot favorite to win his first United States open tournament in Detroit in 1937, he finished second to Ralph Guldahl's all-time record of 281. Snead failed to make the grade in the 1938 tournament in Denver, but had the open championship in his lap in Philadelphia in 1939, until he acquired a staggering eight on the last hole. In the 1940 American open in Cleveland he tied the record with a first round 67, but took an 81 on the last eighteen.

Maine Junior Defeats Wright Quintet, 33-29

The Maine Junior college basketball team defeated Wright City college, 33 to 29, in an interleague game on Maine's floor yesterday. Calvin of Maine scored 13 points, good for top honors. Maine led at the half, 14 to 12.

STATE CONTINUES RUTHLESS ATTACK ON CROW LEGION

BY BOB BECKER.

The crow bombing squad of the Illinois department of conservation has moved from northern Illinois into the central and southern parts of the state to continue its attacks against the big winter rookeries which have a combined population of millions of birds. Frank S. Davis, inspector in charge of predator control, who bombed the rookery in McHenry county Thursday evening, said yesterday that he has located a number of big flocks downstate of from 20,000 to 50,000 crows each, and these will be attacked immediately.

It's Hard to Figure.

These rookeries are much more favorably located for bombing than the one in McHenry county. The big difficulty there was the fact that the crows were roosting in a large tract of oak timber instead of in a long, narrow osage orange hedge or other comparatively small stand of trees. Moreover, the birds were changing their roosting place nearly every night.

Under such circumstances it's almost impossible to figure just which group of 30 or 40 trees the entire flock will use on any one night. Davis was in the woods Thursday night for 2½ hours during a cold rain trying to work the flock from one part of the big woods to the few trees which were strung with dynamite bombs, a trick that takes considerable knowledge of crows and their wary habits.

The birds refused to bunch up the way they would in a small stand of timber. Thus they kept their numbers too scattered for the most efficient bomb shot.

Ever See a Gray Crow?

When we walked over the snow covered ground immediately after the bombs had been exploded we started to count the number of dead crows under one oak tree. Our count had reached 89 when we suddenly saw [by the weak beam of a fading flashlight] a crow that looked as if it had been dipped in a solution of gray paint. This proved to be an albinistic crow—the prize oddity of the evening foray against the rookery. It was a dirty, grayish white instead of the usual blue-black of a normally plumaged crow, and the tail feathers were much lighter than those on the rest of the bird's body.

Altho we looked at hundreds of dead crows which had been killed by the shot loaded bombs, this was the only one with plumage of decidedly albinistic shade.

HITCH DEVELOPS IN LOUIS-CONN BATTLE PLANS

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Billy Conn wants to get the champion's end of the purse in case he succeeds in winning the heavyweight championship from Joe Louis. And so there was no action today on the signing of the bout or on deciding where it will be held.

Johnny Ray, Conn's manager, refused to sign a contract like the ones accepted by Louis' recent opponents. It called for a return bout within 90 days, with Conn and Louis to share equally in the purse, each receiving 30 per cent of the receipts.

The customary division of a championship purse is 37½ per cent to the champion and 12½ per cent to the challenger. Both Conn and Louis will do better in their first meeting, according to the contract offered. It calls for 40 per cent to the champion and 20 per cent to the challenger.

Promoter Mike Jacobs answered Ray's protests over the split for the return bout by saying he could not afford to give the fighters more than 60 per cent of the receipts. If Conn should get 37½ per cent, that would leave only 22½ per cent for Louis.

Since neither Ray nor Jacobs would yield during the day's conferences three members of the Pennsylvania athletic commission weren't able to get any reply to their suggestion that the bout, which probably will be held in June, should take place in Pittsburgh.

3 Ohio Basket Players Eligible for Game Tonight

Columbus, O., Dec. 20 (AP).—Announcement that three varsity players had been removed from the scholastic ineligibility list buoyed Ohio State university's basketball hopes tonight as a squad of 12 left for Lansing, Mich., to engage Michigan State tomorrow night. The three—Forward Bill Goss, Center Roger Jorgenson, and Guard Max Gecowets—were among players taking the trip. During the holidays the Buckeyes will play Princeton on Dec. 28 and Pittsburgh Dec. 30 and Michigan will meet Pittsburgh and Princeton on corresponding nights in double headers in Columbus. Ohio State also meets Creighton here Jan. 2.

PICK POLISH TEAM.

Selection of the team for the Polish National Alliance's first annual all-star basketball game on Thursday night, Jan. 2, is to be made tonight by a committee of coaches of the Alliance's league. The all-stars will meet the Savoy Big Five.

Yanks' Gift to Lefty Gomez: a New Chance

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Vernon [Lefty] Gomez got a Christmas present from the New York Yankees today in the form of a promise that they would take him off the market and give him a chance to stick with the club thru 1941.

The Yanks already had obtained waivers on their eccentric southpaw and were preparing to sell him to a National league club, probably the Brooklyn Dodgers. But Gomez came to town from a hunting trip today and held a long huddle with President Ed Barrow, during which, in the words of Barrow, "Gomez sold me on Gomez."

Barrow indicated that a deal was still on the fire for Pitcher Monte Pearson, on whom waivers also were obtained last month.

FENGER ELEVEN OFF TODAY FOR FLORIDA BATTLE

Chicago's Champs After 13th Straight Victory.

Fenger's football team, city prep champion, will leave Chicago this morning for Miami, Fla., where it will meet Miami High school in a post-season charity game Christmas night. Thirty-seven players, Coaches Charles Palmer and Frank Knight, Athletic Director A. H. Pritzlaff of the Public School league, and a group of Fenger's followers from the Roseland and Pullman district will make the trip to the south.

Seek 13th Victory.

Unbeaten in 37 games, Fenger will be seeking its 13th victory of the 1940 season. It will be playing its second post-season game in three years. The champions traveled to Waco, Tex., in 1938, winning, 14 to 0, on two touchdowns by Donald [Flash] Griffin, now a freshman at the University of Illinois.

The squad ended preparations for the contest with a two hour workout yesterday. The happiest player in the group was Ray Florek, hero of Fenger's 18 to 0 victory over Leo's Catholic league champions in Mayor Kelly's All-City game on Nov. 30. Florek yesterday was awarded the Noble E. Kizer Memorial trophy by the Purdue club of Chicago after he was named as the most valuable player in the Public School league by officials and newspaper men. A similar award was given to William Freewalt, St. Paul half back and the Catholic league's most valuable performer.

Fourth Florida Invader.

Fenger will be the fourth Chicago district eleven to play in Florida. Harrison Tech, led by Andy Pilney and Andy Puplis, defeated Miami, 19 to 0, in 1931. Oak Park tied Miami, 7 to 7, two years ago, and last winter Mount Carmel, which had tied Fenger, 13 to 13, in the All-City contest, routed an All-Star team in West Palm Beach, 33 to 0.

East Team Works Out in Ogden Gymnasium

Ogden, Utah, Dec. 20 (AP).—Players on the eastern all-star football squad, which will engage western All-Stars in a New Year's day game at San Francisco, drilled in the Ogden High school gymnasium for an hour today. Coaches Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Andy Kerr and Fred Swan of Colgate directed the practice which interrupted the easterner's train trip to the west coast.

SMITTY—THE BIG MOMENT

W-G-N CURTAIN RISES TONIGHT ON 'ROSE MARIE'

Miss Claire, Weede Will Sing Leading Parts.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The Chicago Theater of the Air will lift its curtain at W-G-N tonight on "Rose Marie," a romantic story of the Canadian north woods. This melodic operetta is the second by Rudolf Friml to be presented this fall. The first operetta of the season was his "Vagabond King."

At the conclusion of the operetta broadcast Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the TRIBUNE, will extend Christmas greetings to co-workers and friends in Canada. Speaking in French, Col. McCormick will address members of The Tribune's family at Baie Comeau, Shelter Bay, Franquelin and Outarde in Quebec, and at Thorold and Heron Bay in Ontario.

Notables Have Leading Parts.

Marion Claire and Robert Weede, both notables of radio and opera, will sing the leading parts of Rose Marie and Jim Kenyon. Betty Winkler, star of the network show, "Girl Alone," and Bob Bailey, who was featured in W-G-N's production of

Robert Weede and Betty Winkler.

Dickens' "Christmas Carol" Thursday evening, will take the dramatic parts of these two leading characters.

"Rose Marie" was first produced in 1924, with Mary Ellis in the leading role. It was an immediate success. Its story is one of contrasts. In the first act Saskatchewan and the Canadian Rockies furnish the backdrop. Later the action shifts to Quebec and the Château Frontenac. Finally the action moves back to the Kootenay pass in the mountains.

Lovely Songs Included.

Several songs of haunting loveliness are included in the score—among these "Rose Marie" and "The Indian Love Call." Other songs are the rhythmic "Totem Tom Tom," "Why Shouldn't We?" and the sentimental "Door of My Dreams."

"Rose Marie" will be produced by William A. Bacher, with Henry Weber directing the W-G-N orchestra and chorus. The supporting cast will include Marvin Mueller, Donna Reade, Bret Morrison, Al Halus, Willard Waterman, Bob Jellison, and Fran Carlon. Robert Trendler is the choral master.

ARMY WILL HAVE CHARGE OF W-G-N CHURCH SERVICE

Military units of the 6th corps army area will present the Chicagoland Church hour service on W-G-N tomorrow beginning at 9 a. m. The service will be under the direction of Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commandant of the area, who will extend Christmas greetings to all camps in the area. The music will be sung by the Fort Sheridan chorus, and the Winged chorus from Chanute field, Rantoul. Capt. Roland R. Bach, assistant chaplain of the area, will preach, and Maj. Frank A. Collins, recreational director of the area, will assist in the service. Six hundred officers and enlisted men from Fort Sheridan will be conveyed in army transport trucks to the main studio of W-G-N for the service.

LACKS FILING FEE IN SUIT AGAINST 50 FOR $3,800,000

Mrs. Mary L. Walker of Joliet filed suit in the Circuit court in Will county yesterday seeking $3,800,000 from 50 persons named as defendants. Mrs. Walker did not have the means to pay the $10 filing fee and was granted permission by Judge James Bartley to file as a poor person. She drew the complaint herself, she told the court.

The defendants include attorneys, court receivers, title companies, and bondholders' committees. Mrs. Walker alleged that she lost an apartment hotel building thru fraud and that the amount sued for represents the money she would have if it had not been for the foreclosure proceedings. The building is the West Pines hotel in Joliet. A foreclosure suit was started in 1925 and the building was sold recently for $110,000. Mrs. Walker asks $850,000 for the building, $1,725,000 for loss of income in the last 15 years, $200,000 for costs of litigation, and other damages.

LINER WITH 100 IN COLLISION AT BROOKLYN BRIDGE

New York, Dec. 20 [Special].—About 100 passengers coming in from Boston on the Eastern Steamship liner St. John were shaken up today when the ship, proceeding slowly thru a fog, collided with the collier Craigsmere under the Brooklyn bridge, rebounded and crashed into a dock.

Both ships were damaged and sent to drydock after completing their trips. About 50 feet of wooden pier on the Brooklyn side of the bridge was ripped loose by the St. John.

SEEK TO RELEASE CHICAGO CASH OF BONN PROFESSOR

Attorneys for Prof. William Pflueger of Bonn university, Germany, moved yesterday to quash a writ obtained by the government which has tied up $76,015 in securities, cash, and a joint checking account, all in Chicago. The writ was obtained pending settlement of the government's $26,000 claim against Pflueger. Federal Judge William J. Campbell set Monday for a hearing on the motion and Jan. 20 for trial of the case.

During the world war all of Prof Pflueger's assets in this country were seized by the government under the enemy alien act. In 1928 congress ordered the return of 80 per cent of the seized property to aliens. Pflueger claimed and collected 100 per cent on the ground he was a citizen because of his birth in 1869 in Hawaii, which later became a territory of the United States.

The government, in its suit, maintains Pflueger's claim was false and that he was entitled only to 80 per cent. The $26,000 represents the 20 per cent alleged overpayment, plus interest at 6 per cent since 1928.

INDIANA CAPITAL GETS ITS SHARE OF ARMS ORDERS

And Expects Steady Gain in Contracts.

BY HAROLD HUTCHINGS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 20.—Industrial activity is on the upgrade in the Hoosier state, with prime defense contracts accounting for 250 million dollars worth of business in Indianapolis and an estimated $148,500,000 in the rest of the state. These totals do not include any estimate of secondary contracts or construction costs directly connected with the defense business. No figures on the latter categories are available.

Altho business spokesmen in Indianapolis asserted that this city would be doing pretty well, thank you, even if there were no defense orders, admittedly this is not the situation in areas of southern Indiana. Both business and political persons, accordingly, are taking steps to get more of the defense millions as a means of relieving economically depressed areas.

Seeks More Work.

Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, Democrat whose term expires next month, went to Washington, D. C., last week to see what more is in the mill for Indiana and what local action, if any, is needed to get it. He announced upon his return that it is probable a TNT plant will be established in Vigo, Vermillion or Parke county at the western border of the state. This would be the sixth munitions or powder plant allocated to Indiana.

A naval ordnance plant is the latest acquisition, a six million dollar project which will be established on a site not yet chosen at Indianapolis. This plant, which will be operated by Lukas-Harold corporation of New York, will employ 2,500 men in making of fire control equipment and other navy precision instruments.

The biggest project is the $21,000,000 du Pont powder plant at Charlestown in southern Indiana, the largest powder plant in the world. It is under construction on a 6,000 acre site, and already a $56,000,000 federal order has been allocated to it.

Raises Health Problem.

The construction has precipitated a critical new social and health problem, because 13,000 workers are packed daily into the area, 10,000 of them commuting from Lousiville. The state board of health's sanitary engineering bureau has recommended a $250,000 extension of water and sewage facilities immediately to alleviate a "most serious existing health hazard" in tiny Charlestown, suddenly converted from an easy going town near the Ohio into a boom town.

The other munitions projects are: a $15,000,000 proving ground on a 25,000 acre site at Madison, 65 miles from Charlestown [it is rumored the air corps may practice bombing at this ground]; a $15,000,000 naval ammunition dump at Burns City in Martin county; and a shell loading plant at Union Center, southeast of La Porte, to which a $15,000,000 order has been allocated.

Cure for Unemployment.

Clarence A. Jackson, executive vice president of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce, declared the Burns City, Charlestown, and Madison projects are welcomed as a cure for unemployment there. The Union Center project, however, is in a rich agricultural region, and the governor when in Washington last week, asked why it had not been allocated to a less prosperous area. The department of agriculture and social workers are said to have asked the same question, and to have been told: "The general decides."

The Hoosiers are trying to get a governmental project for the Bedford area where decreased output of limestone has resulted in unemployment. Army and navy men have looked over the quarry regions, but went away without doing anything about it. The Hoosiers are still hoping.

In the interest of getting more defense business, the state chamber of commerce six weeks ago began a survey of every available industrial site and idle or partly idle plants in the state. Blue prints and data on titles are being gathered. The survey is 75 per cent completed.

Expects Steady Gain.

Indianapolis, the capital and biggest city, with a population of 386,000, expects to get more defense contracts steadily. Of its total of $250,000,000 so far, $235,000,000 has gone to the Allison division of General Motors corporation for the new 12 cylinder liquid cooled airplane motor adopted by the air corps after battle experience in Europe proved this type to have advantages over the air cooled motors.

Allison now employs more than 8,000 men [and is expected eventually to have 12,000] in a plant which has been expanding steadily since June, 1939, when it was only a small, one-building experimental laboratory in which the engine was developed. More than 1,500,000 square feet of factory space are completed and in operation, another 200,000 square feet will be finished the middle of January. The vast modern plant extends over a site which was an orchard little more than a year ago. The place is strongly guarded, visitors are not admitted, and all employés must be American citizens and be accepted by the federal bureau of identification. A high fence and uniformed guards shield the plant, which is air conditioned, has hardly any windows, and is lighted inside by flourescent lights.

View on Production.

A company spokesman said it is hoped to "live up to the defense commission's expectations" of 400 motors a month by Jan. 1 and 1,000 motors a

Walt Disney Reports Loss; Result of War

Walt Disney.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 20 [Special].—Walt Disney Productions today issued its annual report showing a deficit for the fiscal year ended Sept. 28, chiefly due to disruption of the company's foreign markets.

The report disclosed an operating loss of $259,798, and after a writedown of $1,000,000 in the inventory value of "Pinocchio" a final net loss of $1,259,798.

In the year ended Sept. 30, 1939, the company reported a net profit of $1,250,130 after all charges including provision for federal income taxes.

Disney Explains Loss.

Walt Disney, president, said: "The effect of the war in Europe upon the affairs of your company has been serious and the full measure thereof cannot yet be determined. It has been impossible to effect an orderly release of the company's pictures in any of the countries at war and in many countries it has been impossible to effect any release.

"In fact, in most of the territories dominated by the axis powers the release of American pictures has been forbidden. In addition, currency restriction and regulations, as well as the fluctuations in foreign exchange rates, have served to further reduce the company's income from such pictures as were already released in foreign countries."

Pinocchio Earns $976,211.

Income from film rental for the year totaled $1,954,335 of which $976,211 came from "Pinocchio," $874,597 from short subjects, and $103,526 from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," compared with film rentals of $3,237,217 in the preceding year of which $2,089,192 came from "Snow White."

Other income totaled $571,387, of which $289,829 represented fees for licensing the use of cartoon characters and the balance from income on comic strips, art work for books, and periodicals, and music royalties.

SHORT COVERING OFFSETS SELLING IN GRAIN TRADE

Liquidation by holders of December grain contracts on the Chicago Board of Trade was offset by short covering yesterday. Wheat futures finished ⅛ to ⅞ cent higher. Corn was ahead ¼ to ⅝ cent.

December oats sold at 40½ cents, a new seasonal high, but reacted to close off ⅝ cent. The deferred futures closed ¼ cent lower. Rye closed ¼ to ½ cent higher and soy beans unchanged to 1¼ cents higher.

A winter wheat crop of 633,000,000 bushels was forecast by the department of agriculture. The 1940 yield was 589,000,000 bushels and the average for the last 10 years was 571,000,000 bushels.

The condition on Dec. 1 was placed at 84 per cent of normal, best since 1930. About 46,271,000 acres were seeded to winter wheat this fall, or 2,541,000 acres in excess of the area seeded for the 1940 crop, and a 1929-'38 average of 39,453,000 acres.

WARD BUYS MORE WAREHOUSES ON KINGSBURY ST.

Montgomery Ward & Co. yesterday added approximately 220,000 square feet of floor area to its already large warehouse facilities. It bought several four story buildings comprising the entire block of frontage on the north side of Superior street, between Kingsbury and Roberts streets, 350 by 130 feet, and the southwest corner of Chicago avenue and Kingsbury street, 72 by 130 feet. Winston & Co., which represented all parties, said $115,000 was paid Selz, Schwab & Co., the seller. Frank Mayer was attorney.

Three Closed State Banks to Make Final Payments

Payment of $65,044 to depositors in three closed Chicago state banks was authorized yesterday by Edward J. Barrett, state auditor. Depositors of the Elston State bank will receive a second and final payment of 5.3 per cent, or $24,613, making the total paid 10.3 per cent. Second Humboldt State bank depositors will receive 4.7 per cent, or $20,252, the sixth and final payment making 34.7 per cent repaid. A 9 per cent fifth and final payment will go to depositors of the Sherman State bank, or $20,179, bringing payments to 46½ per cent.

the bonds would be reoffered at prices to yield 0.70 to 1.10 per cent according to maturities.

SEC DEMANDS N. Y. EXCHANGE END LISTING BAN

Threatens to Make Issue Test Case.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission demanded tonight that the New York Stock exchange remove its ban against so-called multiple trading by Dec. 28.

Unless this order is complied with, the SEC indicated in a brief statement, it will call a public hearing and test its authority under section 19 [B] of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 to compel compliance. Such a step would be the first of its kind under the law.

Request Is Rejected.

The fight between the commission and the exchange over multiple trading began shortly after the governors of the big mart ordered its members who also are members of exchanges in other cities to cease trading for their own accounts on the other exchanges in securities which are listed also on the New York board.

At the request of the commission, the effectiveness of this order was deferred several times pending a final decision by the exchange. Last week, the exchange finally turned down the SEC request.

Smaller Exchanges Object.

The commission made an extensive study of the probable effects of the ban, which presumably would take to the New York floor some of the trading in important securities which has been executed locally.

Two regional exchanges informed the SEC that the ban would threaten them with dissolution thru loss of trading volume and several other exchanges opposed the New York action.

Under section 19 [B], the SEC is given authority to "alter or supplement the rules of such exchange" when it finds, after a written request and a public hearing, that the rules are not operating for the protection of investors or do not insure fair dealing.

TERM BAN A BLUNDER.

Commenting on the action of the SEC last night, several Chicago brokers said that the New York Stock exchange had blundered both in adopting the ban on multiple trading and in defying the commission.

While some indicated that they personally sympathized with the Big Board in its skirmish with the SEC, they expressed opposition to the policy of the ban and said the whole conflict might have a disturbing influence on the securities market.

U. S. DEBT TOPS 45 BILLIONS ON SALE OF NOTES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The treasury disclosed today its debt has passed $45,000,000,000, the former statutory limit on federal obligations.

It was a special $530,000,000 issue of new defense notes that pushed the debt over the $45,000,000,000 mark this week, with a little help from daily sales of baby bonds.

At its new peak the federal debt represented an average of approximately $340 per person in the United States.

The debt was $3,100,000,000 larger than a year ago—nearly triple its postwar low of $16,026,087,087 on Dec. 30, 1930—and close to double the world war financing peak of $26,596,701,468 reached on Aug. 31, 1919.

Pennsylvania Road Airmails Dividend Checks to England

Pennsylvania railroad stockholders in Great Britain yesterday had their dividends on schedule despite the hazards of war. The checks were flown across the Atlantic ocean by clipper plane to Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 3 and were in their owners' hands at the same time American stockholders received their payments.

Diesel Engine Production to Expand Again

BY AL CHASE.

Continued growth in the use of Diesel electric locomotives for streamlined trains as well as freight and switch engines has made necessary another big addition to the Electro-Motive corporation's La Grange plant, it was learned yesterday. The company is having plans drawn by its architects, J. Lloyd Allen and John R. Kelly of Indianapolis, for an addition which will add 90,000 square feet to the large manufacturing plant. It is understood the cost may be about $300,000.

According to F. H. Prescott, vice president and general manager of the Electro-Motive corporation, the company has a backlog of orders for Diesel locomotives that will keep the plant busy until next April. The company, he said, has an output schedule of 22 complete locomotives of various kinds monthly. At present it is behind in deliveries.

New Unit 250 by 360 Feet.

The new unit, to be approximately 250 by 360 feet, will be one story, with no windows. It will be completely air conditioned, and have concrete floors. It will be used for general manufacturing according to Prescott, with completion set for spring. Bids probably will be taken within a few days.

The Electro-Motive corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors, has had a rapid growth. It bought 75 acres in 1935 in the little community of McCook [population about 150] just southeast of La Grange, which is the company's post office. A $2,000,000 beginning was made on what president H. L. Hamilton said eventually would be a $10,000,000 plant.

Made Other Expansions.

In the fall of 1936 a $750,000 addition, containing 84,000 square feet, was built. The company them employed 350 persons.

In 1937 the company bought 106 additional acres and later enlarged the plant area to 200 acres, its present space. In May of 1937, with a pay roll of 1,000, a second addition was announced. Since then the company's personnel and plant have both steadily expanded until today the employés numbers 3,300.

COUNCIL ADOPTS HOUSING, SLUM CLEARANCE PLAN

The proposed housing program for Chicago was adopted yesterday by the council on the recommendation of the housing committee, headed by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell. The program recommended the removal of slums and the providing of "healthful shelter" for low income groups.

It urged the expansion of baby parks and playgrounds in congested areas. It also asked that private capital be encouraged to enter the low cost housing field as public service building corporations.

At the request of Ald. Paul Douglas the Chicago Housing authority was directed to present a financial report together with a report on its program for additional low-cost public housing for Chicago.

Chicago Gets Lowest Net Interest Rate in History

City Controler Robert B. Upham announced yesterday that Chicago received the lowest net interest rate in its history in the sale of $1,500,000 refunding bonds to a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. Altho the bonds carry a one per cent coupon, the city was given a premium of $810,000, which makes the net interest rate to the city 0.991 per cent. The bonds will mature at $300,000 a year beginning Jan. 1, 1945. Proceeds will be used toward payment of $9,090,000 of the city's 4 and 5 per cent bonds due Jan. 1. Halsey, Stuart & Co., said

CHICAGO BROKERAGE HOUSE WILL MERGE WITH NEW YORK FIRM

The name of another of the older Chicago securities firms will soon disappear from the list of La Salle street brokerage houses when Stein, Brennan & Co. consolidates with a New York firm. This was announced yesterday by officials of the Chicago firm.

The partnership on Dec. 31 will voluntarily dissolve to merge its facilities with Bear, Stearns & Co., its New York correspondent for the last seven years. Officials of the Chicago firm said that they would continue service to their customers from the present office at 9 South La Salle street, with essentially the same personnel.

L. Montefiore Stein and Leonard M. Spitzglass will manage the Chicago office of Bear, Stearns & Co. Stein has been a partner with the Chicago firm since 1913. In business for 50 years, the firm first was known as Finley, Barrow & Co., later as Block, Maloney & Co., and in 1920 became Stein, Alstrin & Co. It became Stein, Brennan & Co. in 1933.

FEES DEFEATED, GRAIN DEALER QUITS 3 GROUPS

Daniel F. Rice & Co., a leading grain commission house on the Chicago Board of Trade, yesterday morning withdrew from membership in three Chicago grain associations which used its name on a circular letter opposing Board of Trade rule amendments which Rice & Co. had sponsored. Later in the day members of the Board of Trade rejected the amendments.

The vote was 474 to 227 against placing fees on all trades in cash grain and futures contracts. An amendment to change grades of grain eligible for delivery on futures contracts and three amendments of a technical nature were defeated by about the same vote.

The associations from which Rice & Co. withdrew were the Cash Grain association, the Cash Grain Commission Merchants association and the Association of Grain Commission Merchants. They had distributed the letter among members of the exchange.

NEW SECURITIES SALES SECOND LARGEST OF YEAR

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Public offerings of new securities during the week ended yesterday totaled $228,643,955, the second largest volume of the year, Poor's Publishing company reported today. It marked the second time in the last three weeks that new offerings had exceeded the $200,000,000 level.

Only 14 per cent of the week's issues represented new money, however, and virtually all of this was taken by municipalities.

New issues included all types of financing except railroad. Stock offerings were second largest of the year, exceeded only in the week ended Jan. 11.

BUYING SPURTS IN CHICAGO TO PEAK FOR YEAR

Sales Thruout U. S. Lag Behind 1939.

Holiday buying in Chicago department stores last week boosted sales 22 per cent above the precedink week to the highest level of the year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. Stores in the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district did 18 per cent more business than a week earlier and 2 per cent more than in the corresponding week in 1939.

Christmas buying thruout the nation last week was not as heavy as it was a year ago, however. The federal reserve board reported that nationwide department store business was one per cent less than in the week ended Dec. 16, 1939. Chicago was one of the few reserve districts to record a gain over last year.

Sales Lag Behind '39 Rate.

Despite the large jump in Chicago sales over the succeeding week, dollar volume in the city's stores was 0.3 per cent less than in the corresponding week last year. The bank attributed the sag in Chicago and for the country to the fact that Christmas buying was farther along last year. Last week ended the first 14 days of December Christmas buying while a year ago, the comparable period ended 16 days of holiday sales.

Detroit stores once more recorded the sharpest sales increase for any city in the seventh district. With its automobile manufacturers operating at top speed and its industrial output supplemented with huge defense orders, the Detroit stores sold 8.2 per cent more merchandise than last year. For the first two weeks of December, business increased 12.6 per cent over a year earlier.

Milwaukee Has Gain.

Milwaukee stores sold 3.8 per cent more goods and Indianapolis stores 2 per cent more than in the corresponding week last year.

For the two weeks ended Dec. 14 compared with the two weeks ended Dec. 16, 1939, Chicago stores' sales increased 1.7 per cent; Milwaukee, 6.1 per cent; Indianapolis, 4.4 per cent; and the seventh district aggregate business, 4.6 per cent.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 20 [Special].—The third of the trio of streamliners in the new 29½ hour service between Chicago and Miami arrived here today. It was the Pennsylvania railroad's South Wind carrying a number of Chicagoans and other middle westerners who will spend their Christmas holidays in Florida.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois Dixie Flagler arrived here Wednesday on its maiden trip and the Illinois Central's City of Miami reached here yesterday.

The arrival of the South Wind concluded the festivities in Miami celebrating this new service.

Passengers on the South Wind praised the riding qualities of the new train which is built of stainless steel.

The Phillips Petroleum company yesterday announced a refunding plan registration statement had been filed with the Securities and Exchange commission. The company would issue $20,000,000 of convertible 1¾ per cent debentures maturing Jan. 1, 1951, and $15,000,000 of serial notes maturing July 1, 1941, thru Jan. 1, 1951.

The proceeds would redeem $25,000,000 of convertible 3 per cent debentures and $6,822,000 of 1½ per cent serial notes with the remainder to be added to working capital and to satisfy deferred property purchase obligations.

Ninety representatives of various bankers' groups in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district met yesterday in the Stevens hotel to develop plans for participation in the defense program. Mark A. Brown, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank and member for the 7th reserve district of the national defense loans committee of the American Bankers' association, urged bankers to help their local industries obtain defense orders.

Market Wine of Argentina in United States

Carlos Quiros.

New York, Dec. 20 [Special].—Large scale purchases of Argentine champagne and other wines which are expected to net South American producers $1,500,000 or more during the next year have been begun by United States importers because French wine sources are blocked.

More than 5,000 cases of Argentine champagne have arrived here this month, and 6,200 more cases of wine are expected for the holiday trade. Another shipment of 6,500 to 7,500 cases is due Jan. 2.

Carlos Quiros, Argentine consul general here, said his country is prepared to supply the United States market with quantities of both sparkling and still wines similar to those formerly imported from France.

First Large Shipments.

These are the first large shipments of Argentine wine made to the United States since immediately after prohibition repeal. Practically none was shipped here last year. Still and sparkling burgundies, sauterne, brandies, and cordials are to supplement future shipments, with champagne comprising about 80 per cent of orders placed so far.

Imports of both Italian and French types of Vermouth produced in Argentine also have begun. Figures of the Argentine information bureau here show $82,000 in such shipments during the first 10 months this year —$46,000 in October alone—against none last year.

Builds Dollar Exchange.

J. B. Davies, director of the information bureau, said the new wine business presents "a very good possibility for the building of dollar exchange Argentina needs so badly."

Reports from Santiago said that 60,000 cases of Chilean wines soon will be shipped to the United States, Cuba, Panama, Colombia, Venezuela, and Mexico. Chilean exporters added that 5,000 cases of champagne will be shipped soon afterward. This new business was said to have been developed thru intensive efforts of newly appointed selling agents seeking to capitalize on the shutting off of European wine sources.

74 SUITS ASKING REFUND OF STOCK TAX DISMISSED

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday dismissed 74 suits against the collector of internal revenue brought by corporations seeking refunds of about $3,000,000 in federal capital stock taxes. Samuel Clawson, attorney for Standard Oil Company of Indiana, one of the complainants, said that he would appeal his case.

Among the other complainants, who alleged that the law was unconstitutional, were Marshall Field & Co., Walgreen company, First National Bank of Chicago, Pure Oil company, and United States Gypsum company. They based their contention on assertions that the capital stock tax law, an outgrowth of the unconstitutional NRA, is arbitrary because it imposes unequal taxes on companies in the same classification and violates the due process clause of the 14th amendment to the constitution.

Assistant District Attorneys Paul Ziffren and Joseph Solon, who entered the motions to quash the suits, said that a possible refund of a billion dollars thruout the nation is involved in this question.

PROPERTY SOLD FAR BELOW ITS VALUE IN 1920's

Downtown property valued in the 1920's at $30 a square foot, and now assessed at $8 on the tax rolls, yesterday was sold for $2.78 a square foot. The Selz Schwab property at the northwest corner of Market and Monroe streets, an L shaped parcel comprising 41,283 square feet, was bought by the Monroe-Market Service Station, Inc. for $115,000. Of this amount $90,000 was a purchase price mortgage.

The property fronts 141 feet on Monroe and 200 feet on Market, part of it extending west to the river. According to Joseph Fisher, attorney for the buyer, the property, when present wrecking operations are finished, will be operated as a service station by Ben D. Kissel, owner of several loop stations, and Ida Alpert, president of the Hotel La Salle Garage company and of Ben Alpert, Inc. They are principal stockholders and officers of the buying corporation.

Kissel leased the property last July from Selz Schwab & Co. Mayer, Meyer, Austrian and Platt represented the seller.

WAGE-HOUR LAW TERMED THREAT TO STATES' LIFE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Supreme court was told today that if the administration's wage-hour act is held constitutional "the states will exist only at the sufferance of the federal government."

This was contended by Archibald B. Lovett, Savannah, Ga., attorney in challenging the validity of the 1938 legislation affective employés of interstate industries.

Lovett argued that if the statute were sustained "any activity within a state—agriculture, production or manufacture—could be regulated by the federal government."

He spoke after Solicitor General Francis Biddle had asserted that the legislation was necessary in order to keep employers who pay low wages and require long hours from obtaining an "unfair advantage."

STOCK MARKET DECLINE HALTED BY MILD RALLY

But Most Gains Are Pared in Closing Sales.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The lengthy stock market decline was halted today and selected issues retrieved portions of recent losses.

Rising tendencies were exhibited at the start and gains of fractions to a point or more were well distributed around mid-day. The rally then wavered and extreme advances were reduced at the close. Minor recessions were plentiful and numerous issues closed at Thursday's final levels.

Dealings picked up occasionally. The turnover of 832,230 shares compared with 793,030 the day before and was the largest of the week. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 43.

United States Steel, Republic and Youngstown retained minor improvement, but Bethlehem was off a trifle.

General Motors was down ⅛ and Chrysler up ¼.

Chicago Stocks.

Price trends were mixed on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, but declines outnumbered advances. Volume expanded to 34,000 shares from 32,000 on the preceding day. Chicago corporation was the volume leader with a turnover of 4,550 shares. It closed ⅛ point lower at ⅞.

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Bonds priced in the higher brackets lost ground uniformly today as many speculative loans struggled to regain a part of Thursday's losses.

A number of high priced industrial loans dropped ½ point or more and United States government obligations closed at losses ranging to 22-32ds of a point.

Loans of Japan, Italy and Norway lost 1 to 2 points.

Bank Stocks.

First National, selling ex dividend, and Chicago Title shares declined a point yesterday in Chicago bank stock trading. Continental Illinois eased half a point. Other leading issues were unchanged.

BANKS JOIN FED. RESERVE AT PEAK RATE SINCE 1920

7th District Gets 62 State Members This Year.

George J. Schaller, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, said yesterday that more banks were admitted as members of the federal reserve system in the seventh [Chicago] district during the last year than in any year since 1920.

George J. Schaller.

He said the growing uncertainty over the eventual effects on the business world of the present international situation was one of the probable reasons for the influx of new member banks. Schaller said that banks as a whole are in better condition than at any time in the last 10 years.

Total 3 Times Last Year's.

Thus far, 62 state banks of the seventh district have been admitted this year, Schaller reported, while eight more with applications pending probably will become members before the year ends. This would bring the total of new state bank members for 1940 to 70, compared with 23 in 1939.

Besides these new state bank members, Schaller said that ten state banks during the last year had been converted into national banks, which automatically brought them into federal reserve membership. Last year nine new members came into the system in this manner.

860 Members in District.

As of yesterday, membership in the seventh district totaled 860 banks, of which 318 were state banks and 542 national. The seventh district has the largest of any of the other 11 districts in total membership, as well as state bank membership.

Schaller said that there had been no special campaign for new members, but added that the policy of informing nonmembers of the advantages of the reserve system had been continued thruout the year.

In banking circles it was said that many banks may be turning to the reserve system because they no longer can obtain interest rates on deposits with correspondent banks due to banking legislation. Another reason given was that federal reserve banks now extend credit on any sound asset, while formerly this credit was given only on so-called eligible paper and government bonds.

ARMY AWARDS VAST ORDERS FOR CLOTH, CLOTHING

Propeller Maker Gets 63 Million Contract.

Orders for $26,445,558 of cloth and clothing for the army, the largest total ever purchased at one time by the war department, were announced yesterday in Washington. Most of the orders went to New England mills, it was said.

The cloth orders totaled 9,894,000 yards and included 6,122,000 yards of olive drab serge, 60,000 yards of olive drab elastique, 1,712,000 yards of olive drab flannel shirting, and 2,000,000 yards of olive drab overcoating.

Place Big Propeller Order.

Curtiss Propeller division of Curtiss-Wright corporation received a $63,000,000 army air corps order, for propeller assemblies and control sets.

The war department also contracted with Link Aviation Devices, Inc., for $4,079,412 of training planes, and with Clark Tructractor division of Clark Equipment company for $552,502 of tractors for the air corps.

Selects New Plant Site.

The war department announced it had selected a site in the vicinity of Denver, Colo., for a plant which will be operated by the Remington Arms company and will produce 30 and 50 calibre cartridges.

The cost of the plant was not announced, but in military circles it was understood that it would be in excess of $25,000,000.

CERTAIN-TEED ARREARS.

What chance is there of Certain-teed resuming payments on its preference stock? Is its business improving?—D. L.

Answer: With a 30 per cent upturn in the income of Certain-teed Products corporation this year and with its operations reported at capacity, the prospects for a resumption of dividends on the company's prior preference stock have brightened. The company, however, has made no indication that it contemplates paying a dividend on the stock or of making some settlement of the large dividend arrearage on the stock.

The company has paid no dividend on its prior preference stock since April 1, 1937, and accumulated unpaid dividends totaled $21 a share on Oct. 1. No payments have been made on the common stock since 1928.

The company has outstanding 73,069 shares of 6 per cent prior preference stock of $100 par value, 625,340 shares of $1 per common stock, and $8,961,000 in funded debt.

Influenced by a 10 year high in construction activity and by the military housing program, profits of the company this year have increased materially. Net income in the first nine months this year was $451,143, equal after provision for preference dividends to 20 cents a common share. This compared with $348,592, or 3 cents a common share, in the same 1939 period.

Operating results in recent years compared as follows:

	Net sales.	Net income.	Earned per pfd. share.
1933	$14,110,000	$259,978	$4.13
1936	15,669,000	*571,250	*8.13
1937	16,490,000	102,654	1.40
1938	14,626,000	173,010	2.34
1939	15,517,000	348,099	4.76

*Loss.

The company operated at a loss from 1928 thru 1934.

Certain-teed is a leading manufacturer of roofing, gypsum, wallboard, and other building materials. Its main office is in New York City. Celotex corporation owns a minority interest in the company.

DOMINICAN EXPORTS.

I recall a recent story about the United States withdrawing its control over the finances of the Dominican Republic. What are the principal exports of that country?—W. B.

Answer: Sugar accounted for more than 63 per cent of the 1939 exports of the Dominican Republic, cacao 11 per cent and coffee 9 per cent. Yucca starch, tobacco leaf, corn, and mo[illegible] were other chief exports.
